31 Killed In Slide After Quake

JAKARTA (AP) -- A major earthquake in the eastern Indian Ocean caused a landslide on the Indonesian island of Sumbawa, the government said today. At least 31 persons were reported dead and 67 others missing.

They were the first casualties reported since the quake, perhaps the strongest ever recorded, struck between Indonesia and Australia Friday.

The Indonesian meterology department pinpointed the quake's epicentre in the ocean 931 miles southeast of Jakarta. Sumbawa is one of the closest land areas to the epicentre, about 400 miles to the north.

A government spokesman said medical teams, volunteers and food supplies have been sent to Sumbawa and $24,000 has been allocated for disaster relief.

The 31 landslide victims were found among debris and rubble in the island district of Lunya, authorities said.

On Sumba island, 200 miles north of the epicentre, a policeman contacted by telephone reported "a few cracks on some buildings and a little damage on our pier."

But government officials here said they have been unable to get in touch with the island.

The quake also rattled tall buildings as far away as Perth, Australia, 1,300 miles south of Jakarta, and tremors rippled along the 2,400-mile length of the Western Australian coast.

Seismographic monitoring stations around the world reported the strength of the quake at between 7.7 and 8.9 on the Richter scale. Seismologists in Vienna reported a reading of 8.9 and said it was was "one of the strongest quakes in recorded history." However, they acknowledged that energy waves may have distorted their reading.

Authorities said aftershocks buffeted Indonesian islands all day Friday.

One official said inadequate communications with remote islands in the Indonesian archipelago have hampered efforts to access quake-related damage and injuries.

Muchson Surachman, a deputy director of department of social affairs, said his agency is still trying to establish contact with some of the islands.

A spokesman for the meteorology department reported damaged buildings and at least one injury on the tourist island of Bali, about 300 miles northwest of the epicentre. A powerful quake struck that island last year, killing more than 1,000 persons.

There were reports of higher than usual waves.

Levesque Still Hopeful

Times News Services

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. — Although Quebec's proposal for reciprocal agreements on minority language was rejected Friday by provincial premiers, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque said he believes his venture was not a failure.

"We didn't come here with illusions of getting written agreements signed in half a day," Levesque told a news conference after the end of the closed-door meeting.

The premier described the discussions and their results as "a small effort to see if there couldn't be a rapprochement."

"The minimum expectations we've had we've realized," the Quebec leader added.

Levesque said the joint statement by the nine other premiers pledging their best efforts to provide French language instruction was "a great thrust of good intentions" but Quebec had been looking for concrete agreements.

"Practice, not policy" is what Quebec wants, Levesque said, adding that "after one hundred and some years of hot air" when it came to language rights, Quebec preferred to wait and see what the results would be.

Levesque said he had not expected quick agreement to his proposal. He said he had even suggested the premiers advance the date for their next conference, scheduled for next summer in Saskatchewan.

The Quebec leader said the declaration by the other nine provinces was "full of high-flown and, I think, sincere intentions."

However, he added, "there have been many moral undertakings" in the past.

"We can't be open to any change in our position with that kind of declaration," he said.

"They lost a good opportunity to show inter-provincial leadership, in an area where exclusive jurisdiction belongs to the provinces," he said, adding that some of his minimum expectations were realized.

SMALL AIRLINES HAPPY

$5M-a-Year Air Boost

Third-level air carriers (small airlines flying within provincial boundaries) today reacted with cautious enthusiasm to Transport Minister Jack Davis' announcement that the provincial government will assist northern air transport development.

Davis said the government plans to embark on a northern navigational aid and landing strip upgrading program, and will look into buying and leasing aircraft to small airline companies.

B.C. could put as much as $5 million a year into the program, he said.

"We're happy to see the announcement," said Al Michaud, president of West Coast Air, but added he would like to see the details, specifically the aircraft purchase-lease aspect.

Michaud's Vancouver-based airline which runs regular flights up the west coast of the province, depends largely on amphibian Mallards.

Michaud said the Mallard is a very expensive aircraft to operate, but that there is nothing on the market today to replace it.

But otherwise he welcomes the program. There's a lot that needs to be done in the area of better landing strips, navigaional aids, weather reporting and improved docking facilities for float planes, he said.

There are no navigational beacons between Port Hardy and Prince Rupert 300 miles to the north, and no airstrips where instrument landings can be made in bad weather.

He added that there are a lot of problems, some of which won't be easy to solve, but at least the wheels are in motion.

More and improved landing strips would cut operating costs of the smaller airlines, Keith Stevenson, president of Island Airlines said.

The Campbell River based airline uses float planes 80 to 85 per cent of the time, he said.

Floats cost up to $120,000 a pair for a twin engine Otter, they're more costly to maintain and they add weight. Float plane insurance and fuel consumption are also higher, he said.

He said Island Air would be interested in moving into more northern routes, but added there are no fewer than 16 third level air carriers operating between the Lower Mainland and Bella Coola, and the routes already overlap.

Alcan Union Agrees To Pay

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers has tentatively agreed to pay the Aluminum Co. of Canada $135,000 in an out-of-court settlement of the company's damage suit against the union.

Union and company representatives said Friday they reached agreement less than three weeks before the damage suit was to be heard before Justice George Murray.

The company had claimed $1.3 million in damages from the union in a Supreme Court action launched following the 18-day illegal strike by union members at Alcan's Kitimat smelter in June, 1976.

Damages were also claimed from the union business agent Peter Burton, president Wilf Papenbrock and executive member Jim Brisebois.

Under the terms of the proposed settlement, the union agrees to pay $135,000. The first payment of $7,000 would be made Sept. 9 and the remainder in $3,500 monthly instalments.

The union further agrees that the payments will never be the subject of contract negotiations and that the company has the right to reinstitute a damage suit or submit a claim for $275,000, less any money that has been paid., if the union breaches the agreement.

Alcan agrees to drop its appeal of a supreme court decision dismissing contempt of court charges against a B.C. Labor Relations Board ruling which resulted in many union members having to guarantee repayment of several weeks' wages to the company.

The Union has also agreed to issue a statement acknowledging that it "engaged in an illegal strike contrary to the collective agreement and the labor code and also decisions and orders of the B.C. Labor Relations Board and the B.C. Supreme Court."

In the statement, the union also pledges to solve future differences "through established procedures."

The $135,000 settlement, if ratified, is believed to be one of the largest amounts ever to be paid to an employer by a trade union in B.C.

LONDON AIRPORTS 'BURST AT SEAMS'

LONDON (AP) — "We are bursting at the seams," an exasperated official at Heathrow Airport said today as thousands of delayed travellers jammed bars and buffets in three terminals here.

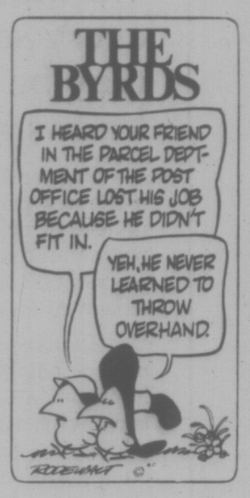
At the height of the summer getaway, flights to North American and European points were running hours behind schedule because of a job action by air traffic controllers demanding higher pay.

Refusing to use flight log computers, the controllers were recording each flight by hand in a process that slowed air traffic in and out of Heathrow, the world's busiest airport outside of the United States.

"It certainly looks as though we are in for a very bad weekend," said a spokesman for British Airways, which cancelled 36 of its 160 flights.

The British Airports Authority said service to New York, Boston, Montreal and Tehran would be "badly hit" today as well as flights to most European cities. Even a move lifting night-time restrictions on flights did not relieve the backlog.

Airport officials estimated that about 100,000 passengers travelling through Heathrow were delayed on Friday.



Clark, MPs Plan Test in Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Six Progressive Conservative MPs, including party leader Joe Clark, have ordered a Toronto lawyer to test in court the validity of a cabinet order they say prevents them from discussing details of a uranium cartel.

The party says that under the terms of a cabinet order passed last fall, details of the cartel in which the government admits it participated cannot be discussed.

Sinclair Stevens, the PC finance critic, said Thursday that federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie had been given until 4 p.m. EDT Friday to grant them permission to discuss the cartel information.

But a spokesman for Gillespie said Thursday the minister is on vacation until next week and his office was awaiting advice from the federal justice department before replying.

Stevens said Friday that the Conservatives have instructed John Sopinka, Toronto lawyer, to test the validity of "this offensive regulation" in court.

At issue is a move by the federal government to join a uranium cartel in the early 1970s that it says was needed to prevent the collapse of the domestic uranium mining industry.

The Conservatives say they want their lawyer to determine whether the cartel activities contravened Canadian combines legislation by increasing the price of uranium to domestic users.

B.C. Weeds Fouling U.S. Clean-Up

KELOWNA (CP) — Eurasian milfoil weed drifting south from the Canadian portion of Osoyoos Lake, about 60 miles south of here, is hurting a successful herbicide program to control the pest on the United States side, the head of the American program said Friday.

Dick Thayer, weed control program head for Washington State's ecology department, said in a telephone interview that both countries are trying to co-ordinate a fight against the weed despite longer delays facing British Columbia officials before they can use herbicide.

Thayer said response to the program in Washington State has been excellent, with local governments co-operating fully.

Ontario Cities Lead Income Parade

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Ontario cities registered the highest average incomes in 1975 among 100 selected cities, according to statistics released Friday by the federal revenue department.

Oakville, with a Ford Motor Co. plant and midway between Toronto and Hamilton, led the list with an average income estimated from personal income tax statistics of $11,714 a year.

Burlington, a suburb of the steel-manufacturing city of Hamilton, was second with an average income of $11,527.

Both cities overtook the iron ore port town of Sept Iles, Que., which in 1974 had the highest average income. Sept Iles was third in 1975 with $11,191.

The figures also show that on average male incomes during the 1971-75 period increased marginally faster than female incomes.

Between those years, overall incomes rose by 77.4 per cent. Male incomes rose by 77.6 per cent and female incomes climbed by 77 per cent.

The average incomes for cities are determined for the first time in 1975 from the total income reported by all taxpayers.

The towns on the selected list published by the department all had populations of more than 12,000 but the department said the figures do not necessarily represent communities with the highest average incomes in the country.

Brossard, a Montreal suburb, was fourth with $10,956; Mississauga, near Toronto, fifth at $10,838; Prince George, a forest mill town, sixth at $10,634; Bramalea, Ont., a Toronto suburb, at $10,510; Alberni, B.C., a lumber mill town at $10,345; Ottawa, at $10,287, was ninth and Sarnia, a refinery town, was 10th at $10,286.

Vancouver was 12th at $10,233, Toronto was 26th at $9,638 and Montreal 31st at $9,531.

Last on the list was Cornwall, Ont., with an average income of $7,390.

VAULT VICTIM SUES

VANCOUVER (CP) — A post office clerk launched a British Columbia Supreme Court action Friday against the owners of Vancouver Safety Deposit Vaults to recover $150,000 he says was stolen during a break-in last January.

Derek Dempster and Margaret and Russell Dempster say they lost a $146,000 coin collection and $4,000 worth of antique gold in the burglary.

They were among the 1,225 victims when burglars broke into the vault Jan. 8 and looted almost an entire wall of safety deposit boxes.

Police recovered nine suitcases containing an estimated $1.5 million worth of cash, gold, jewels and coins at Vancouver International Airport on Jan. 10.

The thieves broke into the rear of the building and drilled through 24 inches of concrete and 3½ inches of steel to get into the vault.

No Mutiny—Just Two Sullen Brawlers

KODIAK (AP) — Alaska state troopers boarded a foreign freighter here Friday prepared to subdue armed mutineers, but found only two sullen brawlers safely locked away in a cabin.

"There was no mutiny," said Colonel Pat Wellington, commander of the state police force. "There were no guns and knives. We don't know why the captain made the claim in his radio dispatches, but it wasn't true."

Based on interviews with the Hong Kong captain and members of the crew of the Panamanian-registered freighter Primrose, Wellington said troopers pieced together a story much less dramatic than orginally reported.

Wellington said troopers were told that two crew members attacked two others last Wednesday on the third day of a trip from Port Angeles to Japan with a cargo of logs. The captain then locked the two troublemakers in a cabin.

"That's all there was to it," Wellington said. "He (the captain) decided to detour to Kodiak because he wants the company to take the two individuals off the vessel and transport them by air back to Hong Kong."

Wellington said bad weather prevented an agent of the owner of the vessel, Region Shipping Ltd. of Hong Kong, to fly to Kodiak from Anchorage Friday and a decision on what to do with the two men probably would not be made before today.

Wellington said one of the injured crew members was taken to a Kodiak hospital with a possible dislocated shoulder, but the other man hurt in the attack did not require hospital treatment.

Names of the ship's captain or the crew members involved were not known, Wellington said.

Wellington said no effort was made to find out why the captain issued his frantic radio call for help Wednesday, and added that he really didn't care.

He said the Primose was anchored about a half-mile off of this island city north of the Aleutian chain, and would not come into port.

First word of trouble aboard the vessel came Wednesday afternoon in a terse message for help from the captain of the Primrose. The message said: "Regret crew serious trouble — with weapons — out of control — please assist."

The coast guard immediately sent a C-130 aircraft to confirm the ship's position, but four hours later, the captain radioed that the mutiny was under control.

Closest vessel to the scene, about 400 miles southwest of here, was the Canadian weather ship Quadra, which went to the aid of the Primrose and gave medical attention to the injured crew members.

Initial plans called for the Quadra to escort the Primrose into port, but the Canadian vessel returned to patrol when the captain of the freighter decided he could make the emergency detour to Kodiak without protection.

RED TAPE CLIPS MEDICAL WINGS

PLYMOUTH, England (UPI) — "Bureaucratic red tape" has temporarily clipped the wings of a new pigeon post service designed to deliver urgent medical specimens to hospital laboratories, but the program's director has predicted it will take off again this fall.

"The thing is set up now, the birds are in training. But it will be two or three months before it's in operation," said Tony Furneaux, pigeon-fancier and sector administrator of the Plymouth health authority.

"We had planned to have the service in operation in August, but we had to cut through various bureaucratic red tape — like fire permits, building permits and so on," he sad.

The pigeon post service was born last spring as an answer to soaring taxi prices and traffic jams.

Clinic Busy

The Red Cross collected 178 pints at Eaton's. The best previous drive at that location brought in 135 units, clinic coordinator Gerry Savage said.

Thursday's drive at the Esquimalt Lions centre turned out 97 donors. Savage said some of the Lions organizers were disappointed, but he added "in summer when things are so slow, even 97 looks good."

He was pleased with the Friday turnout, however. It was well over the hoped-for goal of 150, and the total more than meets the minimum goal set for the week-long clinics, he said.

Last August, for example, 693 pints were collected in Greater Victoria.

N-Material for Israel?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators of the U.S. House of Representatives are trying to determine whether weapons-grade uranium unaccounted for at an Apollo, Pa., processing plant was diverted to Israel as the CIA is reported to believe.

A congressional source said Friday the CIA has "really overwhelming" circumstantial evidence that the nuclear material went to Israel, but can't prove it in a court of law.

The Israeli government denies knowledge of a diversion, and two government agencies remain confident that none of the material was taken.

An official of Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) says his agency stands by a 1966 government finding that no nuclear material was taken from the Apollo plant or any similar facility. The stand is backed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC).

But officials from both ERDA and the NRC concede the Apollo plant has been unable to trace 381 pounds of enriched uranium found to be unaccounted for in 1965.

The House investigations are being conducted by two committees, one headed by Representative Morris Udall (Dem., Ariz.) and the other by Representative John Dingell (Dem., Mich.). In addition to trying the learn whether material was diverted, the investigators want to know whether the U.S. government might have been involved.

The CIA is reported to have reached its conclusion after investigating relationships and activities involving the plant, the congressional source said. The source said the spy agency's evidence includes patterns of travel to Israel by officers and employees of the company that operated the Apollo plant at the time, plus a corporate connection to an Israeli firm.

The CIA said last year that Israel has the capability to make nuclear weapons. The source said CIA investigators indicate they were led to the Pennsylvania company by searching for the most-likely source of Israel's weapons material.

The Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corp., which operated the plant at Apollo in 1963, has said it believes the material that is unaccounted for was lost in pipes and refuse during several years.

Members of both houses of Congress called for hearings earlier this month when federal officials conceded for the first time that an estimated 8,437 pounds of uranium and plutonium destined for construction of atomic weapons has disappeared since the Second World War.

The officials said at the time there is no evidence of theft or of a black market of the material.

Help us help Senior Citizens

We want to make sure that every senior citizen who may be eligible for SAFER knows about it.

Shelter Aid For Elderly Renters (SAFER) is the new programme that gives senior citizens in need direct cash payments to assist in the payment of rent. The amount of the SAFER payment is based on how much income the senior citizen receives, and how much is paid for rent.

To make sure that every senior citizen who may be eligible knows about SAFER, information cards were recently sent to ALL senior citizens in the Province. Those who may be eligible were asked to return the card to receive an application form.

Many requests for application forms have now been received by SAFER. But we want to make sure that no senior citizen who may be eligible is missing out on the assistance he or she is entitled to.

If you're a senior citizen who may be eligible, make sure you have applied. Or, if you know any senior citizens who qualify, please help us help them by making sure they apply.

ELIGIBILITY

All senior citizens who meet EACH of the following conditions are eligible:

- they are 65 years or older.
- they are renters.
- they are paying more than 30% of income for rent.
- they are in receipt of Canadian Old Age Security.
- the senior citizen OR spouse has:
  - i) lived in British Columbia for two years immediately prior to application. OR
  - ii) resided in British Columbia for a continuous five year period at any time.

To make it as easy as possible, all Chartered Banks, Trust Companies and Credit Unions in the Province have information and additional application forms available. And, if any assistance is required in filling out the form they'll be happy to help. Information, application forms and assistance are also available at the B.C. Housing Management Commission in Vancouver, and at the regional offices of the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing in Victoria, Prince George, Kelowna, and Cranbrook.

Groucho Marx Dies at 86: 'It's an End of an Era'

By ROGER GILLOTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Groucho Marx, whose duck walk and flick of a cigar combined with an irreverent wit to make him the most famous of a zany team of comedians, is dead of pneumonia at age 86.

The bushy-eyebrowed moustachioed Groucho, who recently was the centre of a bitter court battle over who should be his guardian, died at 7:25 p.m. PDT (10 p.m. EDT) Friday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Centre. First word of the death was withheld for 50 minutes, giving the family time to slip out of the hospital and into seclusion.

"I guess you could call this an end of an era," said Erin Fleming, longtime companion to Groucho, who practised his chaotic brand of slapstick comedy for more than 65 years in vaudeville, films, radio and television. "But I don't believe Groucho will ever leave us. He's too impudent."

Miss Fleming, who said Groucho had proposed to her several times, added that he was "a very, very strong man with a great will, but the pneumonia simply overtook him because of his age."

"He didn't suffer, he just fell asleep."

Earlier in the day, Miss Fleming had told The Associated Press by telephone: "Groucho's just having a nice little dream now. He's just going to have a nap and rest his eyes for the next several centuries."

With Groucho when he died were his son, Arthur, daughter-in-law, Lois, and grandson, Andrew, Miss Fleming, a native of New Liskeard, Ont., left about 15 minutes earlier.

He had been in hospital with pneumonitis since June 22, re-entering Cedars-Sinai only one day after he had been released following his recovery from hip surgery.

Officials said pneumonitis is a normally mild form of pneumonia, but was fatal to Groucho because of his advanced age and weakened physical condition.

Groucho had lingered in "fair" condition for weeks, until Wednesday when his vital signs became erratic, a hospital spokesman said. The comedian's condition worsened early Friday when he began losing consciousness and had to be administered oxygen and fed intravenously.

His early comedy years were spent with the family, the five Marx brothers. With Groucho's death, only Zeppo, 74, is still alive. The least known brother, Gummo, died this year. Chico died in 1961 and Harpo in 1964.

In recent years, a new era of affection for Groucho and the Marx Brothers emerged, spawned by television reruns of their films, the You Bet Your Life game show and live theatre revivals.

On May 6, 1972, Groucho embarked on what was to be a series of concerts. An Evening of Groucho at Carnegie Hall in New York that first night was sold out the day after it was announced. More than 3,500 youths—many dressed as the various Marx Brothers—were turned away from the theatre.

It was the 37-year-old Miss Fleming who brought Groucho out of retirement for the Carnegie Hall appearance, and friends credited her with keeping him alive by her stimulating influence.

Friends also said Groucho was never aware in his last few months that his name was in the headlines during the court fight over who should be named guardian of his $2.8-million estate.

The struggle was between Miss Fleming, a former actress who was hired as Groucho's secretary in 1970 and had been his almost constant companion since, and Arthur Marx, 56, the comedian's only son.

However, Arthur Marx pictured Miss Fleming as Groucho's grim tormentor, who latched onto Groucho for his money. Other witnesses said she badgered him with insults and curses.

Groucho, whose given name was Julius, was born Oct. 2, 1890, in New York City, the son of Jewish immigrants.

Groucho was the third of five sons. His brothers were, in order of birth: Leonard (Chico), Arthur (Harpo), Milton (Gummo), and Herbert (Zeppo).

The brothers never considered themselves a comedy act until one day in Nacogdoches, Tex., when a runaway mule started a minor riot outside the theatre and caused most of the audience to leave.

The brothers' first movie was a film version of The Cocoanuts in 1929. Animal Crackers was next, followed by Monkey Business, Horse Feathers, Duck Soup, A Night at the Opera and A Day at the Races.

Groucho and his first wife, now Ruth Garrity, were divorced in 1943 after a 22-year marriage.

Groucho was divorced from his third wife, Eden, in 1968 and was ordered to pay a $1-million settlement.

Traffic Smashes Decline 50%

VANCOUVER (CP) — The number of fatal accidents, injuries and impaired driving charges in British Columbia is decreasing, despite a record heat wave which has sent beer sales soaring by as much as 25 per cent.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom attributes the decrease partly to Operation Counter-attack, a program implemented May 30 which includes increased weekend roadblocks and public information campaigns.

The monthly total of persons killed in B.C. doubled from January 1977 to May 1977 and in June, the first month of Gardom's program, the figure dropped by almost 50 per cent. About 70 per cent of all fatal motor vehicle accidents in the province involve liquor.

Impaired driving charges by Vancouver area RCMP were down 18 per cent in June from April and May, while impaired driving charges by Vancouver police are down 10 per cent so far this year from the same period last year.

Dr. John Hogarth, chairman of the B.C. Police Commission, said the decreases could be the result of dozens of factors — including simple changes in the way statistics are gathered and police reports are made.

He said studies in Britain show increased publicity campaigns and stepped-up patrols of beer parlors reduced the number of drinking drivers for only a few months.

Why Hershey Bars and Not B-2?

One of the better political slogans of recent years was the one adopted by booksellers who wanted the B.C. sales tax removed from books. "Why Playboy but not Plato?" they asked. Magazines were exempted one year from the tax, but the government had maintained it on books. After the booksellers' campaign, the tax was removed from their product as well. Today you can buy either paperback philosophy of softcore pornography and not have to contribute seven per cent to the provincial treasury. It's only fitting.

Conservative leader Scott Wallace has publicized a similar anomaly which exists today. Chocolate bars, potato chips and soft drinks are sold tax exempt (as food items) but non-prescription drugs such as aspirin, vitamins, antacids which are essential for many people are taxed.

Someone who has to spend $100 a month for the megavitamin doses required to fight debilitating diseases such as multiple sclerosis or myasthenia gravis, which have no known cure, has to spend another $7 for the sales tax. It is a considerable additional payment for someone who is probably on a very limited income.

As Dr. Wallace pointed out, it is very unfair that "junk foods" which do nothing to promote health are exempt while vitamins and mineral supplements which most definitely do are taxed.

Removing the sales tax from these items too is the least the government can do, since it now refuses to allow them under pharmacare.

Bang, Bang

Two years ago, some wild and woolly rumors began to circulate about the NDP administration then in its last months of governing British Columbia. The socialists were going to confiscate all private automobiles, was one of the crazier ones.

Another was the formation of a secret police force, supposedly to assist a coup d'etat. That twisted story originated in the perfectly sensible establishment of a new corps of sheriff's officers to escort prisoners between jail and the courts, freeing police for more important duties.

Naturally, purchases of sidearms and ammunition to equip the men were made by the government. This fact was interpreted by the far-out fringe of the political opposition to the NDP as only a step away from armed insurrection. "Barrett's brownshirts", was one of the less inflammatory tags pasted on the new prisoner escort service.

The NDP is a mite touchy about the whole story. Scandalous and titillating as it was, it probably had very little to do with the party's electoral defeat. But memories linger on, especially when one who made the most hay out of the silly thing — Grace McCarthy — now sits in the legislature as provincial secretary, directly across the floor from ex-premier Dave Barrett.

The NDP saw a delicious opening for revenge this week when it discovered that, lo and behold, the Social Credit administration of Mrs. McCarthy had bought and stockpiled a million rounds of ammunition. (True, but they're only .22 practice rounds, for various B.C. police forces.)

For what extracurricular activities, the opposition wondered aloud in question period in the legislature? A private police force perhaps? But instead of playing it ironically, to embarrass the authors of the original crazy story, the NDP kept a straight face and attacked the provincial secretary with all the finesse of a man with a .44 magnum.

They made the same mistake she did — taking seriously the obviously unthinkable — and came off looking almost as ridiculous as did Mrs. McCarthy in 1975, spouting about secret police.

It only proves that politicians never forget and never forgive; they just wait to get even.

Cold Enough?

"At our American scientific bases in the Antarctic the long winter night began April 22; it would end August 22. During this period the sun never rises for our seventy-three men at Little America and ninety-three at McMurdo Sound. Outside the buildings the winds howl with blizzard force and temperatures drop to 78 degrees below zero. But there are many days of good weather, too, when the sky is clear, the winds light, and temperatures rise to 12 degree below. On clear days the stars stand out so brilliantly you feel you could pluck them from the sky."—Operation Deepfreeze, Rear Admiral George J. Dufek, 1957.

Community Participation: A Design for Failure

Community participation is one of the new "in" phrases in government and bureaucratic circles these days. In theory, at least, every politician and official agrees that communities (however that word may be defined) should be, at least in part, responsible for working out solutions to their own problems, that the government shouldn't do absolutely everything for its citizens, and that there is an ever-growing role for volunteers and ordinary citizens to play in their neighborhoods and cities.

In practice, of course, it often works out a little differently. The politicians and the officials are frequently unwilling to provide the citizen with enough information to permit him to do anything worthwhile. Governments suddenly become much less fond of involved citizens when those citizens decide to oppose vigorously the policies of the government. And worst of all, the vast majority of citizens takes a highly cynical and skeptical view of the whole "community participation" process, many of them being convinced that this is some giant plot by the government to pass the buck on all sorts of difficult problems while making sure it still will get full political credit for anything that goes right.

Against this background, the federal solicitor-general's ministry commissioned two researchers to do a quick (six week) study into community participation in one specific area — the criminal justice system. The result is one of the most interesting reports to come out of Ottawa in years.

The study was based on a set of premises: that the criminal justice system is gradually becoming severely overloaded, that as a result of this and other problems in it, it will soon become a target for sustained public attack, and that perhaps the community participation theory could (or ought to) improve the situation.

The researchers found that indeed the justice system is becoming overloaded for a variety of reasons — administrative weaknesses, the increasing number of offences being created by various governments, and the growing tendency for citizens to use the legal process as the solution to all their problems. The difficulty does not necessarily have its base in the justice system but in society as a whole, they suggest.

"Every deviance from the dominant view of reality is seen to constitute a social problem, requiring a service delivery system to deal with it . . . (but) as the processes of institutional growth and institutionalized decision-making go on, institutions become less responsive to the needs of the human communities they purport to serve; the genesis of such human purposes tends to disappear from view and to be replaced by a concern to keep the institutional machinery going."

It is against this background that community participation has been begun, but the researchers say that so far "the experience with citizen participation has on the whole been disastrous both for the citizen participants and for those within the institutions." Instead of providing real community input, the experiments so far have only taught the citizens "how to be participants in bureaucratic processes and institutionally-defined concerns."

The result is that the citizens are allowed only to tinker on the edges of the system, to play around with minor reforms. They are never allowed to deal with the basic questions facing the justice system — questions, for example, of what should be considered crimes in the first place, whether a different forum should be set up to deal with many of the so-called minor offences, whether efforts should be made to reduce some of the institutional causes of crime (displays in stores that might encourage shoplifting, for instance).

Because of this, the researchers can see this sort of public participation as leading to nothing more than greater discouragement and cynicism on the part of the citizens. "Time and again, invitations extended to citizens to participate in systems and processes which were never really theirs in the first place have succeeded only in raising the level of societal frustration."

In the paper, the researchers apply their theory only to the justice system. But it seems to make abundantly good sense in many other contexts. There are, for example, ecology groups that are given government funds to take part in government hearings on government-defined environmental issues but are never encouraged to ask basic questions about such matters as the need for new dams or energy installations. There are various community-based social service groups that are encouraged (and funded) to provide a few extra services not available from the government but who have their funding cut off as soon as they are defined by the government as "advocacy groups."

The researchers produce what they think is the answer to the problems of community participation: "There can be no citizen participation without citizen control, no community responsibility without community control." This control, they emphasize, must extend to the definition of issues to be considered and to the basic questions to be asked.

But it is unlikely politicians and officials would at the moment be willing to cede that much control to us ordinary, non-professional citizens.

The researchers note that they found one experiment where that control really was delegated to the community. It happened in B.C. and it was the establishment of community resource boards.

When it comes to that sort of crunch, the politicians don't even pretend any more that they like the idea of community participation. — B. McL.

Press Council in Action

LONDON — A British newspaper was hauled on the carpet this summer and charged with faking a picture of Margaret Trudeau and Ronnie Wood of the Rolling Stones.

The humor magazine Punch was accused of slandering president Jimmy Carter and his family in a weekly series of "Letters from Miz Lillian."

The leading Evening Post was knocked for using the word "sacked" for which the Canadian translation is fired (Instead of "redundant", for which there really isn't an adequate translation).

These are four cases which came before the British Press Council this summer, while Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was musing about press discipline in Canada.

The Press Council is a self-disciplinary body with no statutory powers of enforcement but it has acquired a certain institutional power during its 30 years in operation.

The council sometimes initiates complaints against how the press handles stories but more frequently reacts to public complaints.

One such complaint came from a man in Guildford last month. The Daily Express had published the picture of Mrs. Trudeau with stories inferring a close relationship with one or more of the Stones stars. But it was not the stories that drew the complaint, which was that two separate photographs had been used to make it appear that Mrs. Trudeau and Wood were together in Toronto.

Press Discipline

In fact it was one picture from which a large expanse of greyness between the two figures had been removed, bringing them closer together.

A pretty picayune matter. So was the complaint of the outraged Edinburgh librarian who sprang to the defence of the Carter family. The weekly column written by Alan Coren in southern dialect consumed a two-hour hearing of the Press Council complaints committee, some 20 minutes of which was filmed and shown on British television.

This was the first public insight into how the press council operates and it was a direct response to recommendations of a recent royal commission.

The commission, headed by professor Oliver McGregor of London University, also recommended a national code of ethics and equality of lay and professional membership on the council. At present there are 20 professionals and 10 lay members.

Some of the criticisms of the council have been that it is "middle class" and that it defends the press.

Being branded "middle class" in socialist Britain is a more serious allegation than Canadians might think. In essence it means elitist. The "upper class" is respected and the "working class" is revered; but the people in the middle are targets from both sides.

The editorial director of the company publishing the sensational Sunday News of The World, Larry Lamb, who has had his share of hearings before the council, regards it more as an "anti-press council" which will go out of its way to tilt against the newspapers—an example: It does "not uphold" complaints rather than rejecting them. Actually he just survived a complaint alleging that an article attacking a convicted murderess led to a prison assault on her.

Lamb also questions a proposal by McGregor that the press carry in full the verdicts of the press council, giving them equal prominence to the original story.

"They are usually a great deal longer than the original story," he says. That is because most stories in the News Of The World are less than 800 words.

McGregor says he rejected the idea of sanctions against offending publishers. "We opted wholly for self-discipline." But he now fears there has been a disappointing response from the press which he had hoped would provide some suggestions about compliance.

A similar allegation against British television has just been made by a commission on broadcasting headed by Lord Annan. There are, the commission says, not enough working class heroes on the screen.

"Middle class characters occurred in 58 per cent of programs and 76 per cent of them were significant to the plot," the commission says darkly.

The head of the Press Council is Lord Shawcross, a former Labor government attorney-general who has become a critic of the left since his elevation. He took personally and bitterly some of the findings of the McGregor commission, which he described as "snide."

The Labor Party and trade union movement expressed their lack of confidence in the impartiality of the council during commission hearings.

The press council rejected the complaint about Mrs. Trudeau, deciding that the picture with Ronnie Wood was only "a slight distortion."

The council also found in favor of Punch, sort of; it said the complaint was "not upheld" rather than rejected, and it added gratuitous comment that Alan Coren's "lettuhs" were pretentious and unpleasant.

Lord Shawcross offered the opinion that Punch, although said to be aimed at more sophisticated readers was found in one-twentieth of British dentists' waiting rooms and therefore exposed to a cross-section of the community who might, by implication, be corrupted.

The Coventry paper was found "guilty" of invasion of privacy because it took pictures without permission by using the foot-in-the-door technique. The reaction of the editor, Keith Whetstone, was interesting:

Not Upheld

"It's going to be read out to me all over Coventry for the next few weeks. It is very unlikely we are going to be brought before the council for a similar offence."

The poor Reading Evening Post was chastised for its headline Council Chief Sacked, which the Press Council found "emotive and inappropriate," because the man in question had lost his job when it was abolished and he had therefore been made "redundant."

Such are some of the recent activities of the Press Council. Despite the investigations of a royal commission, it seems unlikely that the process will be much changed. The real problems of the press in Britain at the moment are more in the fields of technological development—the acceptance of new electronic equipment—and in labor relations—virtually continuous strife which is often linked to the former.

Poet's Memory

The memory of Robert Service lives on in Kilwinning, Ayrshire, Scotland. Born in Preston, England, Service lived in Kilwinning with his grandfather postmaster and later with three aunts. He left here to begin his banking career in Glasgow. David Savage, now over 80, is an ex-railroader and former councillor, and was the driving force behind the unveiling of a plaque in September, 1976, on the Bank of Scotland building. This plaque honors Service's residence and early banking career.

Mr. Savage served in the 1914-18 was, and following the purchase of an early issue of Service's poems in 1920, has had a continuing interest in all his works.

Present at the unveiling ceremony, which was televised by the BBC, were Madame Davis, daughter of Robert and Germaine, and her two daughters who, incidentally, were here in Victoria last August for the issuing of a stamp honoring Mr. Service and the discovery of gold near Dawson City, Yukon.

The continued interest of Mr. Savage in his hometown will hopefully result in the naming of a proposed senior citizens housing development in Kilwinning "The Robert Service Court."

Mr. and Mrs. Savage are celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary this year, and would be delighted to see this recognition printed in a Canadian newspaper.

Peter L. Scott, 1215 Burnside Road West.

Work for Seniors

One way to make a start toward long overdue right-to-work laws would be for senior citizens to demand — and get — the right to elect to perform useful work up to the number of hours per month equivalent to the old-age pension at the minimum legal wage.

Where Canada Manpower is unable to find part-time work suitable to the individual's capabilities and training, then it would be found in either federal, provincial, or local government fields of public service.

No union membership would be required or allowed for such senior voluntary workers. In case of strikes in essential services, we would find out whether today's younger set on the picket lines are decadent enough to offer violence to their parents and grandparents. — V. E. Sevesty, Sheppard Road, R.R. 2, Cobble Hill.

Cantankerous

I read, first with dismay and incredulity, the cantankerous and sarcastic attack in the Aug. 16 lead editorial in your paper on the appointment of Helen Beirnes to lead Grace McCarthy's hospitality certificate class. A tenuous parallel was drawn with the recent Smile button campaign which the writer termed condescending. Possibly the smiles of newspaper editors are condescending, either from effort or practice, but I like to think that we other mortals can produce a smile which is warm, genuine, and, in most cases, pleasantly returned.

Mrs. Beirnes' biography was briefly covered, again with overtones of sarcasm. Her achievements, which I feel are not inconsiderable, seem to me to equip her remarkably well for her new and important task. In a brief television interview which I witnessed Mrs. Beirnes appears to have a very ready grasp of the challenge she faces — that of encouraging tourist operation employees to approach their jobs with professionalism, pride and cheerfulness rather than as tedious interludes between periods of collecting unemployment insurance.

There were again vague and unsubstantiated forecasts as to the cost of these classes to the taxpayer. The simplest arithmetic will readily show that a healthy tourist industry makes a substantial contribution to municipal, provincial and federal tax coffers. I even suggest that the editorial writer might one evening sit down and calculate the advertisign revenue received that day by the Times paid for by Victoria tourist operations.

I am not connected in any way with the tourist industry in Victoria but, for one, wish Mrs. Beirnes well in her new task, and stand ready to give her any assistance.

Finally, it seems to me, somewhat ironically, that the tone of the editorial suggests that the writer is a natural candidate for early enrolment in the class. In view of the concern expressed for the taxpayer I hereby cheerfully and with an uncondescending smile, undertake to defray the expense myself.—Eoin B. Ruthven, 1110-1175 Douglas Street.

Apology Sincere

As concerned members of the Spectrum Student Council executive of 1976-77 we would like to thank you for printing the apology of Dr. Scott Wallace concerning his previous remarks about the running of certain programs in our curriculum.

We feel his comments were grossly out of place and totally unjustifiable and we were pleased to find his apology apparently sincere and promptly furnished.

Unreliable sources of information have once again caused a great deal of unnecessary hassle.

Thank you. — Spectrum Student Council Executive.

'At Top Form He Had No Equal'

By JOHN RUSSELL

ANTWERP, Belgium — Rubens has one of the great unalterable reputations. As painter, draftsman, decorator and diplomat, he was regarded during his lifetime as one of the most remarkable men who ever lived, and for once posterity has, if anything, reinforced that judgment. No negotiation could be called hopeless while Rubens was engaged upon it. No one could touch him when it came to the ennoblement in paint of thoughts that in themselves were quite commonplace: "Hurry back!" for one and "Look What I Shot Today!" for another. And when it came to an allegorical scheme that looked to be half as long as a city block, it often seemed as if Jupiter himself had come down the chimney and insisted on guiding the brush. Rubens at top form had no equal.

In life, Rubens was the complete cosmopolitan. He was prized in Rome and Mantua, adulated in Paris and Madrid, and knighted in London. Everyone's idea of bliss was to get hold of Rubens and persuade him to stick around forever.

But fundamentally he belonged to Antwerp. His parents came from here. Both his wives camè from here. He studied painting here. He owned property here, and he left his mark on the city in ways that are still visible today.

So it is only fair that although the 400th anniversary of the birth of Rubens in 1577 will be celebrated the world over, it is Antwerp that has pride of place. The Royal Museum of Fine Arts in Antwerp has its own superfine paintings by Rubens, notably the Prodigan Son and the Venus Frigida. It is within a short walk of the cathedral that houses the grandest of all the master's altarpieces and within a hardly longer walk of the church in which he is buried.

His own house is still there for us to go and see. Thanks to the exemplary thoroughness of his compatriots this summer, we can also study the books he illustrated, listen to the music that he heard in Mantua, look at the medical instruments that he knew first-hand and come away with an idea of the state of legal studies, marksmanship and the diamond industry as they existed during his lifetime. Not even the quincentenary of Durer was more comprehensively celebrated when it was centred in Nuremberg, West Germany, not long ago.

Rubens the man is very much present to us by the time we leave Antwerp. We cannot even eye the fruit in the stores without remembering how Rubens watched over the pears and the figs in his garden and asked after them when he was away. Rubens the influence is omnipresent also — above all, perhaps, in the decoration of the church of St. Charles Borromeus that was begun when Rubens was in his 40's.

But fundamentally it is Rubens the painter and draftsman whom we have come to see. In more easygoing times and on an occasion of this kind, only the very best would have done and the very best would have been available. London would have sent the Chateau de Steen, Vienna would have sent the late self-portrait, Madrid would have sent the Judgment of Paris, and the Queen of England would have sent St. George and the Dragon. But that is not how things are done today. By and large we think that great paintings should stay where they are; and by and large we are right.

It is the great merit of the present exhibition — which will be on view through Sept. 30 — that where it cannot set before us the outright masterpieces that are known to us already, it has in almost every case an intelligent backup. Quite obviously we cannot have the ceiling from Whitehall in London or the 24 scenes from the life of Marie de Medici, which are among the glories of the Louvre; but in the case of these great projects we have oil sketches that allow us to look over Ruben's shoulder as he wonders just what to do about them. And if we cannot have the late self-portrait from Vienna we have the drawing for it from the Louvre which has, if anything, an almost greater immediacy.

Self-portrait of Rubens when he was about 60

If these examples suggest a certain lack of monumentality, it should be said that this is offset by more than one very substantial loan from a major American museum. Instances of these are the David and Abigail from Detroit and the Metropolitan's Holy Family with St. Francis. And as Rubens was both the most uxorious of all the great European painters and the most fortunate in his domestic affairs, the portrait of his first wife, loaned from the Cleveland museum, also has an important part to play in the show.

These trans-Atlantic loans are balanced by more than one inspired foray behind the Iron Curtain. Rare must be the American enthusiast who has been to Poznan in Poland to see the seraphic drawing for the Flight Into Egypt. Dresden, Leipzig, Potsdam and Leningrad have all proved to be generous lenders in the same context.

In this way we become conscious all over again of Rubens as one of the great pivotal figures in the history of painting. He is immensely and untiringly attentive to the art of the past: We can see in Antwerp how hard he looked at antique sculpture, at Michelangelo, Titian and Tintoretto, and at his near contemporary, Caravaggio. His drawing after Leonardo's Battle of Anghiari is one of the most commanding things in the show.

Legalized Pot 'Big Mistake'

By NORMAN PANZICA

(Panzica is senior consultant to the Council on Drug Abuse in Ontario. He wrote this for the Toronto Star)

Few issues spark as much uninformed and inadequately considered opinion as the possible legalization of marijuana. Even sincere and intelligent proponents hold forth without bothering to learn the facts.

My concern is that the act of legalizing would promote and encourage the use of this dangerous drug by exactly those who should never touch it.

It's absolutely impossible to legalize marijuana without implicity — and mistakenly — declaring it harmless.

Scientists at the Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario have repeatedly held that as any substance is made more available, the number of persons getting into trouble with it increases significantly. The lowered drinking age proves that. Since that change in Ontario, the number of persons aged 16 to 30 who die on the highways has tripled.

And what's wrong with more use?

There's absolutely no justification for promoting the non-medical use of any mind-affecting drug.

Even the LeDain Commission, with its soft line, warned that marijuana seriously interferes with psychic maturation — the process of growing up — as well as with school and work performance. Federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde has warned that marijuana is a "much more dangerous drug than was thought" at the time of the Le Dain report.

* * *

It definitely impairs time and space perception before the user feels high. The dangerous implications for operating machines like cars or punch presses in factories are obvious.

Clearly, alcohol causes more human suffering in Canada than any other drug.

But the basic fallacy in any comparison between alcohol and marijuana is dosage effect. While alcohol is far too often used as as an intoxicant, most Canadians who drink don't get stoned or high, and don't want to.

But there is simply nothing one can do with marijuana except get stoned or high. I've never met anybody who smoked marijuana because it tastes good.

As the American Medical Association put it, "When advocates of legalizing marijuana claim it is less harmful than alcohol, they are comparing the effects of marijuana at the lower end of the dosage-response curve with the effects of alcohol at the toxicity end . . ."

While there is no certainty that marijuana leads to the use of other drugs, almost every user I've had contact with used other drugs as well. Once one accepts the notion that getting stoned is good, then the acceptability of other highs increases, partly because we all modify our pleasures.

* * *

The American Psychiatric Association has said that since cannabis "contributes significantly to a disregard for the realistic consequences of behavior, its use increases the probability of the abuse of other, more dangerous drugs."

And the absence of hangovers is one of its primary dangers, because the drug is thereby seductive: it convinces the person that he can handle grass or any other drug.

The issue really is whether we want more use of intoxicants or less. Surely we have enough problems now with alcohol and tranquillizers. Legal grass won't end alcoholism.

Some people support legalization because physical harm — except for traffic accidents — hasn't been finally proven. Several hundred research papers suggest a real danger of many kinds of harm — and there are still people who don't believe cigarettes cause lung cancer.

Surely it's irrational to suggest that we open the floodgates because we don't know enough yet, or because the dangers of use have not been clearly demonstrated.
not been clearly demonstrated.

Funny — that's what Canada said about thalidomide when it was approved for sale.

Israel's New PM Reflects Changing Country

By FLORA LEWIS
New York Times

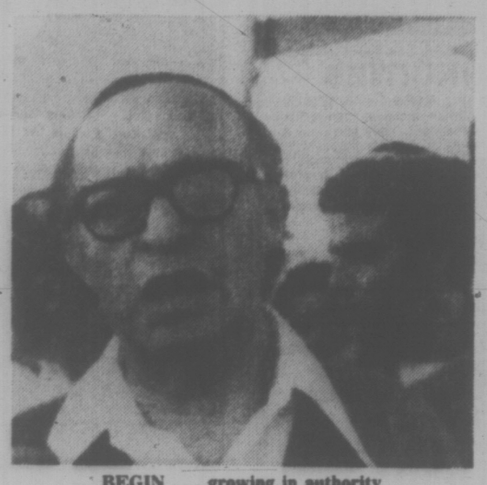
JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Menahem Begin's emergence as a leader of unquestioned domestic strength reflects not only a remarkably rapid growth of authority in his less than three months in power, but important underlying changes in Israeli society.

Begin's election was a result of gradual long-term shifts of outlook in Israel as well as the foibles of practical politics and fatigue with discredited leaders.

Scarcely anyone has a good word to say now for the Labor party. Begin displaced the party after it had ruled without a break for the 29 years of Israel's existence.

The new prime minister, described as a "master politician" by supporters and opponents alike, has already established himself as a powerful figure and a man to be reckoned with by almost all.

Beyond his personality and his years in opposition politics, however, he is now seen to represent the new Israeli mixture that has been developing over the last two decades and the accompanying change in attitude. The crucial difference is demographic. The Jewish population of Israel is now about equally divided between people of European background and those from Moslem countries. Because those from Moslem countries — the so-called Oriental Jews — have a higher birth rate, in the generation now coming of age the ratio is 60 to 40.



BEGIN . . . growing in authority

Prof. Shlomo Avineri, a former director of the foreign ministry, pointed out that among army conscripts (as distinct from the officer corps, where kibbutzniks of European background are overrepresented) 70 per cent of the vote went to Begin.

Social and cultural background, despite the common religion and patriotism, affect Jews on a large range of issues, Prof. Avineri noted, including foreign policy, relations with Arabs, political ideology, and the very texture of the community's aspirations.

"The European Jew may disdain the Arab," he said, "but the face of the oppressor was the Nazi or the Cossack. To the Oriental Jew, the Arab is familiar and was the oppressor."

Though admittedly a simplication, there is widespread confirmation of this assessment. It represents a historic irony.

Since the country was founded, conventional wisdom has maintained that its troubled relations with the Arabs were due to the injection of an alien, Western, intensely modern society in the slowly evolving Middle East, and that these relations would improve as Israel itself grew more authentically Middle Eastern.

At this stage, the reverse seems to be true. Certainly, Begin's hard-line foreign policy and forthright distrust of Arab intentions have won him particular support among Jews whose families lived in Moslem societies.

This group of people, who for the most part came to Israel impoverished, unskilled and with little education, has advanced quickly and now tends to provide the shop keepers, artisans and small businessmen, who are essentially conservative.

When they take up farming, they do not form a kibbutz, with its collective way of life, but a moshav, which remains strongly based on the family unit though its business organization is co-operative.

Their tradition is patriarchal and ceremonial, as is that of Begin himself, though he comes from Poland and displays classical European manners. Begin's insistence on a coat and tie, his formality, and his introduction of a certain state ritual, have won much popular approval, though it is exactly the opposite of the sassy shirt-sleeved Israeli stereotype.

There are many exceptions, of course. But the trend to conservatism, the yearning for a stronger leader, the emotional relief found in simple intransigence, amount to a swing away from the intellectual, Socialist, egalitarian inspiration of the European Zionists who founded and ran the state until now.

STRAY FEATHERS

Sounds of Night For a Star-Gazer

Stayed up until the 'wee sma' hours the other night to take-in the Perseids, the much-touted celestial display of so-called shooting stars — a meteor shower.

You may have heard of this particular group of shooting stars: they're the remnants of the tail of a comet that passed our way about 10 years ago and which won't be back — if it does come back at all — for another 100 years. Every year, in mid-August, the Earth passes through these remnants and the passage is marked by the appearance of hundreds of tiny streaks of light as bits of the dust and gravel of the comet's tail enter our atmosphere and burn out.

These shooting stars are called the Perseids because they seem to originate from the part of the sky in which the constellation of Perseus is situated at this time of year.

* * *

Well, so much for background. I stayed up with some misgivings. First I discovered that, if I was reading my star maps correctly, Perseus would be low on the northeastern horizon and not in a particularly good place for me to see anything from my Colwood location. Second, I knew I had to get up early the next morning and such after-hours shenanigans were bound to extract a high price on my physical well-being.

At any rate, midnight found me comfortably ensconced in a deck-chair looking south. South? Yes, south. I figured if I couldn't look north, why not look south. After all, you never know, do you?

Well, to make a long story short, I did see some shooting stars. Most of them were little more than faint streaks of light that seemed to originate right overhead and drop steeply to the south. But a couple were real beauts; one must have been visible for 3 or 4 seconds as it streaked, almost horizontally, from west to east across the southern horizon.

Still, no matter how you calculate it, the performance of the shooting stars wouldn't have been enough to keep me in my chair for long, if something else — another mid-August, after dark event that seldom gets the publicity shooting stars do — hadn't intervened.

I guess I'd been in my chair half an hour when I began to suspect that I was not alone in my interest in the skies that night. My suspicions were aroused by a soft, sibilant sound that drifted down out of the darkness several times, coming first from the northwest and finally fading towards the southeast. It was the call of a migrating bird — probably a warbler of some kind — on its way south.

In the next hour there was a continuous succession of these small sounds of the night, an indication that a full-fledged migration was underway. Most of the travellers — by their calls — were warblers, but occasionally the musical calls of a thrush would break the pattern. Once, a Great Blue Heron squawked lustily; probably not a migrant but just a local heron on its nocturnal beat.

If we can be sure of what the facts seem to tell us, birds — particularly birds that migrate at night — are star-watchers just like us. But they're star-watchers with a difference. They need those stars, not the individual stars but the patterns made by those stars in the night sky, to find their way.

* * *

All the evidence to support such a conclusion is, of course, circumstantial. Since the birds aren't talking, it has to be. But consider this: Night migration usually begins in fine, clear weather, when there is a favoring wind and when the heavens are highly visible. Consider also that when migrating birds get into trouble — become lost, disoriented, get far off course and collide with man-made structures — the weather has usually deteriorated, rain or fog is present, or — most important — the skies are overcast.

Of course, the problems of the birds may simply stem from poor visibility; objects on the ground, topographic features — coastlines, rivers, marshes, lakes — are all easier to see, and therefore to follow, in clear weather than in stormy weather, even in the dark.

On the other hand, birds make tremendous journeys over the trackless ocean where no topographic feature breaks the monotony below them; then only the stars remain to guide them. Or do they?

It's a nice point to ponder in the 'wee sma' hours of the morning.

OVERHEAD POWER LINES CAN BE DEADLY.

UNLESS YOU GO BY THE BOOK.

Before any work is carried out near energized power lines, it is up to the contractor—under Accident Prevention Regulation 24.04—to obtain from the power authority written assurance that certain requirements have been met.

To assist contractors, the WCB has developed Form 30M33, which is available at any Board office or from the district manager of the power authority concerned. It is the responsibility of the contractor to obtain this form and submit it to the power authority. A minimum of two full working days should be allowed for processing. It is also the contractor's responsibility to comply with the cautionary procedures and instructions outlined on the form by the power authority.

Form 30M33 consists of three copies. One is to be retained by the contractor, one by the power authority, and the third is to be mailed immediately to the Inspection Section, Accident Prevention Department, Workers' Compensation Board.

Power

MONTREAL — Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. reported net operating earnings of $9.6 million or 72 cents a share for the second quarter this year, compared with $7.9 million or 58 cents a share in the same period last year.

The quarter results this year exclude an extraordinary charge of $3.2 million which reduced final net earnings to $6.4 million or 46 cents a share.

Revenue was $86.2 million compared with $75.9 million in the same period last year.

The company had net operating earnings of $10.1 million or 69 cents a share in the first six months of this year compared with $9.4 million or 63 cents a share in the same period last year.

PWA

Pacific Western Airlines reports net earnings of $262,735 for the six-month period ending June 30, 1977, an improvement from the $1,214,075 loss last year.

Operating revenues for the six-month period increased by 30 per cent to $63,966,658. Operating expenses also increased 30 per cent over the previous year to $60,578,409.

Rhys T. Eyton, president and chief executive officer of the Alberta government-owned airline, said in his six-month report to shareholders that Pacific Western has conditionally acquired more than 70 per cent of issued common shares of Winnipeg-based Transair Ltd., subject to the approval of the Canadian Transport Commission.

Eyton said that as a part of the agreement to acquire control, Pacific Western is providing a line credit of $3 million to assist Transair in meeting financial obligations.

Kelly Douglas

Sales by Kelly Douglas and Co. Ltd. for the six month period ending June 18, 1977 were $450.7 million compared to $405.1 for the same period last year, company president Raymond Addington said Friday.

Kelly Douglas is involved in food and drug manufacturing, wholesale and retail businesses in Western Canada and Colorado, and is part of the George Weston-Loblaw food store chain.

Consolidated net income this year was $4.9 million or 70 cents per share, compared with $2.3 million or 36 cents poer share for the same period in 1976.

Addington said the improvement in sales resulted from increased volume through the Colorado operation, acquired last year, and modest increases in existing operations in British Columbia and the prairie provinces.

Company earnings to some extent reflect the overall sales picture, said Addington, adding that a large portion of improvements are coming from United States operations.

Craigmont

Craigmont Mines Ltd. reports net earnings of $1,539,000 or 31 cents a share for the nine months ended July 31, down from $3,137,000 or 62 cents during the corresponding period last year.

President R. G. Duthie said in a news release that lower earnings resulted primarily from a reduction in the amount of copper concentrate sold so far this year. The company's copper production was lower because of a reduction in the average grade of ore milled, he said.

Coleman

Coleman Collieries Ltd. reports it experienced a net loss of $2,469,000 for the six months ended June 30, compared with net earnings of $29,000 for the same period last year. It said negotiations with the Japanese steel industry had resulted in a price for deliveries of coking coal at Port Moody of $56.07 a long ton for the sale of 800,000 tons. One million tons a year will also be delivered in each of the following years.

Braemore

The House of Braemore Furniture Ltd. Ltd. of Toronto reports sales for the six months ended June 30 were $20,000,000 compared with $23,700,000 in the same period a year ago. Earnings were $121,000 or eight cents a share against $518,000 or 33 cents a share in the same period in 1976.

Asbestos

Asbestos Corp. Ltd. reports a drop in net earnings for the first six months of this year despite higher sales.

Net earnings for the first half ending July 2 were $10.7 million or $3.78 a share, compared with 12.3 million or $4.30 a share in the same period last year. Sales were $80.3 million compared with $74.6 million in the same period last year.

The company said prices were increased July by an average of 8.5 per cent for export sales of asbestos cement grades of fibre from Thetford Mines.

Asbestos Corp. said it spent $3.5 million on new environmental control equipment in the first half of the year compared with $900,000 in the same period last year. "Major capital outlays are still required to meet the environmental standards proposed by the federal and provincial governments," the company said.

Reed Shaw

TORONTO — Reed Shaw Osler Ltd., the international insurance brokerage and risk management company, reports commissions and fee revenues were $91,492,000 for the nine months ended June 20. This up 20.5 per cent on the $75,916,000 reported a year ago.

The directors of the company declared a dividend of 7.75 cents a Class A share. It is payable on Sept. 30 to shareholders of record Sppt. 12.

United Airlines

United Airlines Inc. reports the July net earnings of its United Airlines subsidiary rose by 45 per cent, to $30.9 million from $21.4 a year earlier.

Earnings from airlines operations for the first seven months of 1977 were $25.2 million, against a loss of $4.5 million in same period a year ago.

UAL said investment tax credit amounts included in July's net earnings totalled $15.4 million, compared with $4 million a year ago.

Copper, Zinc Mines Shut

TORONTO (CP) — Falling prices for copper and zinc have forced Kerr Addison Mines Ltd. and Black Hawk Mining Ltd. to suspend operations at their copper-zinc mine near Blue Hill, Maine.

In a joint announcement the two companies said the drop in price, combined with an over-production of the two metals by foreign producers and a slump in consumption caused by a lagging world economy, means there is no chance of operating the mine on a break-even basis.

The mine will operate on a day to day basis until October 15 and thereafter will be placed on a care and maintenance basis.

Saipan lures visitors while retaining serenity

By LEAVITT F. MORRIS

SAIPAN — My first visit to this unspoiled island at the western edge of the vast North Pacific Ocean was among the most satisfying experiences of my world travels.

For, as I stepped off the Continental Air Micronesia Boeing 727 after a 30-minute flight from Guam, I was greeted by the Resident Commissioner and Chief Executive for the Northern Mariana Islands, Erwin D. Canham.

Canham's responsibilities here are equivalent to the duties of a governor of a U.S. state. His projected programs for the island are intended to maintain its air of solitude and serenity, yet to bring more tourists, thus contributing much needed income to Saipan's economy. From what I observed during my short stay here, these plans are widely accepted.

At the moment Saipan tourism is not flourishing as much as it might, because of the lack of direct flights from Saipan to Tokyo by regularly scheduled airlines. Some charter flights do serve Saipan, but hotel occupancy rates are still low and the airport, designed to handle the Boeing 747 jumbo jet, sees little activity other than the Continental Air Micronesia 727s that fly in daily from Guam.

It's too bad. The traveller seeking an unusual place with a pleasant atmosphere could do far worse than to visit Saipan. The island's unspoiled beauty, its superb climate, and good accommodations. One of these, the new Saipan Beach Intercontinental Inn, offers air-conditioned rooms, swimming pools, tennis courts, and a sugar-fine sandy beach washed by the calm Pacific.

Spectacular Banzai Cliff: scene of tragedy in Second World War crowded sandy beaches, historical landmarks from the Second World War, and vistas of rugged cliffs buffeted by the surging Pacific are destined to make it a popular resort area.

Further, Saipan is an island of few but friendly people, a

Saipan, one of the many trust territories of the United States, is 14.5 miles long and has in its compact area a variety of historical, recreational, and scenic attractions. The tourist with limited time can enjoy the highlights in three or four hours.

One who has more time should see the island's west-side lagoon and satin-smooth beaches. And a spectacular sight on the eastern shore is the view of Bird Island, a limestone islet that rises abruptly from the sea.

One of the best ways of exploring Saipan in leisurely fashion is by rental car. Unfortunately there are only 150 of these, so naturally they are in great demand. If you want one, reservations should be made well in advance of your arrival.

Canham points out that, for the people of Japan, Saipan has tragic and heroic memories. At least 80 per cent of the tourists here are Japanese who come to view the relics of rusting tanks, guns, cannons, and bunkers left behind by their army as it retreated before U.S forces toward the end of the Second World War.

They also come to see two of the saddest places on the island, Suicide and Banzai cliffs, where Japanese civilians by the hundreds plunged to their deaths over the rocky precipices rather than be taken prisoner by the Americans.

The remains of an old Japanese jail, a few miles from Sugar King Park, should be included in a tour of the island. The main cellblock held male civilian prisoners. The tour guide tells visitors that some people insist that American aviator Amelia Earhart was held briefly in one of the two smaller recessed cells here.

My last few hours in Saipan were spent swimming in the pleasantly warm waters of the Philippine Sea, which provided delightful bathing. As I packed my beach shoes, I emptied out half a cupful of Saipan sand.

Sounds, sights blend in soulful New Orleans

ON THE GO with Jerry Hulse

NEW ORLEANS — Get me to the French Quarter, drive — that 90 square blocks of jazz, joy and jambalaya.

It's as breezy as North Beach, as French as Montmartre and as Southern as red beans and blackeyed peas.

In New Orleans (the locals call it "Nu Awlins") visitors get caught up with all that soul stuff. The food. Carriage rides. Walks along the Mississippi. Dixieland concerts.

It's a scene, I'll tell you.

I was seduced by Nu Awlins the first time I laid eyes on the place. This was a decade ago, at least. Nothing's changed. Morning, noon, nighttime. It makes no difference. It tugs at the heart.

I can still hear Al Hirt blowing his horn, those sweet hot notes that make crowds laugh and cry and applaud, all at once.

That's soul music, brother. The stuff I said gets inside you, stays with you.

New Orleans is like an old flame whose memory burns deep, never to be forgotten. You become a part of it.

I've also half a dozen or so favorite hotels and inns. Among them Maison de Ville is the smallest, with 15 spic-and-span rooms furnished with antiques and dripping with atmosphere.

Built in 1742, Maison de Ville is the oldest structure operating as a hotel in the French Quarter. Previously a private residence, it overlooks a flowered patio directly behind the Court of the Two Sisters.

Architectural Digest described Maison de Ville as "one of the finest small hotels in America." Former guests agree, among them Julie Harris, Tennessee Williams, Dick Cavett, Otto Preminger and Woody Allen.

Because it is special, it is understandably expensive: $45 to $55 a night single and $50 to $70 double.

It is a lover's choice, a small hotel with huge warmth whose doorway opens at 727 Rue Toulouse between Royal and Bourbon Sts. For honeymooners or couples celebrating an anniversary, the management brightens the occasion with champagne and flowers.

Only a block away at 505 Rue Dauphine the same owners operate the Audubon cottages where James Audubon, the celebrated American naturalist, set up his easel in the 19th century. Each of the six cottages faces individual private courtyards, complete with fountains and fragrant gardens.

Behind the same 100-year-old walls, guests share a modern swimming pool. While considerably more expensive than Maison de Ville, (rates from $100 to $175 a day), the cottages lack the grace and warmth of the charming little hotel. Still, for the visitor desiring the unusual they offer total privacy only steps off breezy Bourbon St.

Less than one block away a historic 140-year-old mansion has been transformed into a hotel at 828 Rue Toulouse, its 40 rooms priced from $22 single and $26 double. At the Olivier Guest House potted magnolias bloom in the parlor and chicory coffee is poured free in the lobby.

Built by the widow of a wealthy planter, the building butts up against the side of the nation's first opera house. It is an amalgam of various size rooms, each furnished and decorated differently.

Similar warmth graces the French Quarter Maisonettes, a cluster of seven rooms occupying another old mansion at 1130 Chartres St., where guests are counselled on restaurants, shopping and sightseeing by the charming hostess, Mrs. Junius Underwood.

Security at the French Quarter Maisonettes is guaranteed by a locked gate, after which guests enter a carriageway to sun themselves beside a swimming pool.

On the same street the Provincial Motor Hotel rises from the framework of an abandoned ice house whose rooms feature canopied beds, antique furnishings and views (from the third floor up) of river traffic along the muddy Mississippi.

Rates start at $26 single and $30 double.

While the Provincial occupies the grounds of an old ice house at 1024 Chartres, the Richelieu at 1234 Chartres St. rises on the site of an ex-macaroni factory. In place of noodles, though, the Richelieu serves up 88 rooms at rates starting at $24 single and $29 double.

It also possesses a choice suite containing three baths, three bedrooms, a kitchen, beamed ceilings, pegged cypress floors and a price tag of $150 a day.

For Old World atmosphere, though, New Orleans visitors bid for rooms at Lamouthe House, a rambling 18th-century mansion at 621 Esplanade, the three-storey home of white-haired Mrs. Gertrude Munson. It is pure Southern comfort, featuring four-poster canopied beds, shuttered windows and wall-to-wall antiques.

Its 15 rooms are priced from $25 to $30 a day, single or double.

In New Orleans, when dinnertime arrives, crowds run off to dozens of marvelous restaurants, including Dunbar's, which occupies an old home outside the quarter.

Dunbar's is no ordinary restaurant. Rather, it's like visiting someone's private residence. Cocktails are served in the parlor and afterward the guest is led into a homey dining room.

Just as it satisfies the appetite, New Orleans satisfies the soul. Everyone knows jazz was born here. Off in that sinful section called Storyville.

To this day jazz musicians still march to the cemetery whenever another musician dies, playing their happy, going-home music after the funeral.

Just recently when Jazz musician Armand Hug died his friends marched with the hearse all the way to the grave, blowing trumpets, trombones and saxophones. Hug, a legend in New Orleans, finally got to sit out a set (probably watching from the sidelines with St. Peter, stompin' his toot while the sweet music poured over the tombs and cemetery walls).

New Orleans is a mixture of sights and sounds: Paddle-wheelers down along the Mississippi, magnolians blossoming, banana boats being unloaded, chicory roasting in cafes all over town.

Colonized by the French, New Orleans later was turned over to the Spanish who gave it back to France. Then along came Napoleon who sold it to the United States for $15 million, along with the rest of the Louisianna Territory — one of the best land grabs Uncle Sam ever made.

Slowly the town took shape until today New Orleans, is rated as one of America's most exciting cities. The big attention-getter always has been the French Quarter, 90 square blocks bounded by Canal, Rampart, Decatur and Esplanade.

Crowds pack Al Hirt's, Peter Fountain's, Pat O'Brien's and other jazz joints and watering holes throughout the quarter.

Only a few steps off Bourbon St. other sounds rise up from Preservation Hall, which occupies an old art gallery. Preservation Hall is dedicated to the preservation of pure, old-time jazz, the sort of soul-tuggin' stuff that immortalized Louis Armstrong and other greats. Black musicians, hair streaked with gray, sit in straight-backed chairs, bringing joy to the hearts of jazz buffs.

New Orleans, a town with soul.

Great Barrier Reef . . . divers' dream

By PHILIP SOUSA

HERON ISLAND, Australia — Time doesn't stop here, but it does slow down to a soothingly lazy tempo ideally suited for your encounter with one of nature's greatest productions — the Great Barrier Reef.

More than 700 coral islands, islets and cays make up the Barrier which more or less follows the country's northeast coastline from Brisbane, just below the Tropic of Capricorn, 1,250 miles to Cape York and beyond, almost to New Guinea.

Less than a score of these islands have facilities for tourists. Spartan accommodations for the most part.

Few if any frills. Easygoing, mostly young men and women whose uniforms are shorts, swimsuits and T-shirts are the hosts. If posh resorts are your bag, forget it. The spots at which you can stay on the Barrier are mainly for nature lover, marine and beach divisions.

THE BARRIER, of course, is the big attraction. And though it is unquestionably a diver's and marine biologist's dream, you need not be one or the other to let this magic world dazzle you.

Heron Island, 45 miles off the mainland, is particularly popular with divers because of its fabulous coral formations and the variety of fish all around it.

More than 1,150 different species of fish have been identified off this 42-acre speck of land, as compared to less than a third that figure in the other divers' mecca, the Caribbean.

AS WOULD be expected, divers get the best seats in the house. The warm, amazingly transparent and normally gentle waters cover a stunning series of arches, domes, terraces and other formations. This submerged wonderland is the work of those tiny creatures, the coral polyps; accumulations of dead polyps from the treacherous reefs on which live ones grow for a time before dying and adding yet another chunk of sharp and rigid coral to this sunken but very lively stage.

And then, naturally, you have to add the citizens of the deep, many of which make the reefs their home and playground.

Think of a color, any color, and you'll find it in these waters. Glide by the coral and you'll see shades of colors — on marine plants and fish — you didn't know existed.

YOU'LL SPOT live sponges light brown as peanut butter; sunset-pink tube worms; starfish of a blue as vivid as lapis stone; cod with spines as silvery as stainless steel; rays of a beige that will remind you of camels, etc. You'll see lots of these, plus clam shells, sea snakes, mollusks, hydroids, urchins, crabs and, lest they be forgotten, sharks of several types.

To a point, nondivers can enter this domain.

Here on Heron — as well as on Brampton, Dunk, Green and other Barrier islands — glass-bottom boats take visitors on reef and fish-viewing cruises.

And don't forget snorkeling!

WEARING mandatory tennis shoes or other protective footgear, walks at low tide on the reef that encircles Heron are unforgettable experiences.

With or without a guide, you explore the countless pools and crevices where shells, sponges and a host of other fish are but inches from your feet.

The abundant life at water's edge and below can keep you busy for days — even longer if you're a diver. But you'll find other pleasures here: bush walks, fishing, tennis, swimming and sunbathing on the fine white sand beaches that ring Heron.

ALTHOUGH the mainland port city of Gladstone is only four hours away by ship or 30 minutes by helicopter, a few days on this island and you feel light-years away from the world of clocks, traffic and noises. If you find a newspaper, chances are it'll be several days old; radios and television sets are rare; and you won't feel crowded: only 200 guests can be accommodated in Heron's economy "lodges" and motel-type ocean-view rooms.

But humans can and do get together for fun and friendship. They socialize by the pool, in the Turtle Tavern, the Pandanus Lounge, in the restaurant and on the beach. But it's all low key, casual and unhurried. And unlike other diving capitals, here divers and nondivers mix happily when the former are out of the water.

Incidentally, you can rent wet suits, tanks and diving boats; and if you have a "certificate of proficiency" you can also rent regulators.

Individual rates, including room and all meals, range from $25 to $45 a day depending on type of accommodations selected, season and currency fluctuations. Lower rates are available to groups of 15 or more persons.

Ansett Airlines, Trans-Australia Airlines and Greyhound Coaches have Heron vacation packages that offer additional savings. Too, your travel agent can tell you about Barrier tours for divers and nondivers offered by American tour operators.

Duty-free treasures abound in St. Thomas

Travel Tips

By Stan Delaplane

Three gleaming cruise ships are tied up here today. Spilled 2000 or more tourists on the old Danish town of Charlotte Amalie.

My taxi driver said: "Man buy de rum. Woman buy de perfume. Have lunch. Man buy de camera. Woman buy jewelry. Back to ship. Ship sail. Next day come three more."

This is the supermarket of the Caribbean.

"From the U.S. Virgin Islands you can take home $200 worth without paying customs duty. From other islands you are only allowed $100. U.S. citizens can take home one gallon of liquor. From other islands only a quart."

This sales pitch by the alert chamber of commerce drives the cruising passenger into a frenzy of shopping.

Treasures come in from all over the world. Pay no duty and a very small tax. Thus Swiss and Japanese watches, radios and cameras, are a good deal less than you pay at home.

★ ★ ★

The tourist staggers with his allowed five bottles back to the ship, where it's underfoot and stumbled over the rest of the voyage.

★ ★ ★

Like all supermarkets, the town is crowded. You stand in lines. (Local man said: "If you're staying here, Wednesday and Friday are the worst days. For some reason we get more ships those days.")

★ ★ ★

Christiansted of St. Croix is 20 minutes away by a 10-seat seaplane service. It's a charming smaller town. The stone architecture, built by the Danes, hangs over narrow alleyways and holds off the Caribbean sun.

Restaurants are outdoors in shady patios.

One grand hotel, the Buccaneer, a short taxi ride from town. Two unusually good and small hotels in town: The Lodge and the King Christian. Not as many shops as St. Thomas, but all you want to buy. More time to do it.

American Air flies from New York in 3½ hours. Eastern flies from Miami.

It's a three-hour boat ride out to the British Virgin Islands. (Only 10,000 people. The U.S. Virgins have 100,000.)

Half a dozen good resorts, topped by Laurance Rockefeller's elegant Little Dix on Virgin Gorda.

Road Town on Tortola has 9,000 of the 10,000 British islanders. It's a sleeper in the New York jet set who fly in here for plastic surgery.

A St. Croix woman told me: "One of the doctors was top man in plastic surgery at University of Michigan. The other was tops in London."

She's having her eyes uplifted next week: $1,200. She said: "It's not cheap but they're both sailing buffs. So this is a great place for them." (And I imagine no malpractice insurance.)

The two surgeons treat anyone born in the Caribbean free. "Black islanders don't get face lifts, but they get a number of burn cases."

St. Thomas would like to get more cruise ships. The British Virgins want to keep them out. No ship allowed in with more than 250 passengers.

"The best boating water in the world," says the National Geographic. There's a large yacht charter fleet. And you'd hardly believe, in such a small town, the provisioning shop called The Ample Hamper. For example: 50 kinds of imported cheeses.

Mining Act Attack

Conservative leader Scott Wallace called on the provincial government Friday to repeal its Mineral Land Tax Amendment Act" and take some kind of consistency on mining legislation."

He made the appeal during debate on second reading of the bill which will ensure that the government does not have to return $39.6 million it has collected in mineral taxes during 1974, 1975 and 1976.

When the bill was introduced, Mines Minister Jim Chabot said it would ensure that there are no refunds of taxes collected under the Mineral Land Tax Act.

The act was approved by the previous NDP government and is being appealed before the B.C. Supreme Court and the Mineral Land Tax Appeal Board.

Wallace came out strongly against the clause making the bill retroactive to June 15, 1973, which he called an undesireable aspect of legislation.

He noted that Chabot indicated the bill was presented because there was a good possibility the government would lost the court case. "This is the most arrogant and unprincipled use of power . . . the breaching of a contract at the highest level."

Wallace also pointed out what was termed the "hypocritical" attitude of the Socreds who had opposed the original bill but were not attempting to "ensure they can keep the $39 million they said shouldn't have been taken in the first place."

Graham Lea (NDP—Prince Rupert) compared the bill to that of the B.C. Electric takeover by the government under the previous Social Credit administration.

"This is 1962 revisited," Lea said, claiming that the bill would deprive the stockholders of mining companies of "their day in court."

"You say 'yes you have the right to sue the crown, but if it looks like you may win, then we will change the legislation and make it retroactive'," said Lea.

Missing Two Years, Suspect Turns Self In

A 26-year-old Victoria man who vanished nearly two years ago when he should have been at his county court jury trial, showed up suddenly Friday at the temporary law courts at St. Ann's Academy.

James Ronald Page, formerly of 476 Dupplin, spent most of the time in England, his lawyer, Gordon Hayes of Vancouver, told Judge Leslie Cashman at a bail hearing.

A bench warrant was issued for Page's arrest when he failed to appear for trial Dec. 2, 1975. He surrendered voluntarily to his lawyer who escorted him to court in the morning.

Bail was set at $2,500 with one surety and Page was ordered to remain on Vancouver Island, report weekly to a bail supervisor in person or by telephone and to appear in court next Friday when county court jury trial dates are set for September.

But this charge was dismissed after completion of the preliminary hearing Aug. 7, 1975, and Page was ordered to stand trial on the lesser charges of causing bodily harm to Brennan and possession of a weapon (a revolver) for a purpose dangerous to the public peace.

He was released from custody Aug. 15, 1975, on his own undertaking to appear for his trial.

Hayes told the judge that Page phoned him from England about a week before his trial date of Dec. 2, 1975, and said "due to his mental condition he was not going to attend."

He returned to Canada last March, living and working in Manitoba with relatives. He came back to B.C. two or three weeks ago and was staying with a sister in the Delta area.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 35-year-old man who pleaded guilty to two charges of breaking and entering got some job advice from Judge Harold Alder.

The court was told that James D. Smith spent more than an hour trying to open a safe at Doman Industries, 280 Bay, early Friday morning using a power drill, sledge hammer and crowbar. He failed.

"I gather, Mr. Smith, you're not a very good burglar. Maybe you should try another trade," Alder said.

Smith was also charged in connection with a break-in Monday at H. E. Fowler, 411 Hillside, where he managed to open the safe but took nothing.

The court was told that Smith had recently been released from six months' imprisonment in connection with an assault charge.

Alder sentenced him to 18 months in jail.

★ ★ ★

A pre-sentence report was ordered for a 30-year-old man who pleaded guilty to nine counts of fraud by passing worthless cheques.

In all, bad cheques for more than $350 were passed by Douglas Kathrens, of no fixed address, at six businesses between July 13 and July 28.

The court was told that Kathrens was on parole after a May 10 conviction for a similar offence.

Alder ruled that he be held in custody until the pre-sentence report was received Sept. 9.

★ ★ ★

He was fined $500.

LICENCE VARIETY

They Can't Get Enough On Plates

Bob Miller eyes collection . . . all kinds of years and colors

Remember the dusty August doldrums of youth when you vied with your pals to collect the most car licence numbers?

If your street was as alternately gritty and muddy as the gravelled space in front of many depression-era homes, it was a dirty place indeed. Perfect for squishing or sifting between bare toes until the next car came by.

Then a frantic scribble in a two-for-a-nickle notebook as the dust billowed into a golden haze.

As a hobby it wasn't much. It was childish fun to fill an idle afternoon and more than a few notebooks, and kept you out of the house.

Today, some 40 years later, some of these numerical novices are kept at home in the basement through collecting not just numbers but also the plates.

Licence plate collecting is a recognized international hobby. But there are relatively few serious collectors in Canada.

Number plate collecting reaches its North American zenith south of the border because of the large number of legal jurisidictions — 51 American and 32 Mexican.

Canada has only 13 licence-issuing authorities not counting local issuers of taxi and commercial plates, and that may be the reason collecting is more exclusive here.

A journal published by the American Licence Plate Collectors Association lists pages of U.S. members and only a little more than one page of Canadian participants, of which about 12 reside in B.C. Rare are major collectors, like Len Garrison, of Port Alberni, who is said to have 40,000 plates.

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Roger Newberry, a dealer in antiques and various collectibles, has a fairly well organized assortment of Canadian licence plates numbering in the hundreds and representing all provinces and federal jurisdictions including the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

He sells them for as little as $1 and as much as $25, even for the rare porcelain enamelled steel plates issued by B.C. more than 50 years ago.

But Ken Ballard, an antique car buff who used to be a serious plate collector, said the porcelain plates of the 1912-20 period can bring anywhere from $50 to $100 each depending upon condition and rarity.

Just a few years ago, when the hobby was still in its infancy, a collector could go into practically any barn or garage on the island and come out with plates anywhere from one year to 40 years old.

Today, said Ballard, most of these relics are in the hands of collectors. The junkyard and back lots still yield sought-after parts for vintage cars, but the licence plates are likely to have been the first parts scavenged.

Ballard and the provincial motor vehicle branch have one thing in common besides a lot of licence numbers: each has a complete set of plates issued by the province from the time when registration appeared to take precedence over plates.

The first ones (1906-11) consisted of a piece of leather to which the car owner attached metal house numbers, or painted the numerals on.

Bob Miller, another collector whose main interest is old cars, said it is arguable as to which was the first B.C. plate. Because of the leather period in the first decade of the century, some collectors feel the first plate should be 1912, which is the first metal one and the first standardized plate actually made by the provincial government.

Miller has a full set from 1913-17, a few extra B.C. plates for trading, some British and an Hawaiian plate for decoration. Anyone interested in Quebec plates is invited to have a look at Miller's 1933 example.

His collection includes registration plates from the First World War period, when they were made from a thin tinplate to conserve on materials for the war effort. Because they were so light they have not stood up well and a specimen in good condition is hard to find and worth $50-$75 to a serious collector.

Probably the rarest Canadian plates are these wartime ones, expecially for 1916-17, and those from NWT, which has relatively few motor vehicles.

Newberry said Yukon plates are in fair demand, as well. He has one on his shelf from 1975 marked $5.

The 1913 porcelain marked $25 has several chipped areas but is in generally good condition.

Ballard has a special porcelain plate issued by the city of Victoria in 1912 which is in excellent shape even though it was buried for an undetermined period and dug up about 15 years ago on what was Fairfield Farm Estates.

People often ask Newberry to find them a plate to match the year of an old car they are restoring, usually from the 1920s or 1930s.

They will collect by country, by provinces, by year of issue, numerical sequence, degree of rarity and combinations of these. Passenger car plates are generally collected, but motorcycle licences may also be sought.

"B.C. 53s are hard to get because that was a tag year and only new car buyers had new plates," Newberry said.

Leather plates in reasonable shape are also rare: "I've seen them go for $50 at auctions," he said.

In order to devote more time and money to his cars — a 1915 Model T roadster, a 1926 Model T, a 1940 Ford pickup and a 1950 Meteor sedan — Ballard decided to sell much of his plate collection and netted a surprising $700-$800 by dealing directly with collector contacts across the country.

Purely Canadian collections tend to seem dull next to the infinite variety of American and overseas plates. The U.S. states used to express an individuality that has faded: bizarre colors and symbols, different shapes and sizes, and registration letters chosen to spell words and names.

The Georgia plate used to have a peach, Idaho a baked potato with a pat of butter, and Loiuisiana a pelican sitting on a stump. Arizona has a blazing sun and several states depict a wheelchair for handicapped drivers, but they seem tame next to older plates. And they are all the same size.

By comparison, B.C. plates for several years have had three-letter prefixes deliberately contrived to avoid spelling words. They also are valid for several years at a stretch, with annual decals attached, which will make it harder for collectors to fill gaps.

Some jurisdictions, to the delight of collectors, dispose of surplus plates in wholesale lots, providing trading material for years.

MVB superintendent R. G. Whitlock said any plates turned in to the B.C. branch are destroyed for recycling, and none will be declared surplus until a new series comes out, perhaps next year. Then they, too, will be recycled.

Improving Whale Calf City's Top Attraction

Since she was brought to the Oak Bay Beach Hotel pool 10 days ago for medical treatment for a series of ailments, including a bullet wound which threatened her life, she has been seen by about 30,000 people.

This weekend the daily average of around 3,000 is expected to triple.

"In the morning most of the visitors are young people, kids from day camps," said Angus Matthews, manager of Sealand. "Adults mostly come at night."

He said visitors have also included patients from hospitals.

"A lot of these cards are brought in by children, but we get some from adults, too," Matthews said.

While Sealand is not soliciting funds to help pay for Miracle's medical bills, the Data Entra staff at the B.C. Medical office donated $50 and members of the Oddfellows Lodge also took a collection and turned in $39.

The money will be used to buy food for the calf.

The Lilly Drug Company is also contributing antibiotics.

Matthews said donations of salmon are no longer required.

Vote Demanded on Saanich Plan

In a statement handed to council members, Mika said the plebiscite is needed to give residents a sense of participation in decisive decisions about their future.

Mika said the plan as prepared by council and consultants Ward Associates fails to ask residents what kind of municipality they want in 20 years time.

"Saanich residents have not had a central or intimate role in developing their own plan," he charged.

He accused council of putting residents in a "Catch 22" bind.

He said during four public meetings held so far on the draft plan, participants were told to limit discussion to general observations and were prohibited from dealing with specific neighborhood issues.

Only after the plan has been adopted will residents be able to discuss details of how they'd like to see their neighborhoods developed.

But by then, said Mika, such discussions will be largely academic because development will have to conform to the accepted plan.

The plan is scheduled nevertheless to go to public hearing next month.

Mika argued residents should have been given more input into the plan because of the enormous social and financial consequences it will have on the future of the municipality.

He said it will govern development for the next 20 years.

"It will formally commit the municipality to expenditures and inevitable tax levies far larger than any in the municipality's history," he said.

He said Saanich is unique among Greater Victoria municipalities in that Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are virtually fully developed and have drafted community plans that essentially tidy up existing development patterns.

Mika said that while he personally agrees with much of the draft plan he has serious reservations about crucial aspects.

One is the plan to build a regional shopping centre at either Broadmead or Burnside-Tillicum, both of which he regards as unsatisfactory.

"They are opposed by significant numbers of Saanich residents, will cost millions of dollars, will distort future development of the entire region, and will favor the foreign-based multinational concerns against independent local busienssmen," Mika claimed.

Mika is also critical of the Royal Oak industrial park scheme recommended by the draft community plan.

Instead, he opts for redevelopment of 200 acres on either side of Douglas between Tolmie and Saanich Road.

Mika said if local areas are to have any say in how the community should be developed, the municipality will have to come up with funds to help establish and maintain community organizations.

TREES WILTING IN HEAT WAVE

The Victoria weather office ways it still can't see an end to the sunny, hot weather and it's starting to have some unusual effects.

The immediate forecast through to Tuesday is for sunny with a few cloudy periods and continuing warm temperatures.

And among a host of other problems, the drought has prompted Oak Bay municipality to appeal to residents to water the boulevard trees, if they are not already doing so.

Municipal engineer Geoff White said the preferred method is to punch a series of holes in the ground bout two-thirds of the way to the ends of the branches — about six feet from the trunk but still under the crown — so water can get to the roots.

The drought could kill some trees, especially ones under direct sunlight or near driveways or asphalt streets.

White said if residents are away, perhaps their neighbors would consider doing the same to the yard next door.

Black bears, seem to be keeping out of trouble on Vancouver Island.

Complaints about nuisance bears are down considerably this summer, wildlife control officer Dan Lay says.

The B.C. fish and wildlife branch has only received one complaint about a bear raiding a commercial bee hive — all the rest involved bears ravenging in garbage dumps.

"We get few complaints from the south end of Vancouver Island," he said. "Most come from central and the northern part of the Island."

He said he has found as many as 22 bears living off a dump near Gold River.

Lay said such bears are either destroyed or removed.

"They can become a real nuisance — sometimes by even walking through a town in search of hand-outs from people," he said. "The actions of such bears are unpredictable."

He said the branch tried to discourage bears from dumps by pouring a salty mixture over the garbage, but the experiment failed.

"The mixture gave the bears a stomach ache and made them sick," he said. "But they wouldn't go back to their natural food. They prefer the discomfort to returning to the wild where they belong."

"Some bears become so dependent on garbage that they will even sleep on top of the pile," he added.

He disclosed that many dump bears have been found to be wounded or injured.

"They have been hit by a .22 bullet or injured by cars," he explained "We have to destroy them."

The younger bears are given a chance. They are taken and released in the woods, miles away from the dump.

Lay said the reason bear raids on bee hives are few is because many bee keepers have erected electric fences around their yards and bundled hives together with double wire-meshing.

Bears don't like getting an electric shock on the snout," he said.

But the electric wire won't stop the crafty old bears who have broken into yards and discovered the easy pickings," he said. "I've seen them roll over the electric wire. Nothing will stop them from getting at their beloved honey."

"Once they're addicted to honey they're the same as drunks on skid road trying to get to a bottle," he observed.

Fishboat Sinking A Hoax

Rescue officials today said the report of a fishboat sinking off the entrance of Juan de Fuca Strait Thursday night was likely a hoax.

Searchers, co-ordinated by the United States Coast Guard but involving also the lifeboat out of Bamfield combed the area Friday but failed to come up with any sign of wreckage or debris.

The search was activated after the U.S. Coast Guard received a distress signal at 10:15 p.m. from a boat identified as the Karma II. The caller said the boat was sinking and there were four persons aboard.

A Pacific Rescue Centre spokesman said checks were made through ship registries in both Canada and the United States but there is no fishboat named Karma II.

"We think now the call was a hoax," the spokesman said.

Such hoaxes aren't all that rare.

It's Headache For Everyone

Parking at the Potholes provincial park near Sooke has always been a colossal headache for parks officials, RCMP and visitors alike.

It's no different this year.

But next year there may be a change if the parks branch approves a recommendation by Malahat district park superintendent Don Carruthers.

Carruthers said he has sent in a proposal to hire a commissionaire next summer.

The commissionaire would work full time from June 15 Labor Day, limit the number of cars in the parking lot and stop people from parking in no parking zones.

Such a move has been requested by Sooke RCMP who have found it impossible to control parking in the area.

"We tried warning motorists about the no-parking zones," said Sgt. Jim Troiano. "But that didn't work.

"We tried ticketing them. But that didn't work either.

"So now we are towing out the cars. And by the screams we're getting I think it has had some effect."

Troiano said on a hot day it's not unusual to see as many as 500 cars line Sooke River Road and the small lot at the park. Yet the number of permitted parking spaces is no more than about 100.

Carruthers said there is nothing the parks board can do to alleviate the situation. The parking lot can't be increased in size without destroying the park.

"It's a real tough problem," he said.

Juvenile Blamed In Fire

A boy playing with matches is believed responsible for a fire that caused about $40,000 damage to a house at 3056 Washington Friday and sent a Victoria fireman to hospital with minor burns.

The fire, spotted by occupant Elizabeth Sage at 3:45 p.m. started in the basement and quickly spread up the walls.

By the time firemen arrived, the second storey was engulfed and flames were breaking out through the roof.

Firemen fought the blaze for nearly three hours and in the process Fireman Rick Wheeler received slight burns to one hand.

He was taken to Victoria General and treated and released. No one else was injured.

CLOUD OF DUST obscures second base as Colony Inn catcher Jim Boyd makes headlong dive. Boyd made it safely but was left stranded in fifth inning of Friday's Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoff game with Athletics. Athletics went on to post 2-1 victory and sweep best-of-five semi-final 3-0. See story on page 15. (Times photo by Irving Strickland)

VANCOUVER — Coaches are seldom easy to please, but, for today at least, Victoria Shamrocks have pilot Nirmal Dillon bubbling with happiness and pride.

The Rocks produced joy for Dillon and their supporters at Kerrisdale Arena Friday night when they refused to buckle after letting an early lead slip away and roared back to trip Vancouver Burrards 11-10 in the opening game of the Western Lacrosse Association final.

Bidding for a berth in the national final for the first time since 1957, the Shamrocks needed at least one triumph on the home floor of the league-winning Burrards and they earned it with a display of determined defending and smooth, accurate passing.

They'll attempt to build the margin to two games when the best-of-seven series resumes Sunday at 8 p.m. in Victoria's Memorial Arena.

Standouts were many on the Irish roster but the brightest Victoria stars were probably Ron MacNeil, Norm Baker and goalie Larry Smeltzer.

With the Burrards holding a 9-8 lead late in the third period, Baker broke loose for a shorthanded goal to pull the Irish even.

Burrards came back with a power-play tally by Dave Litzenberger, but MacNeil scored at 17:08 to again deadlock the count and then rapped in the winning goal with 33 seconds remaining, getting behind the Vancouver defence with a quick burst of speed, taking a neat pass from Larry Bell and beating goalie Dave Evans.

MacNeil, who also collected three assists, and Baker each notched three goals for the Rocks; who got another strong goaltending effort from Smeltzer, who finished with a total of 44 saves.

Ivan Thompson, the leading scorer in the semi-final round, picked up three assists for the Irish; Charm Dhillon, back in action after an ankle injury, fired two goals and helped his club control the ball through his skill on faceoffs.

Doug Angrove, a recruit from junior ranks, also scored twice and provided valuable assistance with his hard running and slick passing.

Ron Pinder and Rico Bellusci each notched two goals and an assist for Vancouver and Litzenberger added three assists to his power-play counter.

Evans blocked 25 shots for Burrards, who were without the services of "policeman" Ward Sanderson, sitting out the third game of a five-game suspension.

Away to a 5-1 lead in the opening period, when they played an excellent ball-control game, the Rocks had the margin trimmed to 7-4 in the middle session and then slipped behind before staging the closing burst of heroics.

"Our team really played well in the first period," said Dillon, "but we seemed to get tired a little in the second period and let them control play a bit.

"I was very pleased with the way our players held their poise after falling behind.

"We must take fewer penalties in the rest of the series," he commented," and we shouldn't be taking as many long shots."

B.C. Drops Behind Quebec As Ontario Strikes Target

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ontario set a goal for itself after losing its Canada Summer Games team title to British Columbia four years ago.

It trained its sights on Newfoundland in 1977 with the aim of regaining the crown it won in the first Summer Games in Halifax in 1969.

The goal was realized on Friday as Ontario athletes won team gold medals in lacrosse and shooting, bronzes in soccer and women's softball and took top points in swimming.

But it was closer than many had expected. Instead of B.C. providing the main opposition, as it had in the first two Summer Games, Quebec was the chief competition.

With points awarded on the basis of 10 for a first-place finish in a sport, nine for second and so on, Ontario ended up with 136.5 points to 133 for Quebec and 121 for B.C.

Other teams in order were Alberta 84, Manitoba 83.5, Nova Scotia 71.5, Newfoundland 60, Saskatchewan 59.5, New Brunswick 48.5, Prince Edward Island 23, Yukon 8.5 and Northwest Territories 4.

Ontario captured top honors in eight sports—canoeing, women's field hockey, lacrosse, shooting, swimming, track and field, water polo and water skiing.

It was also awarded a first place tie with B.C. in sailing but Quebec protested its fourth-place standing in that sport, declaring that the scoring system used was unfair and inconsistent with those of the other 15 Games events.

A Games jury said it couldn't rule on the protest because each sport determines how it arrives at team standings.

But just after the Games ended a letter was received by Andrew Crosbie, chairman of the Summer Games Association, saying the sailing committee had conceded that "a very serious problem" had arisen. It agreed to have all sailing standings deleted from the totals.

If sailing had been included, Ontario would have had 146 points to 140 for Quebec and 130.5 for B.C. But if sailing had been scored as in other sports, Ontario would have won by only half a point over Quebec in the over-all Games standing.

That the Summer Games are a three-province preserve is indicated, not only by the runaway points lead of Ontario, Quebec and B.C., but also the medals and team titles.

Along with the eight sports won by Ontario... four—archery, cycling, diving and women's softball—were won by Quebec, and three—baseball, soccer and tennis—by B.C.

Ontario won 48 gold medals, Quebec 33, British Columbia 16, Alberta 10, Nova Scotia five, Saskatchewan two and New Brunswick and Newfoundland one each.

Among the medals won by British Columbia Friday was a silver in the swimming pool, where a B.C. squad that included Rob Grundison of Victoria finished second in the men's medley relay behind Ontario, which splashed to a games record in the final.

Greg Yeomans of Courtenay collected 2,199 points for the B.C. rifle team that placed fourth while Ontario was winning the gold medal.

Quebec scored a 3-2 victory over B.C. in the women's softball final to leave the west coast province with a silver in that event, and the B.C. lacrosse team earned a bronze medal with a 11-9 triumph over Nova Scotia.

A Black and Blue Season for Grover

One week's work and like that.

It was smiles all around in the Shamrock dressing room Monday night. The Western Lacrosse Association finals had been attained and except for goalkeeper George Grover everyone appeared in fine fettle. Grover had taken a terrific shot on the throat, which was badly swollen, but fortunately the damage was all on the outside. It's been a black and blue season for the popular veteran. He was badly bruised earlier in the year when his face was smashed into the floor by Bob Holmes of Vancouver Burrards and his neck wasn't very pretty after he stopped Nick Delmonico's rising shot Monday. But he'll be right there in the next game.

Meanwhile, up in the press box, WLA commissioner Roy Burton had been saying that only Burrards appeared unhappy with the five-game suspension handed out to Ward Sanderson for his latest act of violence and that he, Burton, felt he had done the right thing. "All I can do is what I think is best," he said. "Somebody's got to clean up the act and I can live with myself."

Fred Usher is back from the archery events at the Canada Summer Games where he was the commentator for the sport. And for all his efforts on behalf of archery he has been awarded an honorary life membership in the Federation of Canadian Archers. Fred is a past vice-president of the Federation, an international judge, a level-four coach, twice has been chairman of the national championships and is Canadian delegate to the World Congress of Archery.

He has also captained the Canadian team at World meets and points with pride to the fact that of the four teams he has taken to these international events, each time three of the eight team members were from British Columbia. On the other hand, Usher can't quite understand the disparity in the financial aid given the B.C. archers as compared to the help Quebec gets. "They get $100,000," he said. "This year we got $8,000. There were 102 archers from Quebec at this year's nationals and that's the reason why." Incidentally, the PNW championships will be held here next year.

You can fool some of the people some of the time but not Gary Pynn very often. So 20 years is a long time and memory didn't wholly serves its purpose. It wasn't a schedule SNAFU that kept Peterborough from playing in the 1957 Mann Cup finals here, as indicated earlier but a player hassle. The Petes tried to play Bobby Allan but he had been ruled ineligible because he had signed two player forms, one at Peterborough and one at Nanaimo. So they refused to play the first game, the crowd here went home angry, the Petes were bounced and Long Branch took their place. And thank you, Gary.

And while on that subject, guess who refereed that series and the preceding one in the East when Nanaimo won the cup? It was Burton, 20 years later to be the WLA commissioner and the chief official. Convener of the Mann Cup championship this year will be Wally Donaldson, who had that job for the Minto Cup final last year, and there was a player hassle, from the East, that time too. And, oh yes, it isn't the Canadian Lacross Association that's footing the bill for this year's playoff: It's the WLA which is sponsoring the series.

And add to the list of successful coaches, Ron MacNeil for guiding the Div. 7, Tier 1 Saanich Metro Toyotas to the B.C. championship and Bill Mareschek for doing the same good job with the Div. 3, Tier 2 Peninsula Dawson Electric team.

What they're saying dept.: Tim McCarver of the Phillies after hitting two home runs in a recent game: "That's the second time I hit two homers in one game. The other time was back in 1966. Sure I remember. Do you think I'm an idiot?"

G'nite all.

CITY GOALIE SHINES

ST. JOHN'S' Nfld. (CP) — British Columbia scored two first-half goals and then rode the standout goalkeeping of Gordon Reading to a 2-1 victory over Quebec and the soccer gold medal at the 1977 Canada Summer Games Friday.

Ontario won the bronze medal earlier in the day by defeating Newfoundland on penalty kick after the two teams played to a 2-2 tie in regulation time and two 15-minute overtime periods.

Drew Ferguson of Powell River, in the 20th minute, and Jack Attadia of Vancouver, in the 27th, provided the B.C. goals in an opening half which was dominated by the pressing Quebec club. Brian Decaire of Beaconsfield replied for the losers in the 54th minute.

The B.C team appeared tired, especially in the opening 15 minutes, before Ferguson fired a low shot through a maze of players that beat goalkeeper Christian Dubois of Ste. Foy on the right side.

Before Ferguson's goal, Quebec had held B.C. in its own zone most of the opening minutes but Reading, from Victoria, came up with several brilliant saves, including one that hit him on the chest and knocked him to the ground.

Graham Adams of Verdun, the Quebec coach, felt his team missed too many chances in the first half.

"It was just a case of the breaks and we didn't get then. In the first half we had the shots raining in on the net but the B.C. goalkeeper was good."

Mike Hardy, Ian Bridge and Doug Wellbourn of Victoria were also members of the B.C. soccer team.

Barr Keeps It Going With Seven-Under 64

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., rattled off four consecutive birdies on the back nine on his way to a seven-under par 64 Friday in the first round of the $20,000 British Columbia Open, the last stop on the 1977 Canadian golf tour.

Barr, one of the hottest players on the tour in recent weeks, had eight birdies and one bogey as he tied the course record at the 6,078-yard Marine Drive Golf Club.

Heading into today's second round, Barr had a two-stroke lead over Jerry Minor, a senior at Portland State University, and Patrick Evans of Seattle, Wash. Three others were one stroke further back, including Bob Cox of Vancouver, Kenn Ellsworth of Sun City, Calif., and Doug Roxburgh, a Marine Drive amateur.

Defending-champion Cec Ferguson of Victoria had his troubles on the front nine. Friday with a two-over-par 38 but regained those strokes on the back nine and headed a large group at even-par 71.

Don Halldorson of Brandon, Man., who won the Saskatchewan and Manitoba Opens earlier this year, also had problems and finished with a 75 Friday.

Barr, who admitted he was nervous before the start of his round because he was regarded as one of the favorites, said his score could have been lower if he had made a few more putts.

"At the seventh, I left it (a putt) short and then did the same thing again on the eighth," he said.

Barr said his low score did not really surprise him because "we're getting a lot of roll out there, the fairways are so dry."

A fifth place finish or better here will clinch top spot in the points standings for Barr and the $2,500 that goes with it. The top point-getter on the tour also will join George Knudson of Toronto on Canada's World Cup team.

REG UNDERWOOD
. . . all-Canada choice

Underwood to Receive Longboat Trophy

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Reg Underwood, the 26-year-old outfielder with Victoria Bates' softball team, is the 1977 winner of the Tom Longboat Trophy, awarded annually to the outstanding native athlete in Canada.

Underwood is scheduled to receive the trophy at a ceremony in Winnipeg on Sept. 19.

It marks the second time in 10 years a member of the Underwood family has won the award. Reg's sister Vivian, a standout in track and field, softball and basketball, was awarded the trophy in 1967.

While Reg's play with Bates has highlighted his athletic feats recently, he also has shone in soccer and basketball.

A "complete" softballer who throws, runs and hits exceptionally well, Underwood suffered broken bones in his throwing hand about a month ago but will still be available for pinch-running duties when Bates leave Aug. 29 to defend their Canadian championship in Hull, Que.

With the exception of Underwood, Bates will be "at full strength" for the Canadian tournament.

Pitcher Stan Kern, bothered by a back injury for the past few months, has been throwing regularly during practices and is expected to play in Hull.

As provincial champions, Bates also will be entitled to pick up one addition to the regular lineup. Manager Joe Patterson's choice is believed to be former Victoria pitcher Glenn Langsett but team officials have had difficulty in contacting him.

Seeking their third straight Canadian title, Bates have been given a good break in the draw. The B.C. champs were drawn into the "blue" division with Nova Scotia, Alberta, Quebec, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

That means that Ontario and Saskatchewan, expected to field Bates' strongest opposition, have wound up in the "red" division with Newfoundland, Manitoba, Northwest Territories, Yukon and the host Hull Volants.

The two top teams from each division qualify for the final, double-knockout playdowns.

Bates will open the round-robin preliminaries by meeting P.E.I. and New Brunswick on Aug. 30. Victoria then will play Alberta on Aug. 31 and wind up preliminary play with games against Nova Scotia and Quebec on Sept. 2.

Changes by Wood Boost White Sox

By The Associated Press

Wilbur Wood made three changes and put Chicago White Sox in first place.

The knuckleballer changed his delivery, his pitching style and his losing ways Friday night as he hurled the White Sox to a 3-1 victory over Milwaukee Brewers. It was Wood's first win since July 22.

He traced his recent problems to dropping his elbow and pitching hand as he delivered the ball. Now he is throwing straight over the top.

"My control is better that way and the ball breaks better because you're throwing it instead of guiding it," said Wood, 6-5.

About the second change, he said, "I normally throw about 80 to 85 per cent knuckle balls, but I threw a few more fast balls than normal tonight because I've just been walking too many men."

The win put the White Sox in first place in the tight West Division race by two percentage points over Texas Rangers. Kansas City Royals and Minnesota Twins are tied for second place, one-half game behind the White Sox and Rangers.

In other games, Kansas City Royals bombed Boston Red Sox 9-3, Baltimore Orioles edged Minnesota 3-2, New York Yankees beat Texas 9-1, Toronto Blue Jays beat California Angels 3-1, Cleveland Indians nipped Oakland A's 2-1 and Detroit Tigers downed Seattle Mariners 6-4.

Richie Zisk and Oscar Gamble hit successive homers in the second inning to back Wood's five-hit pitching.

Amos Otis, John Mayberry and George Brett hit homers for the Royals as the Red Sox's East Division lead narrowed to 2½ games over Baltimore and New York.

Meanwhile, the beat goes on for George Foster—and the beatings go on for New York Mets in the National League.

Foster continued to succeed with the long ball and the Mets continued to fail as the major league's leading slugger hit his 40th and 41st home runs to help Cincinnati Reds to a 4-1 and 4-3 doubleheader sweep.

The power display by the left fielder gave him a special distinction, although he tended to play down the fact that he had become the first major leaguer to hit the 40-homer plateau since 1973.

His runs batted in total reached 116.

Foster is within shooting distance of Hack Wilson's National League record of 56 home runs in one season and is 20 away from Roger Maris's major league mark of 61. The Reds have 40 games left.

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals bombed San Diego Padres 12-4, Chicago Cubs defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 6-2, Philadelphia Phillies downed Houston Astros 9-5, Pittsburgh Pirates beat San Francisco Giants 6-1 and Atlanta trimmed Montreal Expos 5-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before dropping a 7-2 decision in the nightcap.

Peden, Eldridge Capture Crowns

Doug Peden and Phil Eldridge collected the major awards Friday in the B.C. Golf Association, Zone One seniors championship tournament at the Uplands course.

Playing on his home course, Peden survived early problems and a tie-breaking countback to capture the zone crown and Eldridge, the steady swinger from Royal Colwood, earned the handicap title by carding a net 68.

Five over par after six holes, Peden overcame another two bogeys with two birdies over the final 12 holes to finish with a five-over 75 and in a deadlock with defending-champion Bill Thompson of Victoria Golf Club and Harry Donaldson, the long-hitter from Gorge Vale.

On the countback system used to break ties, Peden was awarded the title on the strength of his par 35 on the final nine holes.

Thompson, who damaged his chances by hitting a shot out of bounds on the eighth hole, won the gross championship in "C" division and Donaldson, who had carded 37 on the front nine, took the gross award in "D" division.

Gordon Verley of the Victoria club finished with 77 to lead "B" division and Cedar Hill's John Johnston posted an 86 to top the "A" (70 and over) section.

Winners of handicap awards were Barney Gahan (net 71) of Uplands in "A" division, Ernie Wheeler (68) of Cedar Hill in the "B" group, Harold Jones (68 of Colwood in "C" section and Joe Zdan (70) of Gorge in "D" division.

SISTERS IN FINALS

MONTREAL — Sisters Jennifer and Nina Bland of Victoria were attempting to collect a total of three titles today in the finals of the Quebec Open tennis championships.

Nina was defending the title she won last year in the under-18 singles final when she went against Clare Lardner of Toronto and Jennifer was gunning for the under-16 crown in a match against Toronto's Karen Dewis.

The Bland girls were also in the final of the under-18 doubles against Lardner and Helen Pelletier of Quebec. In their doubles semi-final Friday, the Victorians downed Dewis and Judith Pridham of Oakville, 6-1, 6-4.

In her singles semi-final, Jennifer posted a 6-4, 6-4 triumph over Ann Merkley of Toronto and Jenifer advanced in her division by outlasting Pridham in a 2-6, 6-4, 6-1 battle.

Top Seeds Suffer In Canadian Open

TORONTO (CP) — The top seeds continued to tumble Friday night at the Canadian Open tennis championships, with No. 1 Raul Ramirez heading the list in men's singles, thanks to Colin Dibley of Australia.

Earlier in third-round play, Wojtek Fibak of Poland, the No. 3 seed, was eliminated by Buster Mottram of Britain 6-3, 6-3.

Ramirez, who replaced defending champion Guillermo Vilas as the top seed because the Argentinian was unable to make the competition, spent all week fighting back from first-set losses. His luck ran out against the unseeded Dibley who advanced to today's quarter-finals with a 6-1, 4-6, 6-3 decision.

Manuel Orantes, the No. 2 seed, stayed alive with a 6-2, 6-7, 6-1 triumph over Hank Pfister of the United States in another third-round match, while Ricardo Cano of Argentina beat Bob Hewitt of South Africa 6-4, 6-3.

In other third-round matches, Jaime Fillol of Chile beat Andrew Parttison of Rhodesia 6-3, 6-4, Jeff Borowiak of the U.S. topped Victor Pecci of Paraguay 7-6, 7-6, Phil Dent of Australia beat Ivan Molina of Columbia 6-4, 7-5 and John Alexander of Australia eliminated John McEnroe of the U.S. 7-5, 6-7, 6-2.

On Thursday, the men lost three seeds—No. 3 Corrado Barazzutti of Italy, No. 10 Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia and No. 16 Bill Scanlon of the U.S.

Meanwhile, South Africa's Marise Kruger blasted forehands past American Jeanne Evert to win 6-3, 6-1 in the women's semi-finals.

In the other semi-final, Australian Cynthia Doerner could not hold her early lead and lost 1-6, 6-0, 6-3 to Czechoslovakian Regina Marsikova.

None of the four women was seeded in the tournament.

Canadians Qualify

SOFIA, Bulgaria (CP) — Canada's improving track and field team had a horde of athletes qualify Friday for further competition at the World Student Games.

Paced by high jumper Debbie Brill of Langley, B.C., and pole vaulter Bruce Simpson of Toronto, the Canadians qualified at an impressive pace on the first day of track and field competition.

Brill cleared the Games' high jump standard of 1.76 metres — far below her personal best — with little difficulty although she complained of being tired following a hectic recent schedule.

Simpson, who qualified with no difficulty at five metres, predicted he could easily be among the medal winners.

"If I can find enough recklessness or cockiness, I can win," he said. "Cockiness is not always socially acceptable but it's necessary for a vaulter."

Jean Sparling of Toronto and Marg Stride of Guelph, Ont., qualified at 400 metres and Anne Mackie Morelli of Vancouver and Francine Gendron of Laval, Que., stayed alive in 800 metres.

High jumper Brigitte Bittner of Russell, Ont., often overlooked in the attention given to the world-ranked Brill, had difficulty with her run-up and did not qualify with a leap of 1.73 metres, although her personal best is far above the Games' standard.

Liz Damman of Kitchener, Ont., and Pat Fogarty of St. Hilaire, Que., qualified in women's and men's 110-metre hurdles. Fogarty was unsuccessful in the long jump qualifications but Richard Rock of Toronto advanced.

Cole Doty of Toronto qualified at 100 metres. Bruno Pauletto of Sept-Iles, Que., heaved the shot 18.04 metres to finish fourth behind champion Valtcho Stoev of Bulgaria.

Peter Butler of Calgary wound up 16th in the 10,000-metre run, well behind champion Leonid Moisseev of the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, Jim Zoet of Port Perry, Ont., a seven-foot student at Lakehead University, scored 18 points and had 18 rebounds as the Canadian men's basketball team toyed with Syria 102-33.

Coach Jack Donohue used all his reserves and praised the improvement of Varouj Gurunlian of Montreal and Wayne Allison of Hamilton.

Athletics Reach Final

THE SOFTBALL SCENE

Ken Fox and Bob Gray have steered Victoria Athletics into the final round of the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoffs.

Competing in the league for the first season, Athletics made it a three-game sweep in their best-of-five semi-final Friday at Central Park by clipping Colony Inn 2-1.

Gray supplied the early power, smashing a fourth-inning home run to lift Athletics into a 1-1 deadlock after Colony had jumped out in front in the third on a run-scoring single by Jim McHattie.

Fox took over from there, completing his route-going pitching performance by yielding only one hit over the final three frames and scoring the winning run.

Fox, who gave up a total of three hits — all singles — and two bases-on-balls, worked Colony pitcher Bob Dobish for a walk with two out in fifth and rode home with the winning tally on successive singles by Randy Benn and Rick Bate.

Dobish was also sharp on the mound, allowing four hits and walking three batters.

In the other semi-final, which resumes Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the Central diamond, Seaboard Construction leads Sooke Merchants 2-1.

In the Heywood Men's League Friday, Remco Office Supplies and Capital Builders were deadlocked at 2-2 after nine innings when failing light forced a halt. The teams will clash again Sunday at 3 p.m. at Heywood Park.

Builders lead that best-of-five series 2-0 and Castle Properties lead Century Inn 2-1 in the other, which resumes Sunday at 1 p.m.

TREVINO SPARKS U.S. TEAM

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP) — Lee Trevino birdied the 18th hole to seize a half with Scotland's Brian Barnes and insure the United States a semi-final berth in the Double Diamond world golf tournament Friday.

The victory gave the United States the championship in its group, Scotland was second.

The 37-year-old Trevino, recent winner of the Canadian Open, was 2-up with five holes to play but lost three straight holes before salvaging it with the birdie-four, giving the U.S. team a 2½-1½ victory over the Scots.

The United States now meets the Rest of the World for a place in today's final.

Trevino had warmed up for his performance with a morning win in which he took seven straight holes after being four down on the ninth tee to Welshman David Llewellyn.

In the U.S.-Scotland match, American captain Bill Casper went down to a 2-and-1 defeat against Sam Torrance, the Scot's 10-yard putt at the 17th ending the match, and for a long while the United States looked vulnerable.

But Jerry Pate, 1976 U.S. Open Champ, came in with a 3-and-1 win over Bernard Gallacher and birdies at the par-three 14th and 16th holes enabled Bob Murphy to beat David Ingram 2-and-1.

COLTS COOL VIKINGS

Times News Services

Baltimore Colts converted two first-half fumble recoveries into touchdowns, one on a six-yard Bert Jones pass, and frustrated four good Minnesota scoring chances to defeat the Vikings 29-7 in a National Football League exhibition at Baltimore Friday night.

It was Minnesota's first defeat in three pre-season starts. The Colts also are 2-1 in exhibition play.

In Friday's only other game, quarterback Brian Sipe passed for two touchdowns to lead the Browns to a 19-10 victory over St. Louis Cardinals at Cleveland.

Sipe, playing the first three quarters, connected on 13 of 20 passing attempts for 163 yards to help the Browns post their first pre-season victory in three tries.

Canadians Win

Gail Sets Course Mark

BROISBRIAND, Que. (CP) — Stacey West of Thornhill, Ont., a long-hitting 18-year-old, led the field leading into the final round today of the 72-hole Canadian women's amateur golf championship.

West, who won her second consecutive national junior championship last week at Manotick, Ont., shot a two-over-par 73 Friday on the 6,015-yard Hillsdale Golf and Country Club course to take a one-stroke lead over second-round leader Cathy Sherk of Fonthill, Ont., who had a 77 Friday.

West's three-round total of 229, 10 over par, gave her a two-stroke margin over Gail Harvey Moore of Vancouver, who set a women's course record of 73 and was in third place.

West Canadian junior champion three of the last four years, birdied the par-five 435-yard first hole and then bogeyed the fourth, seventh and 12th.

Sherk, who lost in the match play final of the U.S. amateur championship last week at Cincinnati, was expected to give West a close battle today in the final round.

Moore, 34, was posed to strike for her second Canadian title, having won in 1970 at Toronto.

"If I have another 73 in my purse, maybe I can do it," she said. "I think a lot of it is the confidence to get up there and hit the shots."

Cheryl McConnell of Kingsville, Ont., had a third-round 75 and was tied for fourth place with Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver at 232. Palmer shot a 77 Friday.

The field was cut to the low 36 for the final round today and it took a score of 249 to qualify. A field of 62 teed off Friday after 64 made the second-round cut and two scratched.

DOLPHINS SEEK TO END STREAK

Victoria Dolphins will attempt to break a long fast Sunday at Royal Athletic Park while opening the home portion of their B.C. Big Four Junior Football League schedule.

Dolphins, who haven't won a league game in three seasons, will take on Renfrew Trojans at 2 p.m. and the possibility of success appears greater than ever before.

In the first two games this season in Vancouver's Empire Stadium, Dolphins dropped a narrow 17-14 decision to Surrey Rams and were beaten 18-6 by Vancouver Blue Bombers.

"We've had trouble competing with the Mainland teams, no question. But I think this year's team could be the one to get us out of the habit of losing," said head coach Frank Hindle, who returned to lead the Dolphins last year after a three-season absence.

The reason for such optimism on the part of Hindle and other observers centres on a strong defence and some individual standouts.

Tackle Tod Peterson enjoys the unlikely distinction, for a defenceman, as the club's leading soccer with three touchdowns. Two of the TDs were on recovered fumbles and the other was on a blocked kick.

Among the other outstanding performers expected to see action Sunday are Rob Fee, who anchors the secondary; Iggy Kadar, the club's steadiest ground-gainer at fullback; and John Buxcey, who rates as the club's top running back.

On the minus side, Dolphins are missing several players who are on a cross-country tour with the James Bay Athletic Association rugby team.

Two Shots Separate 14

And five others—Miller Barber, Leonard Thompson, Howard Twitty, Rod Curl and Charles Coody, all tied with Weiskopf and Wiechers at seven-under-par 135—are seeking the $60,000 first prize in the rich Westchester tournament.

The seven-man tie for first place halfway through this $300,000 event represents the largest number sharing the lead in any tour event since nine players were locked for the first-round lead in the 1969 Professional Golfers' Association national championship.

In addition, there are three golfers one shot off the lead and four others another shot behind, producing a group of 14 players within two shots of each other after 36 holes over the 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course.

Lanny Wadkins and Gene Littler, who had to go to a playoff to decide the PGA title at Pebble Beach, Calif., last weekend, both failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Wadkins, the PGA champion, had a 77-152 and Littler was 73-150.

Jack Nicklaus just made the cutoff figure of 145 after a second-round 74. Johnny Miller had his best round of the season, a 66, and was at 139. He was tied with Tom Watson, who said he played poorly although shooting a 68 and added, "I have no hope of winning playing the way I am right now."

The winner of the Kemper Open earlier in the year, Weiskopf said his principal goal "is trying to qualify for the World Series of Golf." He needs another victory to do it.

Of the other leaders, Thompson had a 66, Curl and Wiechers 67s, Twitty and Coody 68s, Barber a 69.

None was more pleased than the veteran Wiechers, who is considering leaving the tour and actually had his playing rights revoked earlier this year. They were restored, he said, after "a couple of nasty letters to (PGA tour commissioner Deane) Beman."

Courageous Triumphs

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner found air for Courageous' sails on the last leg of Friday's duel with Enterprise, sailing past the newer 12-metre yacht to win another race in the America's Cup defence finals.

The New York Yacht Club ended the race at the fourth instead of the sixth mark because of light winds at six knots from the east-southeast. The race committee also cancelled the second race that had been planned for the day.

The foreign semifinals between Australia's Gretel II and Sweden's Sverige was scheduled to resume on Today after a day off. Sverige holds a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series.

Austin Breaks Away With Help of Putter

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — Debbie Austin, the surprise success story of the 1977 women's pro golf tour, fired a five-under-par 67 Friday for a three-stroke lead in the first round of the $50,000 Wheeling tournament.

Rolling in three birdie putts of 20 feet or more, Austin overcame a potentially disastrous double bogey on the difficult 195-yard, part-three 11th hole in shooting the third best round in the four-year history of the Wheeling tournament.

Joyce Kazmierski, a non-winner during nine years on the tour, had a two-under 70 for second place.

Six golfers — Hollis Stacey, Laura Baugh, Pat Meyers, Bonnie Lauer, Debbie Meisterlin and Mary Horner — shot one-under-par 71s. Jane Blalock, the defending champion, was tied at par-72 with Cathy Duggan and M. J. Smith.

Alberta Shooter National Champ

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Darius Young of Winterburn, Alta., collected 1,756 points and hit 73 bullseyes to win the master's division of 1,800 event in the Canadian national hand gun championships.

Our History Speaks for Itself.

History. The record of Canada's two most valuable resources—her people and her land.

At Dean Park Estates, we are proud of the farsighted and talented people who made it possible for us to offer some of the finest real estate in this country.

Two men stand out in the history of Dean Park Estates.

John Dean — a fascinating eccentric

People who knew him often refer to John Dean as a "fascinating eccentric." He was born in Stretton, Cheshire, England in December, 1850. He came up to British Columbia from California in 1885. In 1903 he was Mayor of Rothland and eventually found his way to Victoria.

John Dean continued his involvement in politics. He was the first to advocate city management of the entire Greater Victoria area and single tax within the region.

He was also a great "tourist booster," often conducting large-scale campaigns by mail to attract visitors to Victoria and the Island generally.

In 1921, John Dean donated eighty acres (where he owned a house) to be used for a park. He was a naturalist—and a kind-hearted man, often inviting the Boy Scouts to camp on his land.

"The wonders of the sky"

John Dean died March 28th, 1943, in his ninety-third year. He was a life-long bachelor, and some have attributed his ripe old age to this.

His tombstone at the Ross Bay Cemetery reads: "It is a rotten world, artful politicians are its bane. Its saving grace is the artlessness of the young and the wonders of the sky."

Barrett Montfort - a man with broad interests

The second man who stands out in the history of Dean Park Estates is another life-long bachelor, Barrett Montfort.

Photographs of Barrett Montfort are rare, because he warded off publicity, although he was never a recluse.

Barrett Montfort served his full career with the Chemical Bank of New York in the U.S.A. and ultimately became its representative in London, England.

An "investor in real estate"

He first visited Canada around 1940 and made a real estate purchase near Toronto. He proceeded to make a number of other purchases around the Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria area.

At his death in 1962, most of his estate was left to charity. His farm at Oyster River went to the University of British Columbia, with the provision that it remain a farm.

Barrett Montfort first became interested in Dean Park and the surrounding area in the early 40's, as he heard there were plans to log off the beautiful land around the park.

One of the prime areas in all of Canada. . .

Realizing what a magnificent piece of property it was, he initially bought the land and put an end to all discussion of logging, in order to protect the park.

As adjoining areas of land came up for sale, Mr. Montfort purchased them. His dream was a fine development, planned in an orderly and beautiful fashion, to become a "second Uplands" for Victoria. Its convenient location in relation to Victoria and Sidney was ideal. And the view of the Gulf Islands surrounded by the sparkling blue Pacific with Mount Baker for a backdrop, beside a wooded park with all its potential for family discovery and enjoyment, made Dean Park Estates one of the prime areas for people to live, in all of Canada.

Protecting the Park

His original purpose had been to protect the natural beauty of John Dean Park, and Barrett Montfort saw this come true just two years before his death. Small additions to John Dean's original eighty acres had been made over the years, but by far the most substantial addition was made in late '59 and early '60 when Mr. Montfort was seventy years old.

Barrett Montfort and some of his neighbors around Dean Park contributed over two hundred and sixty-eight acres to the park—more than tripling its size. Mr. Montfort gave approximately one hundred and seventy acres of this land himself.

Hard-nosed businessman — soft-hearted benefactor

Mr. Montfort is known in real estate circles across Canada for his ability to recognize superior real estate. He had the reputation of being a shrewd, hard-nosed businessman, but there was another side to his character.

During the Second World War, Barrett Montfort paid for eight English children whose homes had been bombed to come to Canada with their nurses. He built them a home on Holly Farm in Gordon Head, and paid all their living expenses, including their return passage to England when the War was over.

As an investor in real estate, Barrett Montfort rarely sold any of his property. One exception was the Holly Farm. He sold it because he was told that a children's hospital would be constructed there. The proceeds were donated to charity.

Montfort's dream — your reality

Today, fifteen years after his death, Barrett Montfort's dream of beautiful homes at Dean Park Estates can become your reality. Three hundred and sixty-five acres of choice property are available — comprising part of the same forested hillside as Dean Park itself. Just twelve miles from Victoria off the Pat Bay Highway, you are two miles from the airport and four from Swartz Bay. All the shopping facilities of Sidney are just two miles away.

Barrett Montfort

High standards are being maintained in all phases of the development, so you can be assured that your valuable investment will be protected.

The good business practices and high regard for people, displayed by such men as John Dean and Barrett Montfort, live on today at Dean Park Estates.

PARKS GROUP WANTS CAMPAGNOLA TO QUIT

TORONTO (CP) — The board of directors of the Canadian Parks and Recreation Association has called for the resignation of Iona Campagnolo, federal minister of state for fitness and amateur sport.

A statement Thursday by association president W. R. Green said Mrs. Campagnolo has not demonstrated sufficient concern and attention for recreation.

A resolution passed by the association at its annual meeting said there has been a decline in the quantity and quality of recreation-related programs run by the department of national health and welfare.

Sex Switch Certified

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg resident has obtained a new birth certificate officially changing his sexual status to male from female.

Linda T. O'Connell, founder of the American Gender Change Family, said Thursday the individual received the certificate last week. She said the application took only eight weeks to process and sets a precedent in Manitoba.

Intruders with Axes Chase Woodworkers

WESLEY, ME. (CP) — State police at Orono, Me., said today they have made "some positive identification" and are seeking more in their investigation of an incident Wednesday in which a group of workers, many of them Canadians, were chased from a woods camp near here by axe and club-swinging intruders.

The incident apparently stems from long-standing resentment among workers in the area against use of Canadians in the woods.

A Maine State Police spokesman said the investigation of the incident is continuing in close co-operation with the district attorney's office.

About 40 men, women and children, about two thirds of them Canadians, returned to the work camp Thursday but left for their homes in Canada later in the day after being interviewed by police.

"As far as I know, they'll be back Monday," the police officer said. "There's some security there. The paper company has hired some security guards."

A spokesman for St. Regis Paper Co., owner of the camp, said Thursday that no dollar value could be placed on damage done but the cost of repairs likely would be several thousands of dollars.

There were no injuries in the incident.

John Gould Jr., public relations officer for the paper company, said today that cleanup crews were making essential repairs to such things as toilets and that the camp would reopen Monday.

He added that security has been tightened up substantially since the incident to keep unauthorized persons from the area.

PHYLLIS LENNOX TAKES THE CAKE

EDMONTON (CP) — Phyllis Lennox of Edmonton flies more than 2,000 miles next week hoping to win a $25 prize.

When she leaves Edmonton for Toronto Monday, she also hopes to have an ornate birthday cake in her lap.

Mrs. Lennox is an entrant in the Canadian National Exhibition's baking contest next Tuesday.

She is taking pies, cookies, bread and muffins for CNE contests as well. But because she's resting most of her hopes on the Australian lace birthday cake, she proposes to carry it all the way to Toronto.

"It's the biggie," says Mrs. Lennox, whose cake decorating and baking hobby has turned into a lucrative part-time business. She won a diamond ring in one city shopping mall contest.

"I was pretty surprised to get a letter from a woman who said she would be flying to Toronto just for the bake contest," said Peg Hasler, supervisor of the CNE handicrafts and baking competitions.

Administrator Set For Namibia Post

PRETORIA (Reuter) — An administrator-general for the disputed territory of South-West Africa (Namibia) will take office in Windhoek on Sept. 1, the South African government announced today.

Judge Marthinus Steyn, 37, will run the territory until it gains independence from South Africa — expected in 1979 — with powers to make, amend or repeal laws by proclamation, today's government Gazette said.

The new post was announced after talks in Cape Town in June between Prime Minister John Vorster and envoys of five western countries seeking a transfer to majority government in Namibia.

Canadian Heads UN Food Scheme

ROME (Reuter) — Garson Vogel, chief of the Canadian wheat board, will become the new executive director of the UN's world food program in October, diplomatic sources said today.

He will control a worldwide effort to supply food to workers on development projects in third world countries, with a budget of $750 million for 1977-1978.

JAPANESE COMMUNITY GIVEN $7,500 GRANT

The New Denver community hall, the focal point of the Japanese community during the Second World War, is to be renovated with the help of a $7,500 grant from the provincial government.

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Friday many of the Japanese are still in the New Denver area in the Kootenays about 30 miles north of Nelson, but the hall "is run-down and in need of extensive repair."

He said in a news release that the grant is being made in recognition of the centennial of Japanese settlement in B.C.

Bombing Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI says there were 683 bombing incidents in the United States and Puerto Rico during the first half of this year, a decline from the 774 incidents reported during the same period a year ago.

200 New Fires Reported

The forest fire situaion throughout B.C. is explosive, Frank Tannock, provincial fire suppression administrator, said Friday.

"However, with light winds and minor electrical storms continuing, we expect to maintain control of the situation," Tannock said in the weekly forest protection report.

He said high to extreme fire hazards are reported in most areas of the province, and noted that the campfire ban continues throughout southern and northwest portions of B.C.

There were 200 new fires reported in the province during the past week, of which 169 still burning.

There have been 1,520 fires so far this year burning 7,890 acres. This compares to 754 fires which burned 100,051 acres during the same period last year.

The campfire ban also was extended Friday to cover the entire Nelson forest district, including the area from the Alberta boundary and the United States border west to Revelstoke.

Open fires are banned in the Vancouver, Kamloops and Nelson forest districts and most of the Prince Rupert forest district.

Revenue Sharing Act Supported

The legislature Friday gave unanimous approval in principle to a bill to guarantee municipalities a more equitable share in provincial revenues.

All members of the house voted to give second reading support to the Revenue Sharing Act, which Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis described as "the most significant development in local government assistance ever presented to this assembly."

The bill means municipalities will receive six per cent of revenue from sales tax, fuel tax, and lands, forests and minerals income as well as one percentage point of both personal income tax and corporate tax.

Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria), his party's municipal affairs critic, told the legislature although the bill is reasonable and competent, it has weaknesses.

Barber said instead of having a fixed minimum amount that could be relied upon as is the present case, municipalities will face greater uncertainties once the bill becomes law.

He said that if provincial revenues decline because of mismanagement of the economy by the government, municipalities will suffer.

As well, he said that because this and past Social Credit governments have been notorious in underestimating revenue and overestimating expenditures, municipalities will not know where they will stand from year to year.

Barber also said that, through his calculation, municipalities would have received about $500,000 less last year if the proposed formula had been in effect, compared with the $103 million they actually received.

Curtis disputed the figures, saying his ministry had examined actual payments during the past several years and had found only one instance, in 1972-73, where the payments would have been lower.

NDP leader Dave Barrett said it is hypocritical to talk of better revenue sharing when the government has failed to collect $58 million in taxes it could have collected had it not sold out to the rich and powerful.

He said the government could have collected $24 million in increased coal royalties if it had wanted, and could have added $35 million to provincial coffers this year if it had retained inheritance taxes.

Plane Hits Cars

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — A private airplane crashed into two cars and two trucks on a freeway here Friday, killing at least three people, the California Highway Patrol said. All of those killed were in the vehicles struck by the twin-engine Piper Navajo in the freeway's southbound lanes.

Luring Que. Firms 'Against Unity'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) Friday repudiated any attempts by local governments to lure businesses out of Quebec.

In a day-long meeting here, the federation's board of directors passed a motion saying the FCM will extend no support to member municipalities who encourage corporations, concerned about the Parti Quebecois government, to move their offices from Quebec.

Vancouver Mayor Jack Volrich, federation president, said it has had reports of municipalities offering incentives to businesses in such situations and said such action is "against the interest of national unity."

Alderman David Smith of Toronto, an FCM vice-president, said there have been several such incidents in Ontario and the federation must "nip this before it becomes widespread."

Volrich admitted that the FCM has no real power over its member municipalities, but said symbolic actions such as the resolution can be important.

On another matter, the FCM directors called for criminal code changes that will give police more power to deal with prostitution and other street problems.

Since a 1972 change in the criminal code, police are powerless to deal with loitering, laying about or soliciting, Smith said. Police previously were able to use vagrancy sections of the criminal code in such cases.

"We need something back in the criminal code that will allow us to deal with a situation that we are powerless to come to grips with," he said.

CHESS AND WOMEN, WOMEN AND CHESS

A persistent question in the world of chess is why the game has so few good women players. There have been some, true. For example, no one could doubt the towering strength of Russian Grandmaster Nona Gaprindashvili, presently Women's Champion of the World. But let us hear what other (male) Grandmasters and women players have to say on this important question:

Israel's Alla Kushnir, previously of the USSR, (who beat Larry Evans last year at Lone Pine in a tournament Evans eventually won) says: "There has undeniably been some progress in women's chess. However, it is still at a very average level and it lacks creativity."

★ ★ ★

Bobby Fischer: "There isn't a woman player in the world I can't give a Knight-odds to and still beat."

(In reply to this the USSR's famous Mikhael Tal reprovingly said: "Fischer is Fischer, but a Knight is a Knight!")

★ ★ ★

—Grandmaster Robert Byrne, USA

★ ★ ★

"Women play worse because they are only women."
—Grandmaste. Lothar Schmid, Germany

—Grandmaster Jan Donner, Holland

★ ★ ★

—Grandmaster Bill Lombardy, USA

★ ★ ★

"Women cannot stay silent for five hours."
—Chaude de Silans, France

★ ★ ★

And some comments are merely puzzled:

"Maybe . . . those women who play chess are not the best ones . . ."
—Grandmaster Lubomir Kavalek, USA

★ ★ ★

—Grandmaster Svetozar Gligoric, Yugoslavia

★ ★ ★

"Nobody asks such questions about female doctors, but in chess we are simply not on the same level."
—Milunka Lazarevic, Women's Champion of Yugoslavia

★ ★ ★

However, occasionally a male champion finds himself done in by a woman. Here is the wry reply of Former World Champion Max Euwe of Holland when asked how he came to be beaten by Britain's famous Vera Menchik: "I didn't expect her to see so much."

★ ★ ★

But for an example of triumph in defeat, I like best the comment of International Master Milunka Lazarevic, Women's Champion of Yugoslavia:

"We play worse chess, basketball, tennis, etc., because we have the job of bringing into this world those clever men who do it better."

★ ★ ★

The solution to the problem above is: B-K3, NxR; 2.B-Q7 mate; or 1 . . . NxRP; 2.QxP mate; or 1 . . . KxR; 2.B-B2 mate.

Mystery Lady on Lonely Desert Trek

PERTH, Australia (AP) — A woman is crossing the forbidding central Australian desert with four camels and a dog, say rangers, missionaries and travellers who claim to have seen her. But no one knows who the mysterious "camel lady" is or why she is there.

The reports indicate the woman is nearing the end of a 620-mile, two-month trek across the sand dunes, salt marshes and scrublands of the Gibson desert from Ayers Rock in central Australia to Wiluna in Western Australia.

She has been reported twice by police and mission station staff. And a farmer, Dennis Barell, said he saw her after noticing a campfire while he was crossing central Australia.

"When I saw the fire, I jammed on the brakes and called out," he said later in Melbourne. "She was beautiful. The moon was out and the camel pack was standing on the edge of the mulga (bush) with their bells tinkling."

But the woman did not respond to Barell's call.

Constable Mick Leverence of Wiluna said this week that the woman was only 155 miles northeast of the town on the edge of the desert. A cattle station had reported she arrived there about a week before.

"By now, the camel lady should be near Well No. 10 on the canning stock route and about to turn south toward Wiluna," he said. "The track, called the Gunbarrel Highway, is very rough."

A ranger at Ayers Rock, a huge granite outcrop in the centre of Australia said the camel lady left there more than two months ago.

"The last report I heard was that she had trouble with wild camels. She had to shoot two wild bulls who were attracted by her females," he said.

Toronto Firm Buys U.S. Hotel

TORONTO (CP) — Rostland Corp. of Toronto, formed last January, has purchased the Arizona Biltmore Hotel in Phoenix, Ariz., for more than $20 million, it was announced today.

Kenneth Rotenberg, company president, said Rostland also agreed to buy about 100 acres of undeveloped land near the resort hotel, bringing the total cost of the deal to $27 million. He said Western International Hotels will manage the Arizona Biltmore when the purchase is completed Sept. 1.

Festival Performances Superb

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

As the B.C. International Festival draws to a close — the concluding concert takes place Tuesday at St. Michael's University School — impressions of the finest music magnificently performed continue to crowd in, much of it certain to haunt the memory and be savored through the coming months.

In the last week we have heard a seldom performed Mendelssohn chamber work, the Octet in E flat major, Opus 20. This is lovely music that involves a double string quartet. Meticulously rehearsed it was performed by an ensemble that consisted of the string players from the distinguished Quartetto Beethoven di Roma, the other four being Shawnigan Summer School faculty's Yuri Mazurkevich, violin, Hakuro Mori, cello, Leslie Malowany, viola, and two students who are also professional performers, Chantal Juillet and Angela Cavadas.

One of the brightest highlights in a festival series that has strung them out like beads on a cord, the eight performers played with superb precision and singular unity of thought in shaping and dynamic balance.

At the same concert that supreme teacher of the cello, Harvey Shapiro, performed the Rachmaninoff Sonata in G minor with Robin McCabe at the piano. A firm but sweet and rich tone and a living sense of the music's every nuance developed through a sensitive bow and supple left hand, provided a superb interpretation fully shared by McCabe's keyboard artistry.

Another performance of quite exceptional beauty was Canadian baritone Roland Richard's singing of the Schumann Dichterliebe cycle. These incomparable songs perfectly suited Richard's rich sonorous voice, responsiveness to the poetry and sensitive command of vocal coloration. Fine support was given by Denise Masse at the piano.

One of the fascinating characteristics of this international event is that, because it evolves from the top level Summer School, it engenders much spontaneous music-making of the msot superlative kind, unquestionably the equal of what could be heard in a round of all the world festival centres.

A wide range of ensemble playing is possible and undertaken as witness the Mendelssohn, combinations of flute, guitar and other instruments and something as unique as Eugene Kurtz's musical sketch for one man, one woman and one contrabass, titled The Last Contrabass in Las Vegas.

It's a composition that can be regarded as a musical joke which could have been written expressly for Gary Karr's incredible technique and ability to produce the most astonishing — and beautiful — sound effects from his oversize fiddle.

The performance included golden-throated Phyllis Mailing who has been thrilling audiences with her singing and now impressed listeners with her pronounced ability as an actress. Incidentally this is one of the msot beautiful one of the most beautiful in this city for many years, and considering that she is a Vancouver resident it is curious that local organizations have failed to take advantage of that fact.

On several occasions Karr's wizardry has transported his audience despite the fact that the clowning he indulges in at times disturbs a few people. A considerable showman with an ebullient sense of fun, Karr is also an artist who is incapable of uttering a careless or unbeautiful phrase.

As an example of perfectly poised teamwork it would be difficult to find anything to excel Karr with Harmon Lewis at the piano, nor, at still another concert, Karr with violinist Ruggiero Ricci and Lewis, thoroughly enjoying themselves and thrilling their listeners.

Another artist of world stature, Canadian flutist Robert Aitken, partnered by McCabe, recently performed Reinecke's "Undine" Sonata, displaying the pure fine-textured tone, the disciplined perfectly breath-controlled phrases for which he is noted. Technical command of his instrument permitted a glittering virtuosity in the Paganini Variations which he added as an encore.

Concerts by the 150-member student body have filled the intervening nights at St. Michael's and these, remembering that most are themselves professionals and teachers, are pretty consistently of a high calibre.

Tuesday's concert will hold some surprises but not in the area of quality. It begins at 8 p.m.

Machineguns Win Round One

VANCOUVER (CP) — A weapons collector who dubbed himself "Machinegun Martinoff" won the right in British Columbia county court Friday to register two fully-automatic firearms.

Judge J. J. Anderson dismissed an appeal by the attorney-general against an earlier ruling in provincial court that the commissioner of the RCMP issue registration certificates for both weapons.

The decision climaxed a lengthy battle by Michael Martinoff, 30, a Vancouver economics consultant, who is fighting to have the weapons registered so he can legally possess them.

Martinoff still needs conveyance permits to take the weapons from the police station to his home and to convey them to firing ranges to shoot them.

Judge Anderson said he thought the appeal should have been made by the Attorney-General of Canada and that he was unable to find any authority to stay the provincial court order.

Martinoff said in a press release that the provincial court decision in his case was significant because it established that whenever a local registrar of firearms refuses to forward applications for registration of firearms to the RCMP commissioner for consideration, applicants can apply directly to the commissioner.

A Christian introduction

The Greater Victoria Lay School of Theology has announced its fall program which lasts through 10 successive Tuesday evenings beginning on Sept. 27 at 8 p.m. in the Christian Education Centre of Metropolitan United Church, Quadra and Pandora.

The first hour will aim at providing a general introduction to Christian doctrine with a study of some characteristic theologians of today. A variety of specialist teachers will be in charge of the course.

The second hour will offer two courses: one of Significant Christian Centres and Holy Places, e.g. Jerusalem, Rome, Ireland, Iona, St. Andrews, Paris and Canterbury and Compostella; the other course will be given by Bishop R. J. Pierce and will be an exposition of the Book of Isaiah.

Johnson to train teachers

Lutheran minister at two-week clinic

Rev. Alfred Johnson of Lutheran Church of the Cross, 1525 Cedar Hill Cross Road, is attending a two-week orientation clinic of the Bethel Series, an international Bible study program administered by the Adult Christian Education Foundation in Madison, Wis. The series is in its 17th year.

Orientation clinics are attended by pastors and Christian education directors who return to their churches to train lay teachers. The teachers, in turn, present an overview study of scriptures to adult members, which is the foundation for continuing adult study.

Since 1950, more than 3,705 congregations, representing 17 denominations have involved more than half a million lay teachers and students in the Bethel series.

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. DAVIDSON

A study of the gospels shows that Jesus had little patience with the religious sentimentality that would use piety as an excuse for failing to show the care and the initiative and the astuteness which are of the essence of practical wisdom.

He gave this warning to his disciples at a time when they seemed to be presuming on their faith and their good intentions: "For the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." As the New English Bible gives it, "For the worldly age more astute than the other-worldly in dealing with their own kind." (Luke 16:8)

Do we modern Christians show in our practice of faith the intelligence and the sharpness and the concentration we show in our professions and businesses, in curling or playing bridge, in shopping for groceries or planning a fishing trip? Do we bring to our religion the care and astuteness with which we prepare our income-tax returns? Do we have the enthusiasm for our religion that we have for our favorite football teams?

Do we Christians today — most of us, anyway — bring to our faith the same depth of devotion, the same degree of dedication, the same intensity of effort, which most communists seem to bring to their faith?

Let's be honest about this: Most of us most of the time are much more efficient and much more effective as "children of the world" than we are as "children of light."

Some 60 years ago the influential Scottish theologian, P. T. Forsyth, offered this observation: "Nowhere has mediocrity its chance as it has in religion." Can we challenge the truth of that?

More recently T. E. Jessop, an English philosophy professor and lay leader in the Methodist Church, speaking of modern church life said this: "We have a habit of doing good things badly, supposing that their goodness excuses their inefficiency; but it is the inefficiency that strikes the world, the indecisiveness, uncollaborativeness and unskilfulness that would not be tolerated by a secular body comparable in size and importance with the Church."

I feel uneasy, and a little guilty, when I think about the statements of Forsyth and Jessop: too often I have been more efficient and effective as a child of this world than as a child of light. And what about you, my fellow Christians? To mean well is not enough for us; we must also do well, as well as our natural endowments and circumstances allow. Christian commitment demands that we use all the intelligence, all the skill and astuteness, all the worldly wisdom and creative energy that we have.

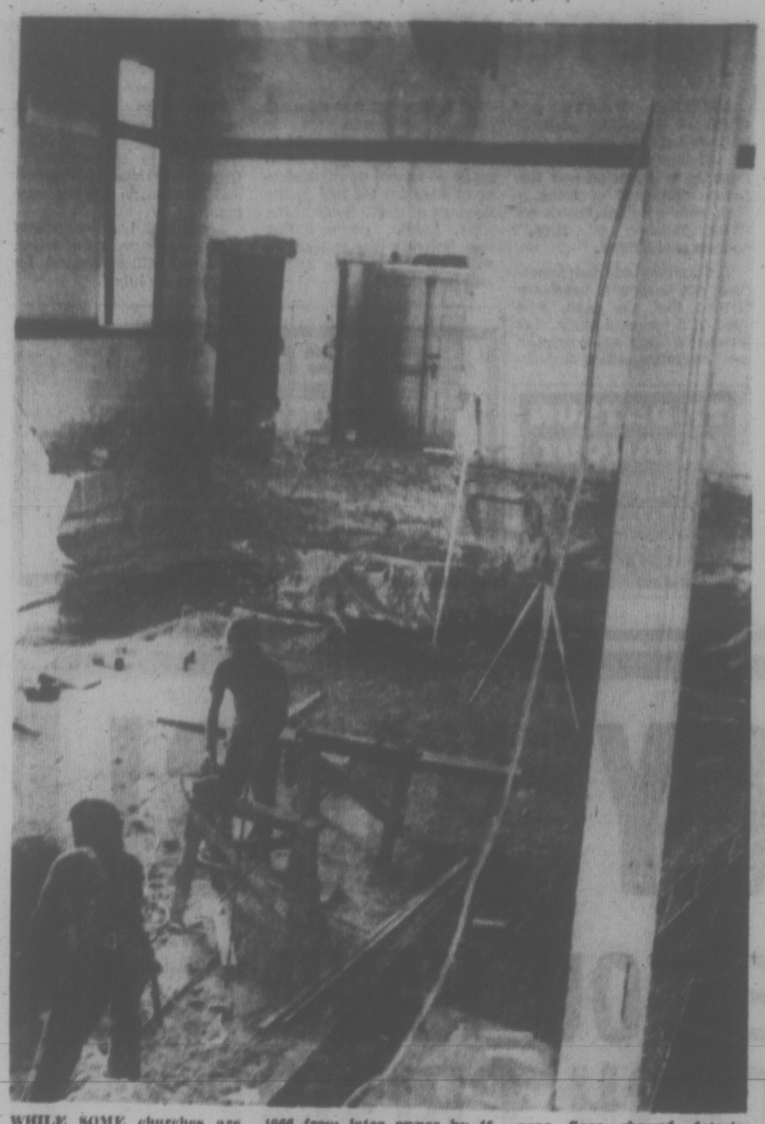
Love Loaves: Modern manna



WHILE SOME churches are raising roof over one thing or another these days, Unitarian Church at 106 Superior is raising floor. Building was constructed in 1912 as Seaman's Institute. It was purchased in 1966 from later owner by 45 members of church who organized and financed private company to buy it. They turned it over to church in 1975. Improvements and modifications were made but last year floor showed deterioration and dry rot set in supporting beams. Bequests from church members Annie Anderson and Dr. Herman Verns allowed not only floor repair but extension of basement. Completion is expected by Oct. 1 at total cost of $35,000. Summer services are being held in upstairs lounge in meantime.

Although those little plastic Love Loaves, available through World Vision for fund-raising, are not edible themselves, they're like manna from heaven for thousands of hungry children throughout the world.

In themselves, the Love Loaves are simple plastic banks that hold about $10 in small change. Members of church congregations put them on their dinner tables and the family contributes what it can, knowing that when the bank is full it will be returned to World Vision and the funds used to help people in need.

Sometimes families set an extra place at the table and put into the bank the amount it would cost to feed an extra person each day for a month or so.

Trudy Sweatman, special representative for World Vision in the Victoria area, says nearly 300 children are sponsored by Vancouver Island families, 75 of them since the beginning of January.

The Love Loaves are one way to help.

"But don't just toss in the money," Miss Sweatman says. "Do something to earn it." This could mean such things as going without lunch for a day or walking to work instead of taking a bus.

World Vision is a non-profit international charitable organization founded in 1950 by Dr. Bob Pierce. A woman missionary in China had thrust a sick baby into Pierce's arms in 1947 and this was still on his mind when in the Korean War, he was struck by the plight of ragged and starving war orphans.

On his return to the United States after the war, Pierce met with friends and businessmen who wanted to help. Since then, more than 114,000 children have been sponsored by the organization throughout the world.

Love Loaf beside extra place setting

Hospitals, homes for lepers, the blind, the crippled and assistance to missionaries are examples of how World Vision funds have been put to work.

When churches raise funds through such endeavors as Love Loaves, 40 per cent of the money goes to World Vision; the other 60 per cent is retained for the church's own charitable work. Miss Sweatman says World Vision tries to operate on a 14.1 per cent overhead and its books are always open to public inspection.

One of the major benefits of chanelling funds through World Vision, she says, is that goods purchased for needy people are always received at their destination by members of the organization, thus avoiding black-market operators.

Miss Sweatman says World Vision is so well known now that the government of Canada assists many of its projects financially.

World Vision has five basic ministries:

CHILD CARE—The 114,000 sponsored children in 40 countries, the World Vision Children's Choir and music centre in Seoul, Korea.

EMERGENCY RELIEF — About $4 million spent annually in food, drugs, medicines and other supplies to people in emergency situations such as war, famine, floods and earth-quakes. Victoria churches were generous in aid to Guatemala, the Philippines and Bangladesh.) Proceeds from the Love Loaf program also go to emergency relief.

DEVELOPMENT — Help ing people to help themselves. (You don't help people with bandage solutions but by helping them to help themselves, is a World Vision principle.) After emergency aid, the organization helps provide work programs, build dams, dig wells, grow crops. In many cases food is given as payment for work. Help is given in construction of medical facilities.

Agricultural equipment, seed and livestock is supplied. There's help in irrigation projects and help in rehabilitating refugees through simple village housing projects.

LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT —Pastors' conferences provide training for church leadership leading to more effective evangelism and pastoral care. In Canada, professional time-management seminars are open to businessmen, pastors and anyone interested. (A meeting is scheduled for the Four Seasons Hotel in Vancouver, Sept. 29 and 30.)

EVANGELISM — Through the growth of Christian churches, 16,000 Bible courses have been sponsored for children in Indochina and another 32,000 in Korea.

Miss Sweatman says hundreds of thousands of dollars a month flow into World Vision projects from Canada alone — "from people who care, the grass roots."

For example, World Vision is sponsoring the Bowker Brothers piano duo in a concert of sacred music at Metropolitan United Church Oct. 20. A week earlier, Aug. 13, Love Loaves will be on sale at a World Vision bake and craft table at Victoria's Hillside Mall, all proceeds going toward the organization's work.

In addition, home parties are held in which couples who already sponsor children are invited to bring couples who don't. Films and photographs are shown explaining how World Vision works.

Miss Sweatman emphasizes that she would be "most happy" to show these films and photos to any interested groups and she is willing to speak to any group on the work of the organization.

In addition, child care folders containing pictures and case histories of children ready for sponsoring are available from Miss Sweatman by phoning 388-2720.

Presbyterian turn in park

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will hold the 11th in a series of 12 gospel services in Beacon Hill Park's Cameron Pavilion at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The service will be conducted by Rev. Bruce Molloy. The musical program will include selections by a mixed quartet comprised by Phyllis Cooley, Pauline Pierce, John Bell and Harry Schalt.

General council set Sunday

Rev. Frank Patterson, new chairman of Victoria presbytery of the United Church of Canada, is one of four local delegates to 27th general council which starts in Calgary Sunday.

Also attending from the lower Vancouver Island presbytery are Mrs. Mary Bennett, Miss Janice Guthrie, a candidate for the United Church ministry, and Don Moreton, from Duncan United Church.

Representing the Comox-Nanaimo presbytery which covers the rest of the Island are Rev. Ray Brandon and Mrs. Alice Potts, both of the Courtenay church.

The general council which will elect a new moderator and rule on a number of substantial issues during nine days of debate, is at the University of Calgary campus and follows hard on the heels of the Anglican general synod which concluded deliberations this week.

Mrs. Bennett has been appointed to a special lay-ministerial committee charged with evaluating general council's decisions.

"It's an honor and really quite a challenge," she said this week, "especially since this is the first general council I've attended."

According to Mrs. Bennett, one of the most controversial issues will be a weighty report in the roles of the laity and the ministry in the church. This report recommends that certain functions, such as baptism or administering Communion, could, under special circumstances, be left to lay persons.

"How would you feel if after seven or eight years of rigorous training for your calling you found your job could be done largely by a lay person?" she asked.

Debate on a wide range of topics, from the environment to a guaranteed annual income and from genetics and ethics to ministerial salaries will ensue during the balance of the week.

One key report will be that of the division of mission in Canada, which says, among other things:

● A church which seeks to be truly united within itself must be open to all "yet able-bodied church members both by their attitudes and by emphasis on activism marginalize and often exclude those with mental or physical disabilities."

Therefore, the division affirms, the church cannot achieve unity and diversity "if it continues to acquiesce in the social isolation of disabled persons and to deny them full participation in this life."

● An uncontrolled and excessive drive for economic growth and expansion and abuse of land and "rapacious use of natural resources" are immoral.

The division endorses the right of Canada's native people to have their land claims heard and settled fairly without the threat of massive developments. It calls for a moratorium on major resource development projects until the land claims are settled, "with the understanding that the moratorium is region by region."

● General council will be asked to express its "prophetic outrage" at public attitudes and policies which result in "greater retribution, harsher treatment and increasing alienation" among all people touched by Canada's criminal justice system.

● On French-English relations, the division says nationalism as a sentiment or as a movement is worthy of Christian endorsement and support "only in such circumstances and to the extent that it serves to express human values and facilitates the development of persons to their full capacities."

● General council will be asked to recommend that all United Church groups abstain from applying for grants to government commissions or foundations based on lotteries.

Soccer lover will preach

Rev. James Martin, a Church of Scotland theologian whose avid interest in soccer has successfully promoted his pastorate, will speak at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, 680 Courtenay, at the Sunday morning service.

Dr. Martin who is vacationing in the Victoria area with his wife, is author of several books, mostly aimed at young people, and is a prominent radio and television personality in Scotland.

For 25 years, he has been minister at High Carntyne Church in Glasgow's east end, and preaches to one of the largest Scottish congregations in the Anglican communion each Sunday.

High Carntyne is famed for its inspirational congregational singing, having been featured many times both on radio and television in Britain.

He recently undertook a tour of U.S. armed forces bases in Germany, preaching with great acceptance, and has repeatedly escorted pilgrims to the Holy Land.

Although nearing middle age, Martin still actively and regularly trains with the Scottish First Division soccer team Motherwell, and is considered something of a mascot for the team.

Meditate with Tai Chi

Mary Winstone of the Unitarian Church of Victoria will give a short demonstration and talk on Tai Chi — a "meditation in motion" derived from the marital arts of China — in the church's Fireplace Lounge, 105 Superior at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

This will be one of the informal programs given by members of the congregation during the summer break. Programs are being held in the lounge because the church is undergoing renovations during the summer.

Assistant pastor

Bert Slofstra has joined Victoria's Christian Reformed Church as assistant pastor to Rev. Peter de Bruyne. Slofstra has been a student at Calvin Seminary, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

WHO'S that hairy-faced creature on the left with the glasses? Why, it's none other than actress Vicky Granucci sporting her spaced-out hairdo that won her a role in Columbia Pictures' movie Thank God It's Friday. Hearing they were casting for far-out looking disco habitues for film, Vicky showed up in her olde-Englishe sheepdog creation. Right photo shows Vicky's reaction when told she got the part.

BUTCHER OF RIGA?

ASUNCION, Paraguay (UPI) — Argentine authorities are believed to have confirmed that a man who died recently in Asuncion was the person suspected of being a Nazi war criminal known as "The Butcher of Riga," sources said Friday.

The sources said the Argentines are thought to have confirmed that the man, who died in a pauper's clinic, was Frederico Wegener, a naturalized Argentine citizen suspected of being Nazi war criminal Edward Roschmann.

Wegener is the alias said to have been used by Roschmann — known as the Butcher of Riga for his role in the slayings of 40,000 Jews in the Riga, Latvia, ghetto during the Second World War — when he migrated to Argentina in 1948.

Paraguayan authorities have sent samples of Wegener's finger prints to West Germany to let authorities there determine if Wegener and Roschmann are the same man.

Argentina had announced that it was considering a German extradition request for Wegener on July 4.

New Light Bulb Slashes Costs

NEW YORK (AP) — Development of a new light bulb that may reduce consumption of electricity by 60 per cent without any loss in light output has been announced by Duro-Test Corp., a North Bergen, N.J., firm that specializes in industrial and commercial lighting. The firm said the new bulb should be available for sale in 1979 and will cost close to 10 times as much as currently available bulbs.

Duro-Test said the price difference would be more than offset by the new bulb's longer life and cheaper operating cost.

The bulb will use a coating developed primarily for solar-energy applications in 1974 by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT).

A 100-watt bulb with the new coating would consume approximately 40 watts of electricity while still maintaining the light output of a conventional 100-watt bulb," said Lawrence Johnson, Duro-Test vice-president.

About 90 per cent of wattage consumed in an ordinary 100-watt incandescent light bulb is lost as heat. About 80 per cent of that heat is infrared radiation.

The coating, placed on the inside of the bulb, reflects that radiation back to the filament, reducing the amount of electricity needed to keep the filament at an efficient operating temperature.

Johnson said a full line of light bulbs for industrial and home use is being prepared. The bulbs will range in intensity from 40 watts to 500 watts.

The price of a 100-watt bulb is $3.50 to $4, compared with Duro-Test's current price of $2.50 for a 100-watt bulb.

Other firms sell 100-watt bulbs for considerably less, usually under 50 cents.

Johnson said Duro-Test's new bulbs will last twice as long as the firm's conventional bulbs, as well as saving electricity.

VANDER ZALM 'IS MY SAVIOUR'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm has cracked down on welfare fraud, turned his ministry's multi-million dollar deficit into a surplus and now he's saving the souls of drug users.

New Westminster police said Thursday a New Westminster merchant turned in nine pounds of marijuana — about $2,500 worth — that he found on his store doorstep with the following note attached:

"Vander Zalm is my saviour.

I no longer need the devil weed."

"I don't know what Vander Zalm's got, but we need more of it," said a police spokesman. "If we could get nine pounds of the stuff every day, we'd soon clean the place up."

He said the marijuana appeared locally grown and of good quallity.

Presley Criticism Draws Wrath

LONDON (AP) — The Times prints letters today from readers criticizing it for dismissing Elvis Presley as an indifferent singer of mediocre songs and a "totally uninteresting person."

The original comment by The Times was in an editorial Thursday, which also said Presley was a "phenomenon of considerable social significance."

A letter from Tim Rice, composer of the rock opera Jesus Christ Superstar, said: "This is simply not true and I would be interested to know which popular singers you consider to be superior to Presley in these catagories. Or are you unwilling to admit that any popular singers have any merit whatsoever?"

Another reader, R. G. Short of London, wrote that the implication by The Times that Presley's "huge popularity" was somehow in spite of his music, rather than because of it, was "an untrue and unfair sneer." "People did not buy Presley's records to annoy their parents — they bought them because they derived enormous pleasure from listening to his magnificent and unique artistic performances," he said.

Betty Hurstfield of London recalled in another letter that she began teaching at school in London in 1956 "when Elvis Presley's extraordinary talent burst upon the world."

"I shall never forget the elderly senior mistress coming into the staff room one morning and saying sternly, 'I must speak to a boy called Elvis Presley because he has carved his name on every desk in the school.'"

Taking the Bank At It's Word

LAKELAND, Fla. — Last year the Barnett Bank advertised that customers could rent a safety deposit box for only peanuts. This week Dr. James Glotfelty took the bank up on the offer.

When his safety deposit box rental bill arrived last week, he headed for the bank. He placed a jar of peanuts — the advertisement and the bill wrapped around it — on the counter. In return, Glotfelty got a formal letter of receipt listing partial payment for the $30 safety deposit box.

"Please remit either the remaining $29 of the rental fee or 51 additional jars of peanuts," the letter read.

MONTREAL — The crew of the J. E. Bernier II sailed into Resolute, N.W.T., early Friday and was to remain there 48 hours before continuing an attempt to navigate the first sailboat through the Northwest Passage.

Crew members said in radio reports received in Montreal they will tackle Victoria Strait instead of Melville Sound in the next leg of the voyage because the captain of a Dutch sailboat under sail in Victoria Strait reported that conditions there were good.

The captain of the Dutch sailboat, 54-year-old Willi De Roos, and a fellow-countryman are also making a bid to become the first boat to navigate the Northwest Passage by sail.

MIAMI — Don Boniface's tough policeman's reserve almost broke down when the neighborhood kids he has spanked and scolded for years appeared at his front door, handed him $120, and told him to go buy a bulletproof vest.

"I was overwhelmed," said the husky six-foot Florida Highway Patrol trooper.

"I've spanked them, taken them home, given them tickets," said the 40-year-old trooper. "Why me?"

The neighborhoods' youth decided on their fund-raising project after another trooper, Bradley Glascock, was shot and killed by a motorist Glascock stopped for not paying a 10-cent freeway toll.

TOULOUSE — Sextuplets were born Friday to a 29-year-old woman who had expected triplets but three of the babies died within a few hours and the survivors were "as well as can be expected."

The six babies — three boys and three girls — were born to Marie-Christine Zimmermann, 29, in a maternity clinic at nearby Albi. They were her first children.

'SUCKER' TOWN LAUGHS

WETUMKA, Okla. (AP) — It's time for Wetumka to laugh at itself again.

It began in August, 1950, when a man named Morrison came to town posing as the advance man for a circus. He talked a hotel into free lodging, reserved a floor of rooms for circus personnel and talked the management into buying new mattresses for the beds.

A restaurant bought 150 chickens and other merchants stocked up on hot dogs. One man brought in a load of hay for the elephants and a doctors gave Morrison a free checkup and shots.

Morrison got merchants to buy advertising which, he said, would be plastered on a sound truck that would tour the state. The newspaper took a full page circus advertisement and printed handbills.

About the time for the circus tent to go up, the people noticed that Morrison was missing.

The townspeople were still mad when another salesman came to town and said they should capitalize on the event.

That was the birth of Sucker Day, which will be held Aug. 26 and 27.

A few years later, town officials located Morrison, in jail in Kansas, and tried to get him to come to the celebration, offering to pay his expenses and buy him a new suit. He didn't come.

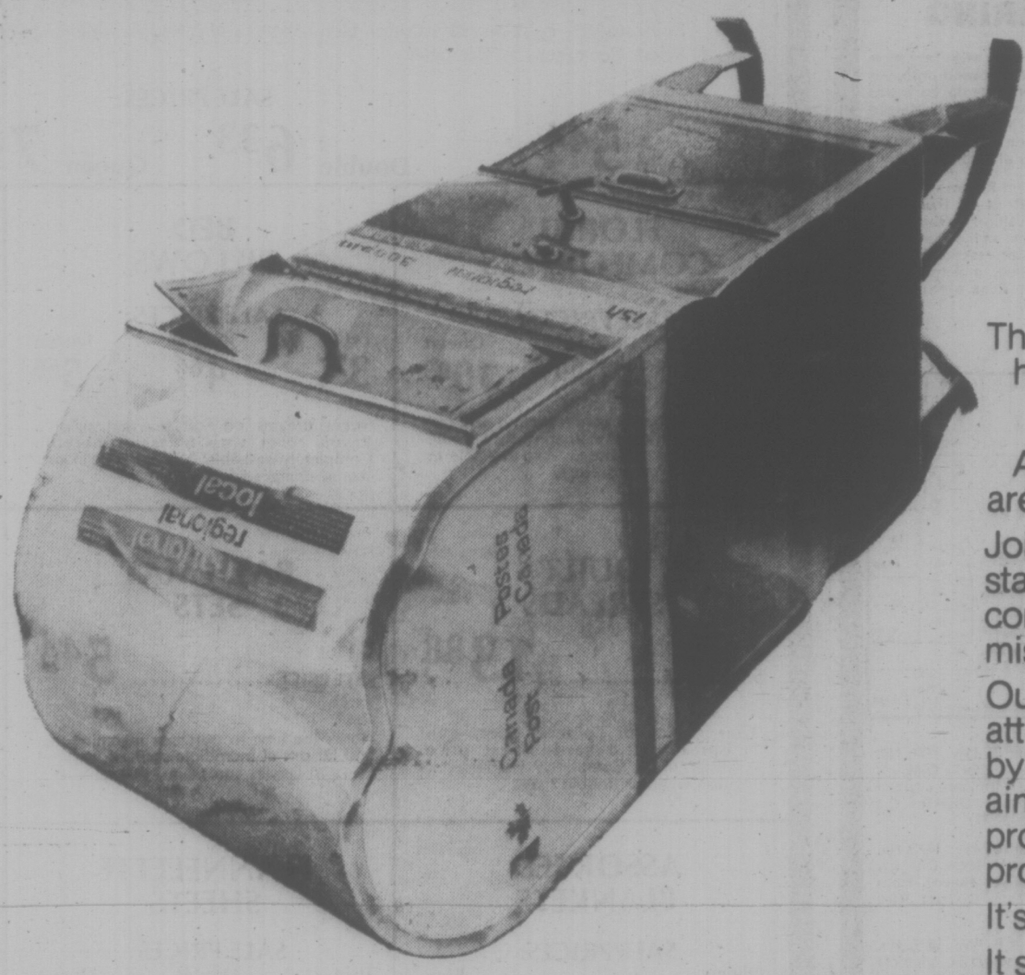
Canada Post / Postes Canada

It hurts.



Canada's mail system has taken just about all the knocks it can handle.

The irony is, they don't have to.

Why?

Attitudes at Canada Post are changing.

Out-of-date and hard line attitudes are being replaced by candid, open discussion aimed at mutually solving problems, not creating or prolonging them.

It's an encouraging start.

It shows that a new priority is being set to enable us to get on with the job of making a better mail system for Canada. And, with your help in using the complete address including the postal code on all your mail, we can all work together to make it work better.

GARDENING
jack beastall

Seaweed has long been used in agriculture. Locally, gardeners occasionally become interested in these plants that grow in the sea.

Forty-five years ago automobiles were parked on Dallas Road at every convenient approach to the beach while gardeners filled potato sacks with chopped kelp.

In the depression years sacks of seaweed were trundled along the streets of Fairfield on home-made handcarts, the vendors willing to exchange them for vegetables, home cooking and, in exceptional instances, for cash.

It is interesting to note that depressions, acute unemployment, and inflationary trends are the periods when the home gardener's interest in seaweed increases. At other times it is forgotten.

Farmers in coastal areas of northern and western Europe, the British Isles, Japan and China have applied seaweed to their land for centuries, but only in the latter part of this century has there been any scientific approach to its use.

There are many genera of sea plants just as there are of land plants, and the same way that some land plants grow best in hot climates and others in cold climates, so sea plants respond to water temperatures.

Some seaweeds have a high commercial value and are found only in limited areas. Experiments are being made in transplanting these species to other parts of the globe where similar shore conditions and water temperatures exist. Quite a few species from Japan and England are being tried in our local waters.

The bladder types and the long-stemmed kelp native to our coastline are not of high commercial value, but both are useful in the home garden as soil conditioners and a source of many nutrients.

An analysis by the Norwegian Institute of Seaweed Research shows that powdered Ascophyllum nodosum, a sea plant not found locally, contains 44 minerals and elements in significant quantities, together with traces of 16 more. Also present are 12 vitamins, and 21 amino acids of which 17 are of great importance to man.

Under trade names, seaweeds of different kinds are marketed as animal feed, soil conditioners or "manures." In liquid form as fertilizers, food additives, mineral supplement liquids and tablets, and other specialized applications.

Alginic acid, of which the above analysis shows to be 27 per cent of the carbohydrates in Ascophyllum nodosum, is extracted by electrolysis, not by chemical means, and is used to produce sodium alginate.

From this we have fertilizer, sprays for foliar feeding of garden plants, soil conditioners and compost activators.

The carbohydrates in seaweeds are ten per cent in the form of simple sugars which are available to soil bacteria without further decomposition because seaweed contains little cellulose. It is the cellulose in land plants that has to be broken down in the compost reap before it can be attacked by bacteria.

This more rapid decomposition of seaweed in the soil promotes proliferation of bacteria with less demands on soil nitrogen than decomposing cellulose. More bacterial mean healthier plants, less disease and insect damage.

We have much to learn about seaweed and its uses in the garden. We already know that foliar sprays of seaweed alginates enter the entire system of a plant within hours, whereas the same nutrients applied to the soil do not appear in the plant for days or weeks.

We know also that foliar feeding has eliminated black spot disease in roses in a commercial nursery within three seasons, and that foliar-fed tomatoes withstand lower temperatures, that is, they are more frost-resistant.

While the benefits of seaweed have not been widely publicized, reports of an adverse nature seem known to everyone. One gardener reported: "Seaweed has killed all my plants."

Investigation showed "all my plants" to be two shrubs. The seaweed had been put around the shrubs then spaded to a depth of 10 inches, cutting off all the feeding roots. Root damage, not seaweed, killed the plants.

Those interested in using seaweed will find the book titled "Seaweed in Agriculture and Horticulture" fascinating and enlightening. Written by the late W. A. Stephenson, it is on the shelves of local libraries.

Gardeners are mostly concerned about the salt that may be introduced through the use of seaweed gathered from the beaches. Strangely, the plant itself does not contain the amount of salt found in the water in which it grows, therefore presents no salt problems.

The gardener's fear of sea water may soon be eliminated with increased spread of knowledge. Plant nurseries in coastal Spain are flooded with sea water every spring, resulting in less pest and disease damage, elimination of soil pests, greater frost resistance, larger and healthier plants.

After flooding, the soil is covered with manure to prevent drying of the surface, and this appears to be the secret of success with sea water.

As sea water evaporates a deposit of salt crystals remains. These crystals, like table salt, have an insatiable craving for moisture and will even extract moisture from plants to satisfy their needs. That is how salt kills plants, by dehydration.

Sea water can be used on plants as long as these crystals are not allowed to form in the soil, in other words, as long as moisture is maintained by covering the watered area.

Local gardeners have reported success against carrot rust-fly grubs, cabbage root-maggot, and strawberry weevil through use of sea water.

One important point to remember is that sea water is not the same as a salt water made from table salt or agricultural salt, so don't try making a salt solution as a substitute. Use the real thing, sea water.

Seaweed collected from the beaches after the first fall storms can be spread on the surface of the soil as collected over winter, to be turned under when bare ground is prepared in the spring, or spread on the surface of beds and borders where it is left as a surface mulch, or added in layers to the compost heap.

Gardeners located far from any ocean pay high prices for bagged seaweed products to improve their gardens, while we on the coast pay high prices for bagged animal manure and sewer sludge from the other side of the continent and leave the seaweed lying on our beaches.

WORK FOR WEEK

Remember, no fertilizer to shrubs or trees or any plant which will have winter growth above ground. New shoots starting when moisture reaches the roots will be damaged by frost and winter wind.

This month is time to buy, or move, Oriental poppies. They have short dormancy, begging to root anew by September.

See that no water reaches roots of onions and shallots which are now ripening. The bulbous roots should be fully exposed.

The late sowings of all kinds of vegetables will come along even in hot weather if care is given. Bush beans and the peas are doing well. Both are making first pods and promise good crops.

When cutting strawflowers and other everlastings, hang in bunches upside down until stems are dry and stiff. Strip leaves before drying.

Stand-Up Coffins 'Impractical'

TORONTO (CP) — Local undertakers and cemetery officials say Alfred Schmitz's patented plan to bury people standing in upright coffins is not welcome in Metropolitan Toronto graveyards.

Schmitz, an Oregon man, has secured a British patent on a coffin that supports a corpse standing up to save cemetery space.

"There are so many impractical things about it that it really wouldn't be acceptable," Alan Clark, superintendent of Mount Pleasant cemetery and mausoleum, said.

He said provincial law requires that graves be at least three feet wide and eight feet long, so new legislation is needed before the scheme could be used here.

"But I think it would be most unacceptable," Clark said. "The public is more or less accustomed to seeing a deceased person in a prone position as if they were sleeping."

Jack Doney, chairman of the Toronto Undertakers' Association, scoffed at the idea and said it would not save space if gravestones are still used.

Clark said the law also requires at least three feet of dirt on top of a coffin, so the grave for a standing corpse would have to be 11 feet deep.

Baked Garden Looking Dejected . . . Like Lost Hopes

elizabeth forbes

Today, I'm going to tell you about a friend who happens to be an ardent gardener, about her imaginative way of describing and thinking of her flowers and of her habit of giving you her thoughts in poetic verse. (Sorry, she absolutely refuses to let me use her name.)

I spent an hour or so with her the other day and as we walked in the garden I asked how her flowers were faring in these unusually hot, dry summer days.

Hopes which sprouted up quite optimistically in the spring-time only to suffer a premature fate during this long spell of summer drought.

There are ghosts in her garden this summer, she insisted.

Little ghosts of the flowers that have been. They accompany her as she walks under the trees after the heat of the day is over and the sun is setting in the west.

Sadder ghosts, too, of flowers that might have been, but were not. Ghosts of the flowers of memory which meet and mingle in the dusk of evening.

When the sun is hot and at its height, she can forget the ghosts, she said, by turning her attention to the scarlet fire of the dahlias or the flaunting colors of her petunias. But when twilight comes and a wisp of a breeze drifts through the garden, the ghosts return.

Ghosts of little dead flowers extinguished in the heat of this particular summer, almost before they came to life.

Then this charming woman, who delights in stringing words together in rhyme and in repeating those rhymes whenever there is an opportunity, quickly changed the subject.

Had I ever thought how certain flowers bring to mind certain verses?

Here she pointed to a row of pale purple blossoms encircling a tree at the side of the lawn.

Obviously they were autumn crocuses. However, as I listend to her repeat the following verse, they easily became sentimental little flowerets.

"These little lamps of purple light,
Beneath an old oak tree,
Bring back the ache of something left
Unlightened yet for me."

We wandered over to the dahlias which my friend says "glorify the summer heat with their fire, and the sun amplifies their offering with its benediction."

The roses, on the other hand, haunted by the little ghosts of their former selves, are shedding their petals, yellow, pink, and crimson, "so many tears for a summer that soon will be gone."

They still hold all their sweetness, beyond the power of language to define, "but that sweetness is tinged with regret, haunted by memories more poignant than ever."

Here my friend stopped to gently finger a deep crimson rose in full bloom and to say softly:

"The roses hang, their sweetness mute,
Above the hot, dry ground;
The daisies in their smoke-blue rows
Shake out their petals round:
But the dahlias regal in crimson and cream,
Are proclaiming that theirs is the hour supreme.
Of which the roses can only dream."

Yes, she said, with a quick smile, "it is the dahlias' hour, and full well they know it."

The rock garden was bare of color. One tiny viola showed its purple head very timorously among the creeping plants — it too speaking of an amazingly hot summer that soon will be gone.

Ghosts of flowers that were haunted the herbaceous border; you could sense them in the tangled tendrils of the already slightly withered sweet peas and the drooping heads of summer stocks and asters.

But the chrysanthemums stood proud and strong above those whose hour is almost past, and soon will flaunt their flowers.

Blossoms that my friend believes carry much more than color or perfume.

"They answer some essential need of one's inner being," she told me, "some need that can never find full expression in mere words."

They attempt to hide their true identity in gaiety, she said. But that is mere camouflage.

"Truly they are the heralds of autumn and finally of winter."

Then softly she added: "Feather-petalled, winter scented, glorious clumps of gold and brown, Curly-headed, memory haunted, Ladies we are coming to town."

Now it was time for me to leave so we moved toward the entrance gate.

The heat of these dry summer days was rushing it toward an early autumn, then inevitably into winter. Beyond that again, to a re-awakening and another spring.

And I did not need my friend to remind me, in her imaginative way, that the ghosts of the flowers that have been, change so very quickly into the anticipatory ghosts of the flowers that are to be.

Roses shed their petals under heat of summer sun

The popularity of pleasure boating has grown in recent years and, unfortunately, so has the rate of boating accidents.

The 12-page illustrated folder Safe Skipper, Ahoy is a beginner's guide to small-craft boating. It recommends that everybody who rides in a boat should be able to swim. Most drownings happen when somebody is accidentally thrown into the water and has no time to put on a life jacket.

It is necessary to know your boat and its limitations. Too much horsepower may be as risky as too little. Acquaint yourself with the right-of-way rules on rivers and in open water.

One other piece of advice is to keep your boat seaworthy. This does not just mean to keep out leaks. Heed the law which requires that you have certain equipment, according to the type of your boat, on board. In addition, every small boat should carry an extra oar or paddle, pump, flares or flags, a whistle, tool kit, hunting knife, boat hooks, compass, a portable radio and first aid kit. These accessories are available in case of an emergency. The pamphlet recommends that you always carry life preservers as well as fire-fighting equipment which are in good condition.

To prevent your boat from capsizing, head into the waves at an angle. If your boat does capsize, try to stay with it instead of swimming a long distance to shore.

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

New Jaeger classics are smashing? . . .

The fall Jaeger shipment at Roy Imports Village Shop was so newly arrived that some of the things hadn't even been priced when we were in last Monday . . . But two outstanding items which were tagged . . . and very reasonably too, we might add . . . A simply heavenly pure cashmere sweater dress in a soft cocoa brown with narrow black stripes, turtle neck . . . the sort of dress Vogue is full of these days . . . priced at but $155! . . . And a terrific lambswool hooded pullover with V-neck effect . . . can be draped into a cowl or a collar . . . with a nice wide band at the hips . . . in grey and camel tiny checks with a bit of rust . . . $65 . . . Getting back to cashmere, there are turtle-necked pullovers in black with brown stripes, black with brown and camel with cream . . . $85 for these is a good price when you compare with most other cashmeres . . . Plain pullovers are $80 . . . Some pretty lambswool sweaters in camel with grey and vicuna intarsia fronts . . . There's a roundnecked vest with black and grey geometric design . . . a buttoned vest with pockets, in black with creme and camel trim . . . Beautifully tailored skirts and slacks in pure wool grey, camel and vicuna colored flannel to wear with any of these choice sweaters for that "finished" look! . . . Roy Imports, 435 Simcoe St., across from the Lord Simcoe, 384-4932.

Some unique pottery at the Handloom . . .

We saw some beautiful new pottery at the Handloom this week by Scott Beardsley and his wife Garnet . . . and one of the things which makes them unique is that the various jars, vases, goblets etc. are all imprinted with real leaves . . . making for a very striking effect . . . On some pieces these talented potters have also used celedon . . . a very old and quite shiny glaze . . . All these pieces in warm, earthy colors . . . A big Peter Rambeau vase with carved design would make a handsome lamp base . . . Speaking of which . . . we noticed a pair of lovely lamp bases in a reddish glaze, by Kakinuma . . . and some of Sheila White's delightful owls . . . with their pert expressions and amusingly swept-to-one-side beaks! Grouse, flickers and plovers too . . . If paperweights fascinate you . . . Handloom has some beautiful hand-blown ones unlike anything you'll ever see! . . . and jewel-like enamel-on-copper bowls, boxes, ashtrays etc. in simply heavenly colors! . . . Some lovely hand-woven triangular mohair stoles in several colors . . . and straight boucle stoles in black or white . . . There's a magnificent soapstone Eskimo carving . . . a mother carrying one babe in her arms, and another in the back of her parka . . . carved with a subtle simplicity! . . . Handloom, 625 Trounce Alley, 384-1011 and Empress Hotel, 384-1518.

Maybe this is what you need . . .

Somehow we always get the urge to write particularly enthusiastically about our hairdresser, the Charming Lady, when we've just returned from somewhere or other . . . and been delighted with the way our somewhat skimpy and "difficult" hair has stood up to the worst that nature can do! . . . Like now . . . after scorching sun and innumerable swims in the Cariboo country! . . . No hair problems at all to contend with! . . . This, of course, we attribute to the excellent cut and custom-designed body perm George gave us shortly before leaving . . . All the staff at the Lady are equally experienced at this sort of thing . . . (as are the staff at the Lady's sister salon, the Witch's Hut) . . . And believe us . . . it makes such an enormous difference to one's enjoyment of holidays when we don't have to worry about our so-called crowning glory! . . . (Last Monday at the Lady we ran into a gal we know who's just back from Toronto . . . and just in time too because she claimed there isn't a hairdresser there who can satisfy her like her favorite stylist at the Charming Lady!) . . . Moreover, the surroundings of these two salons couldn't be better . . . cool and pleasant even on sizzling days! . . . Why don't you make an appointment? . . . Charming Lady, 1712 Douglas St., 385-8133 and Witch's Hut, 728 View St., 388-7368.

Charmante's have a collection of Ship 'n Shore dressy separates in beautifully soft and silky Quina which we think are absolutely super! . . . There are graceful long skirts with elasticized waists, circled with a soft belt tying in front . . . short skirts in the same style, and pants with elastic waists and tie belt . . . So much for the bottom parts of the outfits . . . For the top half there are both sleeveless and long-sleeved blouson jackets to be worn over various blouses . . . one of which is a creme sleeveless cowl . . . and the other two a tucked long sleeved blouse with tie neck and a plain shirt . . . Both of these in creme or white . . . plus a striped blouson in cordovan and rose . . . Quiana, of course, and designed to set off any of the colors in these separates which come in Cordovan (burgundy), spruce green, black and brown . . . You've no idea what a combination of chic outfits for either after-5 or dressy day wear you can create with these Ship 'n Shore separates . . . and we think you'd be very smart to pay an early visit to . . . Charmante's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-1555.

Here's a tremendous cruise bargain! . . .

There isn't a single form of holiday we can think of that can equal a cruise . . . and when it's on one of the Princesses . . . among the finest cruise ships afloat . . . well, we leave it to your imagination! . . . So-o-o . . . here's a new one Paulin's just told us about . . . An offer by Princess Cruises to join their popular South Pacific cruise aboard the "Pacific Princess" at Sydney, Australia on Nov. 8 . . . and spend the next 23 days cruising back to Los Angeles . . . Special rates for this cruise will include your air fare on Western Airlines from Vancouver to either Los Angeles or Honolulu . . . thence by New Zealand Airlines to Sydney where you pick up the ship . . . and return air fare from L.A. to Vancouver The special rates will guarantee you an inside cabin with private facilities at $2000 U.S. per person, or an outside cabin for $2600 . . . Ports of call include Brisbane, Noumea, several Fiji islands, Pago Pago, American Samoa, and Honolulu . . . Paulin's think this special cruise offer is a terrific deal . . . if you'd like more information about it, call Ted Woodcock and ask him to give you all the details! . . . Paulin Travel, 532 Broughton St., 382-9168.

New ways with lighting . . .

We've often thought that lamps . . . and lighting fixtures . . . can do more than any other single thing to enhance the decor of a room . . . create warmth and beauty! . . . And this belief was impressed on us more than ever this week when we visited Lighting Exclusive, and were shown some of their new merchandise . . . Know the latest idea in lighting? . . . Instead of having two matching lamps, have one table lamp and a matching swag! . . . Lighting Exclusive have a stunning selection of such combinations . . . Their big ceramic lamps are particularly handsome . . . Mostly earthy colors . . . some with cutouts in the bases with a low light inside which casts a soft, intriguing glow . . . Shades are interesting too . . . One we noticed is almost like an ultrasuede . . . Others are linen textured . . . And of course all these lamps give excellent illumination . . . easy on the eyes, and soft and pretty to look at! . . . Another type of lamp which is growing in popularity is the Colonial lamp with hurricane chimney . . . While we think these are particularly attractive with traditional decor and in older homes . . . they actually blend in quite interestingly with modern furniture . . . We noticed a great variety of these, some hand-painted in mostly floral designs . . . in lovely warm colors . . . Many of these lamps have matching swags . . . Beston's Lighting Exclusive, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-0332.

Lounging gowns without fuss or feathers . . .

If you're the sort of woman who likes a well-cut, functional lounging gown cum swimsuit coverup . . . simple, completely devoid of doodads . . . and washable as they come . . . we think you'll agree with us that the new terry gowns now on display at Wilson's . . . are just about the ultimate! . . . A very light-weight terry cloth . . . in either acrylic or nylon . . . they're as much at home heading for the sauna or pool . . . as they are for lounging around of an evening . . . or cooking the family's breakfast in the morning! . . . There's a wrap-style with a short cape sleeve . . . apple green, bordered with white . . . tying in a bow at the side . . . Another style has a v-neck and buttons down the front . . . Front gathers and belt that can be tied either front or back . . . Pretty in green or golden yellow . . . One with a boat neckline has a short raglan sleeve . . . a white rope drawstring waist . . . and is slit to the waist on both sides . . . Hot pink, yellow and orange . . . In either red or royal blue is a short-sleeved gown with white loops and buttons to the waist . . . Wilson's have just received a new shipment of Viyella gowns too . . . A few are buttoned, but most are the classic wraparound style . . . in paisleys, florals, solid colors, and a couple of tartans . . . These Viyellas are popular, so go choose yours soon at . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177 and 1210 Newport Ave., 592-2821.

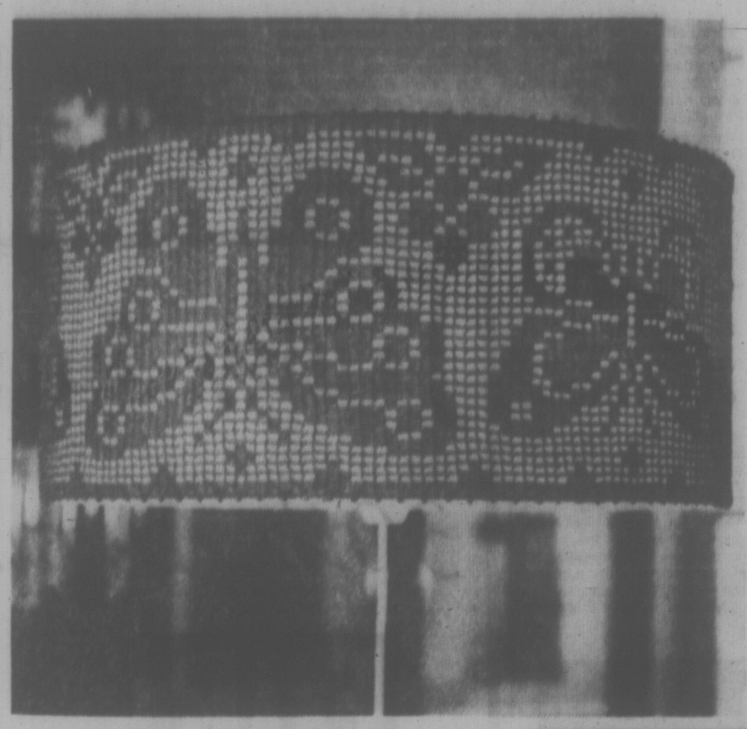
Needlepoint Pillows Revived



By MAY E. MACLEAN

Just recently I wrote on my trip to Atlanta and the Art Needlework Show there, and I am glad so many of my readers were interested and have written asking more about the pillows I described.

Any piece of needlepoint can be finished into a pillow, usually with a velvet back to either complement or accent your color decor. These small pillows were fashionable about 15 years ago, perhaps the idea has never been dropped, but in any case it is enjoying quite a revival, at least south of the border.

I have several crocheted in my pattern range, and these I will list because there were too many letters to reply individually. The pattern I featured that particular week was a large floor type cushion of crocheted squares No. 7710. Unfortunately the number was not carried in a couple of the newspapers. I do have another very similar floor type cushion, again crocheted, both a round and square shape of Leaflet No. 1274. These cushions or pillows will take 16-inch foam rubber pads.

On Leaflet No. 7050 these are three crocheted pillows, two round, 15 inches in diameter and a square 14-inch. No. 7157 is an adorable crochet pillow, the design of which can double as a doily. If the crochet is placed over colored satin it reminds one of those quaint little pillows of the Victorian era. It's just 12 inches across and so easily made — easily transportable handwork for summer days and they made grand gifts.

An unusual shape triangle pillow, again crocheted, is on Leaflet No. 7267. It is rather interesting in the way that it is made in diamond and half diamond shapes, so that one can use up oddments of wool or crochet cotton.

Another beautiful cushion which was featured not too long ago was No. 7680, quickly and easily made of flower motifs, which are joined together with a treilis like crochet, then mounted over material, but looks just gorgeous over satin! This finished pillow is about 12-inches across.

There is one more leaflet which features cushions or pillows, No. 0575. Both pillows are crochet, a 12-inch round and a 12-inch square. Also on the same leaflet are directions for making a crochet hassock cover, using three foam cushion forms 18 by 20 inches and 4 inches deep.

A few weeks ago I featured Butterfly Cheval mats for the bedroom, No. 7706, and this week's pattern will make the ideal set a crochet lampshade cover also with a butterfly design.

It would look equally attractive and brighten your kitchen, patio, or family room and what a gay way to liven up any room. Complete instructions are on Leaflet No. 7720.

To order this week's pattern No. 7720, or any other Leaflet mentioned, send 75c for each. PLUS a stamped self addressed return envelope. If you do not have an envelope or stamp, please enclose an extra 25c to cover the cost of handling, and print your name and address.

Send to:— May E. MacLean, "KNIT & CHAT", c-o Box B, 486 Montford Drive, Dollard des Ormeaux, P.Q. H9G 1M6.

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly and to enclose your stamped return envelope for faster service.

INDOOR GARDEN

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Judging by the mail, there is renewed interest in practical uses of plants.

Qe've received many letters asking more about the Aloe Vera, which we've recommended as an indispensable plant in the home. It's incredibly useful for any type of burn. And when it grows large and succulent, it can be used on all parts of the body for cuts, scratches, bruises, sore or irritated skin, for burns, sunburns, x-ray burns, bug bites and any other skin problem you can imagine.

Aloe Vera can be grown indoors or out. It can withstand just about anything except cold. To use the plant for a small cut or burn, cut off a small section, slit it lengthwise to expose the gelatinous part, and apply this to the wound or sunburn.

For creams, lotions or hair treatments, add about 1 oz. of the clear gelatinous matter (obtained from the leaf of the plant by scraping or cutting it out) to about 3 ozs. of the cream, lotion or shampoo. Mix thoroughly or blend with blender.

Aloes are readily available these days and easy to propagate. So get into it; its fun.

Live-In Lover Ignored by Mother

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend's parents are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary this month, and have planned a big bash at a very fancy country club.

They say it's only family and close friends, and you guessed it — I'm not invited! I have lived with their son for three years, and if that doesn't make me "family," I don't know what does.

I could marry him if I wanted to, but if I did I would lose the alimony I'm getting from my last husband, and also the child support from my kids' father. (My second husband, I also think marriage is very old-fashioned today.

Everybody in town, including my boyfriend's parents, knows that we have been living together, so why shouldn't my kids and I be invited.

I hear that my boyfriend's ex-wife and her kids will be there. I ask you, is that fair? I think it's rotten for his folks to treat me this way. Am I wrong? — LEFT OUT.

DEAR LEFT: Yes. On two counts: (1) Marriage is NOT "old-fashioned" — it's as popular today as it ever was. (2) Your boyfriend's parents are free to invite (and exclude) whomever they wish. It's their party.

DEAR ABBY: I witnessed an incident at the beach last Sunday that ruined my day. A young mother was trying to teach her daughter, who appeared to be about three, to swim. She held the child's head under the water and yelled, "If you don't learn to enjoy the water, you'll never learn to swim!"

Meanwhile the poor child was hysterical as she clung to her mother for dear life, crying and begging her to stop. The mother tore the child's little hands loose, and pushed her head under the water time and time again, insisting she had to learn to "like" the water. The child came up repeatedly, gasping, choking and pleading, but the mother showed her no mercy.

I wanted to say something to the mother, but I was afraid she'd tell me to mind my own business. Later I heard her tell her friend that a swimming teacher had told her that this was the only way to teach a child how to swim.

I had a similar experience when I was young. I'm now 32, I never learned to swim, and I'm still afraid of water. — CONCERNED.

DEAR CONCERNED: Whether or not the mother knew it, she was abusing that child, and child abuse is everybody's business. You should have told that mother what you told me.

DEAR ABBY: Are there any foods or beverages which will help a person sexually? I have heard there are several. — WANTS TO KNOW.

DEAR WANTS: I know of none. But if you believe that a certain food or drink will "help you" sexually, by all means try it. It probably will.

your health

By LESTER COLEMAN, M.D.

The Food and Drug Administration and the Health, Education and Welfare Department seem to be genuinely interested in Americans' welfare. They protect against pollution, and against dangerous drugs. When are they or any other health agency going to set down sensible rules for the manufacture of shoes? Twice in the past year, my daughter has fallen off her "stilts," sprained her ankles and has been incapacitated for weeks. — Mr. R.F.

Dear Mr. F.:

I know exactly what you mean. I saw a group of girls coming out of their high school, and wondered how they were able to navigate the 20 or so steps to terra firma.

The "platforms" were inches high. The heels looked at least six inches tall. When they walked, there was no bending of the arch of the foot, just clump-clump. I noticed, too, that the knees had to be kept rigid.

How different this is from the free and easy motion of feet, ankles and knees when walking in sandals, sneakers and other comfortable shoes.

Your daughter is not the only one who is paying a penalty for this ridiculous fad. Are you aware of the number of injuries and auomobile accidents that have been attributed to these high platform shoes?

To drive a car while wearing them is a real hazard because it can interfere with manipulating the accelerator and the brakes.

Unfortunately, governmental departments have no control over shoe styles. We can only hope that soon the fad will pass and the youngsters will survive this man-made health hazard.

Can you explain why I, a perfectly healthy young woman, should have had an ectopic pregnancy? I haven't received a satisfactory explanation. — Mrs. L.A.

Dear Mrs. A.:

There's nothing mysterious about the reasons for an ectopic pregnancy. This type of pregnancy takes place when a fertilized egg is caught in the Fallopian tube rather than passing into the uterus.

A "perfectly healthy" woman can have an ectopic pregnancy without any known cause. (It occurs about once in four or five hundred pregnancies.) In many instances, the reason is some infection or inflammation in the tubes. This may have been so unimportant that you probably were not aware of symptoms related to it.

Adhesions following surgery can also be responsible. Occasionally, an anatomical variation from normal may occur at birth. Means are now available to learn, without surgery, the exact condition of the tubes, the uterus and the ovaries.

The Hat Is Crucial To Annie Hall Look

By ENID NEMY
New York Times

NEW YORK — Take a hat — slouchy, too big for the head it's on, and slightly punchy looking. Better still, take a man's hat that pulls down deep and covers the forehead. The hat is the crucial ingredient, the key to the Annie Hall look.

Annie Hall is, of course, the name of Woody Allen's newest film. Annie Hall is also Diane Keaton who, in the film, has the kind of flung-together look that belies the infinite care and thought that went into creating it. Almost everything she wears is a curious mixture of raffish tomboy and femininity.

"The look was designed for a girl who didn't quite know who she was," said Ruth Morley, the costume designer for the film. "The girl is a little confused but not a hippy, she's unusual, she's trying to find herself."

The Annie Hall look is now popping up on the streets with amazing frequency — men's shirts, several sizes too big, odd vests, loose wide-leg trousers or full, longish skirts. The mix of pieces is worn with an offhand nonchalance; part of the nonchalance is a wrinkled effect that gives one the impression that the clothes have never seen a hanger.

Despite the influence of men's haberdashery, the look, perhaps because so much of it is oversized, perhaps often gives the wearer an appearance of fragility.

It is tenderized men's wear, slightly waifish, frequently romantic. Old-fashioned shawls often cover the floppy shirts and little vests; bouquets of tiny flowers are sometimes tucked into necklines, and almost always hair is long, with stray tendrils or masses of waves. Occasionally, the hair is gathered and tucked under the hat.

Cat Cooped Up? Get It Goldfish

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Okay, so cats are safer indoors. I'll buy that. But what kind of life is it for a cat to be cooped up in one small room? That's the way my neighbor's cat is kept. I bet it hates those four walls. You call that living? — S.R.

DEAR S.R.: Whether the confined cat's claustrophobic or not depends less on the room's size than on what it contains. A happy home for a housecat would, I'd hope, have most of the following: (1.) A window with a view and a ledge for viewing and for occasional sunning. (2.) Other comfortable furniture, some of which might be shared with humans. (3.) A den to retreat into if privacy's desired. (4.) An oversize scratching post or appropriate substitute. (5.) Adequate sanitary facilities including ventilation. (6.) A constant fresh water supply in a favorite location. (7.) Nutritious food available on demand or, at least, with reasonable frequency. (8.) In lieu of television, possible a pet goldfish or something equally suitable, for watching and contemplating only. (9.) Safe, favorite toys, and last (but maybe first) (10.) Plenty of loving and caring provided by someone who understands (at least a little) a cat.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Did you say that birdseed with cobwebs in it won't hurt the birds? I must say, it looks quite disgusting. — I.N.

DEAR I.N.: Right. "Webby" seed won't be injurious to the birds (the small insects developing in such seed simply add protein) However, this seed is undesirable from more than an aesthetic standpoint, since the very fact these critters are developing in it is an indication that it's older seed and has, therefore, lost some of its nutritional value due to aging.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Twice in a month my dog's cut his feet. Once was a big deal, and once was nothing. But how do you know? Both times he had what seemed like a lot of blood all over the place. Once it was just a little hole that stopped bleeding by the time I got to the doctor. He showed it to me, but didn't even stitch it. — E.Y.

DEAR E.W.: Paw puncture wounds may occasionally prove to be dangerous bleeders, though most aren't. Still, they deserve attention since, if untreated, resulting infections may be life-threatening. Early foot treatment is vital where hemorrhage is heavy, and it often is, but it's also important since early wound surgery can save tendons or other vital foot structures, and suturing can be done to speed healing. Unattended, even small cuts in the foot tend to gape open whenever the foot is put down, so even if they are not infected, they are painful, and heal very slowly. The doctor, then, should determine whether a foot wound can be handled with an antibiotic injection alone, needs only bandaging or requires minor (or major) surgery.

DEAR DR. MILLER: There's nothing dangerous about snake bite, is there? I mean, of course, the non-poisonous kind. — W.J.

DEAR W.J.: Non-venomous snake bites can be dangerous from the standpoint of bacterial infection, since the fangs produce deep puncture wounds, a type likely to become infected with potentially serious results. The snake's mouth may be carrying highly undesirable bacteria which would be introduced along with the teeth into the victim's flesh. Shallow, non-venomous snake bite wounds which are not as likely to become infected, are easily treated and so of little consequence. As far as Homo sapiens is concerned, there's one other hazard about snake bites, though. That is that the victim may consider ANY such bite poisonous and go into a state of shock from fear.

Bomohs Busy in Drought

Bomohs are the Malay equivalent of witchdoctors or juju men, and in recent months they have been kept busy seeking rain.

Associated Press photographer Tee Ee watched Haji Harun bin Haji Ismail, 75, at work in a rice field near Alor Star, when the bomoh led 30 villagers in prayer after four rainless months.

"They prayed for about 20 minutes and then went home," Tee said. "About an hour and a half later heavy rain fell for 45 minutes."

The downpour at Alor Star didn't break the drought. But the continuing dry spell has not shaken the faith of many Malaysians in their bomohs.

Since it seems to work both ways, some suggested the drought was caused by one or more influential bomohs trying to prevent rain. The country normally has 80 to 100 inches of rain a year and it's standard procedure to hire a bomoh to keep the sun shining for big events.

A bomoh called Lebai Abdullah bin Omar is regularly hired by promoters of cricket and soccer matches to make sure they are not marred by rain.

Rain in not the only concern of bomohs. They are said to be experts at making charms to promote health, love, beauty and courage, to silence enemies, to boost business or cripple a competitor, to ward off evil, to counteract poison. Name it and bomohs are supposed to be able to do it.

"A bomoh is a Malay specialist of folk medicine and spirit beliefs," said Prof. Mohamed Taib Osman of University of Malaya.

They are found not only in rural areas, he said in a paper presented to an international neurological symposium, but also in cities.

The services of a bomoh are required for everything from opening a noodle stall to finding lost children.

Nearly every Malaysian village has a resident bomoh, often several. Nik Abdul Rahman, royal bomoh to the Sultan of Kelantan, once estimated there were 200 good bomohs in the state, which has a population of 684,700, plus evil ones and amateurs.

Many educated Malaysians scoff at the art, then proceed with convincing detail to describe a recent piece of witchcraft. Murders and disease are often blamed on bad bomohism.

Newspaper libraries usually have a file labelled "spirits and miracles" containing items such as:

—Forty Ipoh schoolgirls were taken to a hospital in mass hysteria and the same thing happened the next day. Bomohs explained an evil charm meant to seduce one of the girls was ineptly cast, running wild and affecting the whole school.

—Residents of Maur kept off the streets last December after they saw a flying coffin, shrouded in white. That was propably lottery-crazed people evoking spirits of the dead for advice, some bomohs decided.

Bomohs learn their craft as apprentices to veteran practitioners. Meditation is one of their basic tools. Experts say that while different bomohs have different ways of chanting incantations, the substance is basically the same.

The casting of spells is done secretly. A common belief is that the person requesting the spell will suffer if it is used for evil purposes. Bomohs are merely the medium for the message and never to blame.

Soviets May Have Seen NATO Secrets

LONDON (Reuter) — The Soviet Union may have had access to North Atlantic Treaty Organization secrets after a British supplier to the Western military alliance went out of business while heavily in debt to a Soviet bank, the company's former head has said.

Roger Felber, former managing director of Cylinder Formings Ltd., said Thursday that the Soviet Union's Moscow Narodny Bank had called in a receiver in July to his firm and taken control of its assets.

The firm had contracts with France, Belgium, and the British defence ministry, he said. Among NATO contracts the company was working on when it crashed was research work on the rocket motor of a new missile, details of which were still classified, Felber said.

Felber made his comments after a local lawyer revealed on Thursday the Soviet involvement in the company.

The lawyer, John Taylor, said that although nothing sinister or irregular had necessarily happened, "it is a strange situation that a bank with Communist links can lend its way toward knowledge of our defence arrangements."

Felber said some of the company's files contained secrets which could be useful to the Soviet Union.

Felber said the Moscow Narodny Bank first became involved with Cylinder Formings when the company made general machine tools and not munitions.

When it switched and became involved with NATO contracts the Soviet connection was kept up. Over seven years, the Russians lent the firm £2 million ($5.2 million).

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR
Astrological Forecast for Sunday, August 21

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be definite, draw line, know when relationship or project is finished. Accent on speculation, spending, emotional involvement, making yourself vulnerable where love is concerned. Libra and another Aries could be in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Highlight independence in sense that you don't rely on others to do what you must do. Legal affairs require quiet moments of reflection. Discussion with one who inspires you should rank high on agenda. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Teach, learn, rise above petty jealousies — your intuition is sparked, your spiritual values come into clear, sharp focus. Cancer, Aquarius persons play key roles. Yes, a recent contact proves important and will aid in achieving ultimate goal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Diversify — means check numerous places, people. Don't be bogged down — expand horizons, multiply interests. Give full rein to intellectual curiosity. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play outstanding roles. Health matters gain necessary attention.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): This is a cycle of practical affairs, property, costs, rights and permissions, rentals, leases, appraisals. If dwelling on fantasy, you pay a steep price. If facing reality, you land on your feet and bow to a round of applause.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be discriminating, analytical. One who tells "secrets" could be victim of wishful thinking. Your own concepts, "inspirations" are more apt to be on target. Relative, who had been estranged, comes back into fold. Another Virgo — and a Gemini — figure in scenario.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make necessary adjustments, changes at home. Money questions should be discussed, analyzed, not argued about to point of emotional fatigue. Make conciliatory gesture. Family member will follow example. You can turn apparent unpleasantness into something constructive. Do so!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cycle high — be confident, direct, independent. You are discussed by those in position of power. Show that you are willing to handle responsibility. Don't back down because of any minor setback. Your judgment, intuition will hold up and you'll emerge victorious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have "proof" to back up beliefs. You know how to proceed, who to see, what papers are required. Older individual wants you to succeed — know it and put aside juvenile resentments. Yes, Capricorn is in picture — and money will be available.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Romance, creativity, willingness to display friendship, warmth — these all are part of your personal scenario. Aries, Libra and Scorpio play key roles. You gain more recognition because you "fix" a leak, correct a mistake.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Yes, you will get second chance, an opportunity to begin anew. About debt being fully repaid: No. About member of opposite sex asking for forgiveness. That is a figment of wishful thinking. Yes, a promotion, elevation of status is very much a part of scheme of things.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take long-range view — refuse to be short-sighted, even if someone tells you it would be a "smart" thing to do. Aquarian may provide needed information. One who works with you or shares basic interests is a genuine ally — and proves it.

IF AUGUST 21st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are very conscious of physical appearance, diet. You are having a "strong" year — September should be your most significant month of 1977, a period of production. If married, there could be an addition to family. Married or single, there are investments and you could go into business. If single, you get "involved." Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. You are creative, stubborn, have sense of humor and could succeed in entertainment business.

Astrological Forecast for Monday, August 22

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on communication, publications, long-distance calls, philosophical concepts, foreign travel, languages. Highlight originality, fresh concepts, new starts. Romance is in picture. Leo figures prominently. Vitality makes comeback. Go to it!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emotions, hunches dominate. Your intuition is on target. You gain if you share, teach. Aquarian, although stubborn, will eventually become your ally. Know it and proceed accordingly. Emphasis on secrets, hidden matters, overdue bills, taxes, ability to collect from one who "plays dead."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low; be positive concerning contracts, other commitments. Partnership proposal okay if you're not restricted. You're on way up, your going to be wined-and-dined. This day you get real understanding of where you stand and how far you can go.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Low-key approach is best. Gemini, talking about prospects, could create air of envy. But if patient, your time also will arrive. For now, right at this moment, check basics, do homework, be familiar with ins-and-outs, be confident in knowledge that you are prepared.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be analytical — take nothing for granted. Flattery from opposite sex could be cover for ulterior motive. Be realistic. Emphasis on change, variety, romance, speculation, spectacular announcement that gets your creative juices flowing!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may resist luncheon or other "dull" invitation, but there are obligations, including those to parents and other family members. Taurus, Libra, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario. Be diplomatic. Don't let yourself be drawn into money argument.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't depend entirely on promises, instructions. Key now is to be flexible, to ride with tide, to innovate, to be versatile and to humor individual who would scuttle best-laid plans. Pisces, Virgo persons are in picture. Yes, you'll receive solace from "important person, but self-reliance is a necessity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on payments, collections, locating lost articles, comprehending financial status — and how to improve it. Capricorn, Cancer individuals figure prominently. Now, organize. Now, bring priorities into focus. Yes, now declare your emotional commitment!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lunar cycle high — take initiative, be a self-starter. Judgment, intuition are on target. Be conspicuous by your presence. Personality shines — popularity is on upswing — you can win friends, influence and sell.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Be direct, frank, independent — and imprint your own mark, style. Highlight creativity. Leo is very much in picture. Secrets, illusions, romantic episode — these all are part of your personal scenario.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on desire, friendship, money in connection with business investment. Some of your best qualities surface. Flash of intuition could provide key answers. Trust yourself. More people "like" you than you might imagine.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on community, profession, pride, willingness to laugh at your own foibles. Individual with "weight problem" seeks your counsel. Key is to be flexible without diminishing central objective. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius play important roles.

IF AUGUST 22nd IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are concluding major cycle — in October you begin anew, wipe slate clean and have another chance at love. You are temperamental, talented, stubborn — you were on your own early. Your relationship with parents was "unusual," to say the least. Scorpio, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. September will be a month when a relationship could end — and it might be the best thing that ever happened to you.

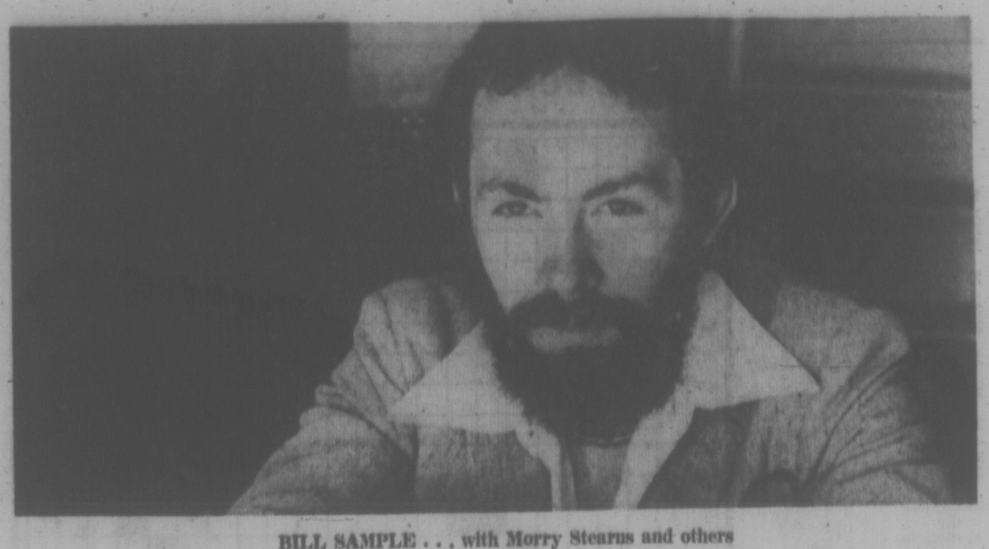
Jazz Reunion Concert Set



BILL SAMPLE . . . with Morry Stearns and others

A rare opportunity for jazz lovers to hear the original Sample-Stearns band will be offered with a reunion-concert to be held at Harpo's Aug. 29 at 8:30 p.m. The band is built around the dual keyboard, vocalist and song-writing wizardry of Bill Sample and Morrey Stearns, but also features guitarist Morman MacPherson, percussionist Jerry "Tower of Power" Adolphe and bassist Lee Oliphant.

Sample is well known to Victorians for his jazz concerts—Le Petit Bateau de Jazz, Paul Mascioli Big Band and the Bill Sample Trio. For all of these he has provided hot piano licks, arrangements and energy, but the coming concert is likely to unveil yet another side to this outstanding musician.

Stearns comes out of a background of Moxie, Jade, the Poppy Family and others. He is a top Canadian writer-performer now living in Los Angeles, where he has been active in film scoring and night club work.

Guitarist MacPherson was a founding member of several top bands in Victoria and Vancouver and prior to the SSB alignment performed and recorded with Valdi, the Poppy Family and Skylark.

This concert will mark the last performance for Adolphe in Victoria before he too heads south to seek his fortune. A widely respected player and pioneer of the victoria music scene, his drumming is characterized by great strength and an incessant "funknastic" drive.

Lured back from England, Oliphant on fender bass, provides the bottom, the bounce and the bustle of the Sample-Stearns Band. During his five years in London he edged his way into the crowded studio scene when not touring the Continent.

Rounding out the act will be the Sample-Stearnettes in their first performance with the band. The energetic vocal trio is composed of Cathy "Boat" Lewis, Jill Hardy and Debbie Braithwaite.

The music will be a mixture of original Sample-Stearns compositions and selected favorites. The Dr. Music influence is pronounced and several of their pieces will be presented. MacPherson will be featured in a Stevie Wonder a la Jeff Beck tune, Since We've Ended as Lovers, which should provide a virtuosic catalogue of tonal possibilities for rival guitar players.

Backing sets will be provided by Victoria's own Columbia recording artist, Tom Middleton.

Door admission is $2.50 and as there are no reserved seats the word is, get there early.

Video Tapes at Open Space

An exploration of the medium of video tapes under the direction of professors Eric Cameron and Noel Harding at the University of Guelph has resulted in a show of video tapes which is currently touring Canada. The show comes to Open Space, 510 Fort, Monday, and will continue there through Sept. 10.

The tapes are widely divergent in their motivation, conception and impact, being the works of nine individual Guelph artists including one "ST-32 Organic Computer." During the '70s Guelph has had a growing reputation as a video art centre in Canada.

Sponsor of the tour, Ed Video Creative Community Television, is the project of four Guelph University fine arts graduates. Ed Video was formed in 1975 under an L.I.P. grant. It initiated teaching programs in the creative and artistic use of video in various educational and correctional institutions in the area. Success of the program led to it being expanded and incorporated as a non-profit organization in 1976.

Its objectives are to be a video resource centre for artists, groups and individuals and it is handling the financing, promotion and logistics of the present tour.

Exhibition hours on opening day, Monday, are 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

At 7:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m. on Monday there will be a free viewing of a slide presentation entitled "A Case for Public Broadcasting." This has been created by Tom Shandel and Penny Grustein of Vancouver. Lasting for half an hour, each show will involve 250 slides and sound.

The first half will trace the development of radio and television in Canada; the second explores the rapid commercialization brought about by the mass media. The audience will be invited to participate in a short discussion following the presentation.

Menotti Opera at McPherson

An intense powerful modern opera will be brought to Victoria lovers of the art on Sunday when the Courtenay Youth Music Centre's opera division presents The Consul, by Gian-Carlo Menotti, at the McPherson Playhouse.

Menotti, whose operas, The Medium and Amahl and the Night Visitors, have been successfully performed here, tells a tale of intrigue and suspense in The Consul. Set in a post Second World War period, it concerns the lives of a family caught in the political tangles of the iron curtain and attempting to escape to the West.

Sung in English, the opera division cast is professionally directed by Irving Guttman of Edmonton and Manitoba opera companies, and formerly artistic director of the Vancouver Opera Association.

Thirty musicians, senior students and faculty of the CYMC, will accompany the opera conducted by Jacqueline Richard of London, Ont.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and tickets are available at the McPherson box office and Hillside Shopping Centre.

Festival on Salt Spring

Next weekend Salt Spring Island Summer Theatre '77 will host the Four Seasons group as part of its festival, which is sponsored by the Salt Spring Players.

Anyone who missed the shows here and would like to combine them with an overnight outing to the island, will be able to see Victoria Variety in a Saturday, Aug. 27, matinee at 2 p.m., the Noel Coward reprise at 8 p.m. the same day and The Mikado, Sunday at 8 p.m.

The festival has included music and a film series and will conclude with the Salt Spring Players' production of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown, which is directed by Peter Mannering and will run from Aug. 31 to Sept. 4.

Why Not Tax Junk Food?

Why does the provincial government tax non-prescription drugs while exempting junk foods such as candy bars and soft drinks?

Conservative leader Scott Wallace asked that question in the legislature Thursday but he didn't get much of an answer.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said that "so-called anomalies in the sales tax," should be put to him in writing so he can study them.

Wolfe added that items to be removed from the sales tax are always under review and promised to take a look at the matter of taxed health aides such as vitamins and other non-prescription drugs.

Wallace said the sales tax now "obviously discriminates against people with medical needs."

Acid Film Critics

HAMBURG, West Germany (Reuter) — Three masked men burst into a movie house just before Thursday night's program, tied up the projectionist and poured acid over a reel of a documentary film on the life of Hitler, police said Friday.

Man in Havana

WASHINGTON (Reuter)— Lyle Franklin Lane, a career foreign service officer, has been chosen to head the special U.S. diplomatic mission being established in Havana, the U.S. state department announced Friday.

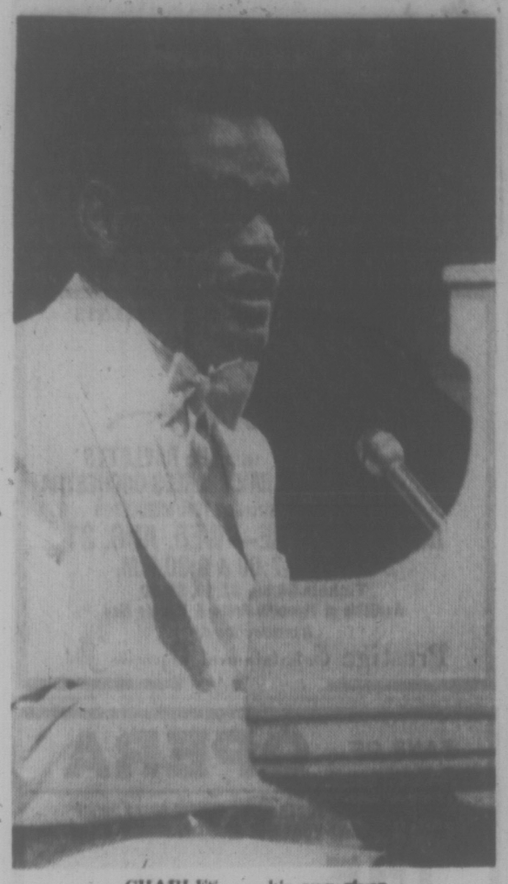
HEADLINERS COME TO TOWN



CHARLES . . . his own river

Two of the world's great show-biz headliners are to be in Victoria within five days of each other — rock star Roy Orbison and legendary "soul singer" Ray Charles. Orbison comes to the Memorial Arena next Saturday; Charles to the Royal Theatre Aug. 31.

Roy, for whom the word "Orbisongs" was coined, the reigning king of rock after Presley and before the Beatles, scarred by double personal tragedies in his background and trademarked by his engulfing dark glasses and blues-rock singing style, will be at the Arena with back-up musicians and guest comedian Bill Vader for a single performance.

The big voice — it's been called the Caruso of rock — and the keening style will be vented in six B.C. centres on this tour, the climax being his starring role at the PNE.

"Soul is like electricity, like a spirit, a drive, a power," says Ray Charles, who for more than 20 years has reached out to and touched all kinds of people transcending barriers of language, cultural levels and education.

He has run through and transformed the gamut of fashions within the idiom of popular music, making rhythm and blues, rock, country and western all his element, Thomas Thompson of Life Magamine said: "He has drawn from each of these musical streams and made a river which he alone can navigate."

Born Ray Charles Robinson, a negro and poor in the Jim Crow-dominated Georgia of 1930, blinded by glaucoma at the age of seven, Ray rejected self-pity and dependency, inspired by his mother's "You lost your sight, not your mind."

Ray taught himself to play and write for every brass and wind instrument in an orchestra, specializing in piano, organ and sax. He composes and arranges, plays a virtuoso brand of chess and could fly a plane if he could get a licence. He is also a person every bit as much as he is a personality, possessing a broad and deep humanity.

His Victoria concerts — they're at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. — will include 26 entertainers; the Raeletts, the 17-piece Ray Charles Orchestra and special guest, Tom Middleton.

Musicians Join Conservatory Faculty for Fall Term

Several new faculty members are joining the Victoria Conservatory of Music for the fall semester, which will commence on September 6. Among them will be Miss Allyn Chard, who will direct the Conservatory's newest established Suzuki violin program. Miss Chard has recently returned to Victoria from Edmonton where she studied with Thomas Ralston of the Alberta String Quartet.

Ms. Irene Baird, a graduate of the University of Victoria and former Conservatory student, will take over the Kodaly program for children. Ms. Baird is currently beginning her Master's program in Kodaly training at Holy Names College in Oakland, Cal.

To the voice department comes Mrs. Peggy Baker, who will direct vocal coaching sessions, and well known theatre director Peter Mannering, who is to conduct a drama course in conjunction with the opera school.

Composer David Duke joins the theory department. He comes to the Conservatory from the position of music coördinator at Red Deer College in Alberta.

A former student of eminent Canadian composer Jean Coulthard, Duke possesses a Master's degree from the University of North Carolina and a B.Mus. from UBC. He will teach theory and composition, working with Rodney Webster, head of the department.

Courses begun last year will be continued and in some instances expanded. The jazz theory course was very popular and will be offered again under the direction of Tom Williamson. Dance was introduced in 1977-78, focussing on modern dance and movement under the direction of Shirley Rolland. This year ballet is to be added, directed by Beatrix le Gras (ARAD, London).

Last June the first class of teacher training students completed a two-year course. This has proven a great success and will be continued. Private instruction in keyboard, strings, winds, voice, guitar and speech as well as classes in theory, composition and jazz are included in the Conservatory syllabus.

There is now a junior orchestra in addition to the senior orchestra and the wind band, and programs in chamber music and the Carl Orff system in addition to the Kodaly and Suzuki classes.

Complementing the enormous music education program, the Conservatory features many concerts of students at all levels, senior student graduating recitals, faculty recitals and recitals and master classes by visiting artists. Conservatory students also perform in hospitals, senior citizen centres and at many public functions.

The programs are intended for people of all ages, and many adults were included in the 1976-77 enrolment of over 1,200 students. Registrations for the fall semester are being accepted now and those interested are advised to register early to ensure placement with the teacher of their choice. Information can be obtained from the Registrar at 1050 Joan Crescent (Craigdarroch Castle).

Veteran Age-Guesser Was in Wrong Century

TORONTO (CP) — A 105-year-old woman from Minden, Ont., was too tough a challenge for Garry Vigon, a 17-year veteran of age-guessing who practises his art at the Canadian National Exhibition.

His guess of 96 years was nine years out, and Mrs. Pierce left with her prize of miniature replicas of a little old man and woman in rocking chairs.

"I don't know whether I'm young or old," said Mrs. Pierce. "I don't think age is really important. I just live each day as it goes."

The Easy Riding Millionaire

By VERNON SCOTT

It's no easy thing for a man to be a millionaire and continue to be anti-establishment.

The situation might be likened to Billy Graham falling heir to a bordello or George Meany being elected president of General Motors.

Such is the case with Peter Fonda. Since childhood he and sister Jane have been rebels without a pause. They come by their social consciousness naturally. Father Henry Fonda has spent a life-time prodding the establishment.

FONDA . . . singing to the bank

Despite his wealth, Peter continues to assail the establishment on screen and off. He does not see any conflict between being a capitalist while railing against the shortcomings of capitalism.

Fonda, unlike most other millionaire actors, does not have a Beverly Hills mansion, impressive offices and a coterie of flunkies.

He does own a $2 million yacht anchored in Hawaii and his garage houses a Cadillac El Dorado. But he bought the yacht as a home, "a safe place for my children to breathe good air and know the sea." The Cadillac is an investment because El Dorados are no longer made.

His permanent home is a 1872 homestead in Montana where he grows apples, hay, clover, barley and runs 40 head of cattle on a 113-acre spread without assistance. He and his second wife, Portia, do the irrigating and fence mending. They also grow their own vegetables.

Peter has offices in a run-down, fly-blown Hollywood bungalow outside which he flies the American flag.

The tall (6-foot-2), slender Fonda spends as little time as possible in Southern California. When Peter is in town he visits with his father and sister and his children by his first marriage, Justin, 11, and Bridget, 13.

In Outlaw Blues, Peter once again portrays an anti-establishmentarian, a jailbird who becomes a country-western singer-composer, but this time lightly and with dashes of comedy.

"It's not something I designed," said Peter on a short visit to Hollywood. "They were films that came my way, the guy on the outside looking in.

"Maybe the roles reflect my own lifestyle but I'm now singing all the way to the bank."

Fonda is literally singing. He did his own vocals for Outlaw Blues, fulfilling a lifelong ambition.

"I've always loved music and dreamed of recording an album one day," he said, grinning. "Every time Dad got a role playing a musical instrument I'd practice right along with him.

"I learned to noodle around on the trumpet when he played one in On Our Merry Way. And I played the bass when he did The Wrong Man for Alfred Hitchcock. Now I'm singing and loving every minute of it."

KEEP CONTROLS—FED.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government's proposed Residential Tenancy Act, which would allow the removal of rent controls in some areas, will give landlords free rein to manipulate rents and the housing market, the British Columbia Federation of Labor said Friday.

The federation said in a news release that the Social Credit party had pledged during the 1975 election campaign not to remove rent controls. It expressed surprise that the government now thought it could ignore that pledge without seriously damaging its credibility.

The federation said that past experience has clearly shown the private market cannot and will not ensure low cost accommodation.

Dissident Teamsters Seek Court Injunction

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dissident members of the Teamsters Union have gone to court in an attempt to block their transfer into a controversial new local of the union. An application for an injunction against seven Teamster executive members, including Senator Ed Lawson, will be heard Monday in British Columbia Supreme Court.

The application was filed earlier this week on behalf of Richard Varty, one of the leaders of a group of Teamsters in the B.C. Interior fighting against their transfer from Local 213 into a newly-created Local 180.

Named in the court action are the seven members of the Local 213 executive board — Lawson, Joe Whiteford, Jack King, Wes Anderson, Jack Vlahovic, Norm Wilkinson and Jim Blimfield.

Varty, a union shop steward from Kamloops, is seeking an injunction which would restrain the Local 213 executive board from transferring any members or funds to Local 180 until the B.C. Labor Relations Board has determined whether a representation vote should be held in the dispute.

The charter carving Local 180 out of Local 213 was granted by the Teamsters' international executive board without a vote on the grounds that the terms of the original merger between Local 213 and Interior Teamsters had been violated by Local 213 Secretary-Treasurer Jack Vlahovic.

The new local would take away about 2,000 out of the 8,000 union members in Local 213.

Opponents of Local 180 charge the move is merely part of a continuing campaign by the union establishment to create problems for Vlahovic, who successfully ousted Al Medley from the post of Local 213 secretary-treasurer in union elections earlier this year.

The dispute is currently before the labor relations board, which must decide whether to hold a vote on the issue and whether Local 180 can legally claim successor rights to certifications now held by Local 213.

Wanted Man Shows . . . But Not the Cash

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 44-year-old man turned himself in to police Friday and was charged in the theft of $120,000 from a Surrey construction contractor.

Fred Ostrikoff was released on $10,000 bail and remanded to Sept. 2.

But when he checked his trunk four days after the hotel meeting, Hoolsema found only bundles of paper and a note from Bannerman saying: "Wait till I return. Your friend Mark."

The money has not been recovered.

YOUR CITY WATCHDOG REPORT
Number fifteen — Congratulations to the City Fireman that phoned and gave your City's Watchdog some constructive criticism regarding the Ogden Point fire; also congratulations to the four Saanich aldermen who voted against the present Council Library Proposal at last Monday's Council meeting and especially to Ald Severson who stated that the taxpayers should have the right to vote on a referendum because this proposal will envolve four million dollars over a ten year period and possibly an additional ten years at a higher rent for the library space. I'm sure readers of these reports will please keep a watchful eye on 1320 Blanshard Street because it is hoped that any Victoria resident that cannot call or visit City Hall during business hours regarding the voters list for the City of Victoria and who would like to enquire in person on Friday August 26th between 1 and 9 p.m. or Saturday 27th between 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Your City's Watchdog will endeavor to answer any questions regarding City's business or will check the voters list at 1320 Blanshard Street. HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Government Lists Excess Profits

OTTAWA (CP) — The anti-inflation board released on Friday a list of 23 more companies with excess profits totalling $3,263,000.

The board has approved plans submitted by the companies to dispose of the excess revenues by either absorbing more production costs or reducing prices on some products.

Since the anti-inflation program went into effect in October, 1975, the board has found that 353 companies make excess revenues totalling $169 million.

The company making the largest excess in the list released today was Abitibi Paper Company Ltd. of Toronto, which went $777,000 over allowable limits.

Three of the companies, A. E. I. Telecommunications Ltd. of Winnipeg, and Comstock International Ltd. and ITT Industries of Canada Ltd., both of Toronto, refused to allow amounts of their excess revenues to be published, but the total for the three firms was $614,000.

The other companies, with amounts of excess, are as follows:

Alliance Canners Ltd., Toronto, $4,000; Cominco Ltd., Vancouver, $88,000; Erco Industries Ltd., Toronto, $207,000; Kaufman Footwear Ltd., Kitchener, Ont., $84,000; Loblaws Companies Ltd., Toronto, $146,000.

Mainville et Fils Inc., Longueuil, Que., $114,000; Merck, Sharp and Dohme Canada Ltd., Pointe Claire, Que., $66,000; Monarch Fine Foods Co., Toronto, $97,000; Reliance Electric Ltd., Toronto, $74,000; Rowntree MacKintosh Canada Ltd., Toronto, $21,000.

Rubberset Company (Canada) Ltd., Gravenhurst, Ont., $44,000; Sargent and Company (Canada), Peterborough, Ont., $115,000; Standard Brands Ltd., Montreal, $70,000; Vachon Inc., Ste. Marie de Beauce, Que., $358,000; Westinghouse Canada Ltd., Hamilton, $74,000.

GWG Ltd., Edmonton, $32,000; Kinsington Homes, Transcona, Man., $84,000; Sheller-Globe of Canada Ltd., Cambridge, Ont., $177,000; Theodorus Niemeyer Canada Inc., Toronto, $17,000.

Campfire Ban Extended To Prince Rupert

The B.C. campfire ban has been expanded to cover the Prince Rupert Forest District on the northwest coast, excluding the coastal area from Smith Sound to Stewart.

The closure area also includes the Queen Charlotte Islands where open fires were last banned in July, 1958.

As has been the case for the southern part of the province, the ban does not include commercial and provincial camping and picnic grounds that are adequately supervised.

Vance Heading For Peking

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a lapse of nearly two years in high-level U.S.-Chinese contacts, State Secretary Cyrus Vance is going to Peking to convey U.S. interests in human rights while exploring prospects for full diplomatic relations.

In background briefings Friday, officials told reporters there will be no "breakthrough" during the mission and that Taiwan will not be abandoned.

NEW CURFEW IN SRI LANKA

COLOMBO (Reuter) — Two more towns were placed under curfew Friday as violence and looting which has claimed 14 lives spread through northern and central parts of Sri Lanka, formerly Ceylon.

The trouble started at the port of Jaffna, in the Tamil-speaking northern peninsula, Monday when police fired on a crowd which attacked them during a college carnival. Four persons were killed.

Two New Judges Appointed

Attorney-General Garde Gardom announced Friday the appointment of Robert Graham, of Prince Rupert, effective Oct. 3, and Cyril Woodliffe, of Vanderhoof, effective Sept. 15.

School Job Let

Double V Construction Ltd. of Delta, has been awarded a $102,000 contract for alterations to the Willingdon Industrial School in Burnaby, Public Works Minister Alex Fraser announced Friday. Work is to begin next week.

Trial Planned For Slaying

The government said in an order-in-council that Deardon has recovered from his mental illness and ordered that he be taken to a court of competent jurisdiction for trial or other disposition according to law.

A provincial court judge in Delta had ruled in October, 1976, that Deardon was unfit to stand trial on account of insanity.

Guards End Five-Day Strike At Manitoba Provincial Jails

WINNIPEG (CP) — Provincial jail guards and juvenile counsellors returned to work at provincial jails and detention centres late Friday, ending a five-day strike.

The return to work came as tentative agreement was announced on a one-year contract between the province and the Manitoba Government Employees Association (MGEA).

Bill Jackson, MGEA president, and J. R. Boyce, Manitoba minister of corrections, told a joint news conference they expected conditions to return to normal quickly.

Jackson said the guards were returning "at this very minute".

Both Jackson and Boyce had high praise for the more than 100 RCMP officers who helped supervisory officers to run the provincial jail and detention centres during the strike.

They said the co-operation of the RCMP was instrumental in preventing any serious incidents.

More than 800 prisoners were in the 12 institutions when the strike began. More than 100 including 70 juveniles—were released or assigned to a less restrictive type of custody.

An official said those released because of the strike were either minimum security prisoners or persons who were due for release soon anyway. Four facilities were closed.

The contract calls for average pay increases of about 11.5 per cent, including improvements in training allowances, for the 500 correctional employees.

Prior to the strike, a Class 1 correctional officer—the category that covers 250 of the 340 officers in adult corrections—had a starting rate of $10,801 a year.

The government's last offer, before the strike started at midnight Sunday, was about 7.5 per cent. Under the new agreement, there is an increase to $45 a month from $15 in the additional qualification pay for officers taking a two-year training course.

Boyce said the government and the MGEA have decided to set up a special committee on institutional relations. Another group will be formed to give employees a say in management decisions and to relieve staff frustrations.

Jackson met with between 25 and 30 picket captains immediately after agreement in principle was reached and got their commitment to recommend acceptance to the members.

He said the agreement was "less than I thought our striking members would accept . . . but we feel it is the best we could achieve at this time without a long-term strike."

The officers originally sought a 12.4-per-cent increase, the same percentage that federal prison guards won last year, citing special considerations in prison work.

Jackson said the government has promised to take no disciplinary action against the strikers or any other employees who refused to cross picket lines.

Boyce refused to say whether this commitment meant the government openly recognizes the right of civil servants to strike. Jackson said he regarded it as a clear precedent.

Brandt's Neo-Nazi Warning Rejected by German Gov't

BONN (Reuter) — The West German government has rejected a claim by ex-chancellor Willy Brandt that not enough is being done to combat neo-Nazi activities in this country.

A government spokesman told reporters Friday the authorities were "meticulously observing" right-wing extremism and treating it just as seriously as the activities of leftist radicals.

Brandt said in a letter to Chancellor Helmut Schmidt that he was concerned about the growth in neo-Nazi gatherings and complained that their supporters were not being pursued as rigorously as left-wing extremists.

The letter was sent to the chancellor last month but only published on Thursday by the press service of the ruling Social Democratic Party (SPD), of which Brandt is chairman.

He said he based his claims on reports reaching him from party members. The rightist meetings involved only a tiny percentage of the population but Nazi ideas were being publicly flaunted at them and they were taking place with the apparent knowledge and tacit approval of the authorities, he added. The Nazi party is banned in West Germany.

Spokesman Armin Gruenewald pointed out at a routine government news conference Friday that a recent interior ministry report had said rightwing radical groups in West Germany "have been practically devoid of importance for a long time."

Schmidt, who is a deputy chairman of the SPD, had not yet replied to Brandt's letter, he added.

Brandt's comments were criticized today by the conservative newspaper Die Welt, which said in an editorial they were likely to cause further damage to West Germany's image abroad, and accused him of not paying sufficient attention to left-wing extremists in his own party.

Nazism has again become topical in West Germany in recent months. A documentary film on the life of Adolf Hitler is doing brisk business throughout the country, and several magazines and newspapers are publishing the reminiscences of former leading figures in the Nazi movement.

Controversy has also been inflamed by the escape to West Germany from an Italian military hospital of ex-S.S. Colonel Herbert Kappler, jailed for life for wartime reprisal murders in Rome. He is said to be dying of cancer.

Telegraph Continuing to Fade Out in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Use of telegraph services in Canada continues to decline at an increasing rate, signalling further closings of telegraph offices, more layoffs of telegraph workers and growing deficits in the industry, a communications department report says.

The 35-page study, released Wednesday, also found that the introduction of innovative, new telegraph services, such as Telepost, has failed to stem the growing deficits at a time when telegraph offices face increasingly-stiff competition.

Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve responded to the report by saying "the future evolution of public message telegraph service in Canada must be opened to public consideration at this time in view of its continuing decline and the rapid introduction of more competitive tele-communications services."

Mrs. Suave said, however, that the telegraph service "remains a valuable option in the range of telecommunications available to Canadians and, to some, an important service, difficult to replace."

Domestic telegraph services are run by the tele-communications divisions of the Canadian National Railways and Canadian Pacific Ltd. The Crown-owned Teleglobe Canada operates operseas telegraph services or cablegrams.

Citing financial reasons, CNCP Telecommunications began in 1967 to close some of its offices, shorten its business hours at other offices and cut its staff.

The report said that between 1961 and 1976 the number of telegraph workers dropped to 1,080 from 9,997.

Meantime, use of the telegraph within the country or with the U.S. declined, while the number of cablegrams remained static, the report said.

Between 1965 and 1975, the total number of domestic telegrams and telegrams sent to the U.S. decreased by 65.2 per cent and there is no evidence to show that the decline in the use of these services "will be arrested under prevailing conditions," the report said.

Judge Touted for FBI Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Frank Johnson, who says he hopes he can lead the FBI as well as J. Edgar Hoover did, likely will win an easy Senate confirmation as bureau director, a leading conservative predicts.

The Senate judiciary committee, divided nearly evenly between liberals and conservatives, is expected to hold hearings on the nomination shortly after Congress returns on Sept. 5 from its summer recess.

SMALL AIRLINES HAPPY

$5M-a-Year Air Boost

Third-level air carriers (small airlines flying within provincial boundaries) today reacted with cautious enthusiasm to Transport Minister Jack Davis' announcement that the provincial government will assist northern air transport development.

Davis said the government plans to embark on a northern navigational aid and landing strip upgrading program, and will look into buying and leasing aircraft to small airline companies.

B.C. could put as much as $5 million a year into the program, he said.

"We're happy to see the announcement," said Al Michaud, president of West Coast Air, but added he would like to see the details, specifically the aircraft purchase-lease aspect.

Michaud's Vancouver-based airline which runs regular flights up the west coast of the province, depends largely on amphibian Mallards.

Michaud said the Mallard is a very expensive aircraft to operate, but that there is nothing on the market today to replace it.

But otherwise he welcomes the program. There's a lot that needs to be done in the area of better landing strips, navigaional aids, weather reporting and improved docking facilities for float paines, he said.

There are no navigaional beacons between Port Hardy and Prince Rupert 300 miles to the north, and no airstrips can be made in bad weather, where instrument landings

He added that there are a lot of problems, some of which won't be easy to solve, but at least the wheels are in motion.

More and improved landing strips would cut operating costs of the smaller airlines, Keith Stevenson, president of Island Airlines said.

The Campbell River based airline uses float planes 80 to 85 per cent of the time, he said.

Floats cost up to $120,000 a pair for a twin engine Otter, they're more costly to maintain and they add weight. Float plane insurance and fuel consumption are also higher, he said.

He said Island Air would be interested in moving into more northern routes, but added there are no fewer than 16 third level air carriers operating between the lower mainland and Bella Coola, and the routes already overlap.

31 Killed In Slide After Quake

JAKARTA (AP) — A major earthquake in the eastern Indian Ocean caused a landslide on the Indonesian island of Sumbawa, the government said today. At least 31 persons were reported dead and 67 others missing.

They were the first casualties reported since the quake, perhaps the strongest ever recorded, struck between Indonesia and Australia Friday.

A government spokesman said medical teams, volunteers and food supplies have been sent to Sumbawa and $24,000 has been allocated for disaster relief.

The 31 landslide victims were found among debris and rubble in the island district of Lunya, authorities said.

On Sumba island, 200 miles north of the epicentre, a policeman contacted by telephone reported "a few cracks on some buildings and a little damage on our pier."

But government officials here said they have been unable to get in touch with the island.

The quake also rattled tall buildings as far away as Perth, Australia, 1,300 miles south of Jakarta, and tremors rippled along the 2,400-mile length of the Western Australian coast.

Seismographic monitoring stations around the world reported the strength of the quake at between 7.7 and 8.9 on the Richter scale. Seismologists in Vienna reported a reading of 8.9 and said it was was "one of the strongest quakes in recorded history." However, they acknowledged that energy waves may have distorted their reading.

Authorities said aftershocks buffeted Indonesian islands all day Friday.

One official said inadequate communications with remote islands in the Indonesian archipelago have hampered efforts to access quake-related damage and injuries.

Muchson Surachman, a deputy director of department of social affairs, said his agency is still trying to establish contact with some of the islands.

A spokesman for the meteorology department reported damaged buildings and at least one injury on the tourist island of Bali, about 300 miles northwest of the epicentre. A powerful quake struck that island last year, killing more than 1,000 persons.

There were reports of higher than usual waves.

Levesque Still Hopeful

Times News Services

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. — Although Quebec's proposal for reciprocal agreements on minority language was rejected Friday by provincial premiers, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque said he believes his venture was not a failure.

"We didn't come here with illusions of getting written agreements signed in half a day," Levesque told a news conference after the end of the closed-door meeting.

The premier described the discussions and their results as "a small effort to see if there couldn't be a rapprochement."

"The minimum expectations we've had we've realized," the Quebec leader added.

Levesque said the joint statement by the nine other premiers pledging their best efforts to provide French language instruction was "a great thrust of good intentions" but Quebec had been looking for concrete agreements.

"Practice, not policy" is what Quebec wants, Levesque said, adding that "after one hundred and some years of hot air" when it came to language rights, Quebec preferred to wait and see what the results would be.

Levesque said he had not expected quick agreement to his proposal. He said he had even suggested the premiers advance the date for their next conference, scheduled for next summer in Saskatchewan.

The Quebec leader said the declaration by the other nine provinces was "full of high-flown and, I think, sincere intentions."

However, he added, "there have been many moral undertakings" in the past.

"We can't be open to any change in our position with that kind of declaration," he said.

"They lost a good opportunity to show inter-provincial leadership, in an area where exclusive jurisdiction belongs to the provinces," he said, adding that some of his minimum expectations were realized.

Alcan Union Agrees To Pay

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers has tentatively agreed to pay the Aluminum Co. of Canada $135,000 in an out-of-court settlement of the company's damage suit against the union.

Union and company representatives said today they reached agreement Wednesday, less than three weeks before the damage suit was to be heard before Justice George Murray.

The company had claimed $1.3 million in damages from the union in a Supreme Court action launched following the 18-day illegal strike by union members at Alcan's Kitimat smelter in June, 1976.

Damages were also claimed from the union business agent Peter Burton, president Wilf Papenbrock and executive member Jim Brisebois.

Under the terms of the proposed settlement, the union agrees to pay $135,000. The first payment of $7,000 would be made Sept. 9 and the remainder in $3,500 monthly installments.

The union further agrees that the payments will never be the subject of contract negotiations and that the company has the right to reinstitute a damage suit or submit a claim for $275,000, less any money that has been paid., if the union breaches the agreement.

Alcan agrees to drop its appeal of a supreme court decision dismissing contempt of court charges against Columbia Labor Relations Board ruling which resulted in many union members having to guarantee repayment of several weeks' wages to the company.

The Union has also agreed to issue a statement acknowledging that it "engaged in an illegal strike contrary to the collective agreement and the labor code and also decisions and orders of the B.C. Labor Relations Board and the B.C. Supreme Court."

In the statement, the union also pledges to solve future differences "through established procedures."

The $135,000 settlement, if ratified, is believed to be one of the largest amounts ever to be paid to an employer by a trade union in B.C.

LONDON AIRPORTS 'BURST AT SEAMS'

LONDON (AP) — "We are bursting at the seams," an exasperated official at Heathrow Airport said today as thousands of delayed travellers jammed bars and buffets in three terminals here.

At the height of the summer getaway, flights to North American and European points were running hours behind schedule because of a job action by air traffic controllers demanding higher pay.

Refusing to use flight log computers, the controllers were recording each flight by hand in a process that slowed air traffic in and out of Heathrow, the world's busiest airport outside of the United States.

"It certainly looks as though we are in for a very bad weekend," said a spokesman for British Airways, which cancelled 36 of its 160 flights.

The British Airports Authority said service to New York, Boston, Montreal and Tehran would be "badly hit" today as well as flights to most European cities. Even a move lifting night-time restrictions on flights did not relieve the backlog.

Airport officials estimated that about 100,000 passengers travelling through Heathrow were delayed on Friday.

HARMAC VOTES BACK TO WORK

NANAIMO (CP) — The 1,400 members of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, Local 8, at the MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Harmac pulp mill here have voted to return to work following an eight-day stoppage because of suspension of two workers who declined to perform tasks not normally theirs.

B.C. Weeds Fouling U.S. Clean-Up

KELOWNA (CP) — Eurasian milfoil weed drifting south from the Canadian portion of Osoyoos Lake, about 60 miles south of here, is hurting a successful herbicide program to control the pest on the United States side, the head of the American program said Friday.

Dick Thayer, weed control program head for Washington State's ecology department, said in a telephone interview that both countries are trying to co-ordinate a fight against the weed despite longer delays facing British Columbia officials before they can use herbicide.

Thayer said response to the program in Washington State has been excellent, with local governments co-operating fully.

Clark, MPs Plan Test in Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Six Progressive Conservative MPs, including party leader Joe Clark, have ordered a Toronto lawyer to test in court the validity of a cabinet order they say prevents them from discussing details of a uranium cartel.

The party says that under the terms of a cabinet order passed last fall, details of the cartel in which the government admits it participated cannot be discussed.

Sinclair Stevens, the PC finance critic, said Thursday that federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie had been given until 4 p.m. EDT Friday to grant them permission to discuss the cartel information.

But a spokesman for Gillespie said Thursday the minister is on vacation until next week and his office was awaiting advice from the federal justice department before replying.

Stevens said Friday that the Conservatives have instructed John Sopinka, the Toronto lawyer, to test the validity of this offensive regulation in court.

At issue is a move by the federal government to join a uranium cartel in the early 1970s that it says was needed to prevent the collapse of the domestic uranium mining industry.

The Conservatives say they want their lawyer to determine whether the cartel activities contravened Canadian combines legislation by increasing the price of uranium to domestic users.

Ontario Cities Lead Income Parade

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Ontario cities registered the highest average incomes in 1975 among 100 selected cities, according to statistics released Friday by the federal revenue department.

Oakville, with a Ford Motor Co. plant and midway between Toronto and Hamilton, led the list with an average income estimated from personal income tax statistics of $11,714 a year.

Burlington, a suburb of the steel-manufacturing city of Hamilton, was second with an average income of $11,527.

Both cities overtook the iron ore port town of Sept Iles, Que., which in 1974 had the highest average income. Sept Iles was third in 1975 with $11,191.

The figures also show that on average male incomes during the 1971-75 period increased marginally faster than female incomes.

Between those years, overall incomes rose by 77.4 per cent. Male incomes rose by 77.6 per cent and female incomes climbed by 77 per cent.

The average incomes for cities are determined for the first time in 1975 from the total income reported by all taxpayers.

The towns on the selected list published by the department all had populations of more than 12,000 but the department said the figures do not necessarily represent communities with the highest average incomes in the country.

Brossard, a Montreal suburb, was fourth with $10,956; Mississauga, near Toronto, fifth at $10,838; Prince George, a forest mill town, sixth at $10,634; Bramalea, Ont., a Toronto suburb, at $10,510; Alberni, B.C., a lumber mill town at $10,345; Ottawa, at $10,287, was ninth and Sarnia, a refinery town, was 10th at $10,286.

Vancouver was 12th at $10,233, Toronto was 26th at $9,638 and Montreal 31st at $9,531.

Last on the list was Cornwall, Ont., with an average income of $7,390.

VAULT VICTIM SUES

VANCOUVER (CP) — A post office clerk launched a British Columbia Supreme Court action Friday against the owners of Vancouver Safety Deposit Vaults to recover $150,000 he says was stolen during a break-in last January.

Derek Dempster and Margaret and Russell Dempster say they lost a $146,000 coin collection and $4,000 worth of antique gold in the burglary.

They were among the 1,225 victims when burglars broke into the vault Jan. 8 and looted almost an entire wall of safety deposit boxes.

Police recovered nine suitcases containing an estimated $1.5 million worth of cash, gold, jewels and coins at Vancouver International Airport on Jan. 10.

The thieves broke into the rear of the building and drilled through 24 inches of concrete and 3½ inches of steel to get into the vault.

LICENCE VARIETY

They Can't Get Enough On Plates

Bob Miller eyes collection . . . all kinds of years and colors

Remember the dusty August doldrums of youth when you vied with your pals to collect the most car licence numbers?

If your street was as alternately gritty and muddy as the gravelled space in front of many depression-era homes, it was a dirty place indeed. Perfect for squishing or sifting between bare toes until the next car came by.

Then a frantic scribble in a two-for-a-nickle notebook as the dust billowed into a golden haze.

As a hobby it wasn't much. It was childish fun to fill an idle afternoon and more than a few notebooks, and kept you out of the house.

Today, some 40 years later, some of these numerical novices are kept at home in the basement through collecting not just numbers but also the plates.

Licence plate collecting is a recognized international hobby. But there are relatively few serious collectors in Canada.

Number plate collecting reaches its North American zenith south of the border because of the large number of legal jurisidictions — 51 American and 32 Mexican.

Canada has only 13 licence-issuing authorities not counting local issuers of taxi and commercial plates, and that may be the reason collecting is more exclusive here.

A journal published by the American Licence Plate Collectors Association lists pages of U.S. members and only a little more than one page of Canadian participants, of which about 12 reside in B.C. Rare are major collectors, like Len Garrison, of Port Alberni, who is said to have 40,000 plates.

Roger Newberry, a dealer in antiques and various collectibles, has a fairly well organized assortment of Canadian licence plates numbering in the hundreds and representing all provinces and federal jurisdictions including the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

He sells them for as little as $1 and as much as $25, even for the rare porcelain enamelled steel plates issued by B.C. more than 50 years ago.

But Ken Ballard, an antique car buff who used to be a serious plate collector, said the porcelain plates of the 1912-20 period can bring anywhere from $50 to $100 each depending upon condition and rarity.

Just a few years ago, when the hobby was still in its infancy, a collector could go into practically any barn or garage on the island and come out with plates anywhere from one year to 40 years old.

Today, said Ballard, most of these relics are in the hands of collectors. The junkyard and back lots still yield sought-after parts for vintage cars, but the licence plates are likely to have been the first parts scavenged.

Ballard and the provincial motor vehicle branch have one thing in common besides a lot of licence numbers: each has a complete set of plates issued by the province from the time when registration appeared to take precedence over plates.

The first ones (1906-11) consisted of a piece of leather to which the car owner attached metal house numbers, or painted the numerals on.

Bob Miller, another collector whose main interest is old cars, said it is arguable as to which was the first B.C. plate. Because of the leather period in the first decade of the century, some collectors feel the first plate should be 1912, which is the first metal one and the first standardized plate actually made by the provincial government.

Miller has a full set from 1913-17, a few extra B.C. plates for trading, some British and an Hawaiian plate for decoration. Anyone interested in Quebec plates is invited to have a look at Miller's 1933 example.

His collection includes registration plates from the First World War period, when they were made from a thin tinplate to conserve on materials for the war effort. Because they were so light they have not stood up well and a specimen in good condition is hard to find and worth $50-$75 to a serious collector.

Probably the rarest Canadian plates are these wartime ones, expecially for 1916-17, and those from NWT, which has relatively few motor vehicles.

Newberry said Yukon plates are in fair demand, as well. He has one on his shelf from 1975 marked $5.

The 1913 porcelain marked $25 has several chipped areas but is in generally good condition.

Ballard has a special porcelain plate issued by the city of Victoria in 1912 which is in excellent shape even though it was buried for an undetermined period and dug up about 15 years ago on what was Fairfield Farm Estates.

People often ask Newberry to find them a plate to match the year of an old car they are restoring, usually from the 1920s or 1930s.

They will collect by country, by provinces, by year of issue, numerical sequence, degree of rarity and combinations of these. Passenger car plates are generally collected, but motorcycle licences may also be sought.

"B.C. 53s are hard to get because that was a tag year and only new car buyers had new plates," Newberry said.

Leather plates in reasonable shape are also rare: "I've seen them go for $50 at auctions," he said.

In order to devote more time and money to his cars — a 1915 Model T roadster, a 1926 Model T, a 1940 Ford pickup and a 1950 Meteor sedan — Ballard decided to sell much of his plate collection and netted a surprising $700-$800 by dealing directly with collector contacts across the country.

Purely Canadian collections tend to seem dull next to the infinite variety of American and overseas plates. The U.S. states used to express an individuality that has faded: bizarre colors and symbols, different shapes and sizes, and registration letters chosen to spell words and names.

The Georgia plate used to have a peach, Idaho a baked potato with a pat of butter, and Loiuisiana a pelican sitting on a stump. Arizona has a blazing sun and several states depict a wheelchair for handicapped drivers, but they seem tame next to older plates. And they are all the same size.

By comparison, B.C. plates for several years have had three-letter prefixes deliberately contrived to avoid spelling words. They also are valid for several years at a stretch, with annual decals attached, which will make it harder for collectors to fill gaps.

Some jurisdictions, to the delight of collectors, dispose of surplus plates in wholesale lots, providing trading material for years.

MVB superintendent R. G. Whitlock said any plates turned in to the B.C. branch are destroyed for recycling, and none will be declared surplus until a new series comes out, perhaps next year. Then they, too, will be recycled.

Improving Whale Calf City's Top Attraction

Since she was brought to the Oak Bay Beach Hotel pool 10 days ago for medical treatment for a series of ailments, including a bullet wound which threatened her life, she has been seen by about 30,000 people.

"In the morning most of the visitors are young people, kids from day camps," said Angus Matthews, manager of Sealand. "Adults mostly come at night."

He said visitors have also included patients from hospitals.

"A lot of these cards are brought in by children, but we get some from adults, too," Matthews said.

While Sealand is not soliciting funds to help pay for Miracle's medical bills, the Data Entra staff at the B.C. Medical office donated $50 and members of the Oddfellows Lodge also took a collection and turned in $39.

The money will be used to buy food for the calf.

The Lilly Drug Company is also contributing antibiotics.

Matthews said donations of salmon are no longer required.

Vote Demanded on Saanich Plan

In a statement handed to council members, Mika said the plebiscite is needed to give residents a sense of participation in decisive decisions about their future.

Mika said the plan as prepared by council and consultants Ward Associates fails to ask residents what kind of municipality they want in 20 years time.

"Saanich residents have not had a central or intimate role in developing their own plan," he charged.

He accused council of putting residents in a "Catch 22" bind.

He said during four public meetings held so far on the draft plan, participants were told to limit discussion to general observations and were prohibited from dealing with specific neighborhood issues.

Only after the plan has been adopted will residents be able to discuss details of how they'd like to see their neighborhoods developed.

But by then, said Mika, such discussions will be largely academic because development will have to conform to the accepted plan.

The plan is scheduled nevertheless to go to public hearing next month.

Mika argued residents should have been given more input into the plan because of the enormous social and financial consequences it will have on the future of the municipality.

He said it will govern development for the next 20 years.

"It will formally commit the municipality to expenditures and inevitable tax levies far larger than any in the municipality's history," he said.

He said Saanich is unique among Greater Victoria municipalities in that Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are virtually fully developed and have drafted community plans that essentially tidy up existing development patterns.

Mika said that while he personally agrees with much of the draft plan he has serious reservations about crucial aspects.

One is the plan to build a regional shopping centre at either Broadmead or Burnside-Tillicum, both of which he regards as unsatisfactory.

"They are opposed by significant numbers of Saanich residents, will cost millions of dollars, will distort future development of the entire region, and will favor the foreign-based multinational concerns against independent local businessmen," Mika claimed.

Mika is also critical of the Royal Oak industrial park scheme recommended by the draft community plan.

Instead, he opts for redevelopment of 200 acres on either side of Douglas between Tolmie and Saanich Road.

Mika said if local areas are to have any say in how the community should be developed, the municipality will have to come up with funds to help establish and maintain community organizations.

TREES WILTING IN HEAT WAVE

The Victoria weather office ways it still can't see an end to the sunny, hot weather and it's starting to have some unusual effects.

The immediate forecast through to Tuesday is for sunny with a few cloudy periods and continuing warm temperatures.

And among a host of other problems, the drought has prompted Oak Bay municipality to appeal to residents to water the boulevard trees, if they are not already doing so.

Municipal engineer Geoff White said the preferred method is to punch a series of holes in the ground bout two-thirds of the way to the ends of the branches — about six feet from the trunk but still under the crown — so water can get to the roots.

The drought could kill some trees, especially ones under direct sunlight or near driveways or asphalt streets.

White said if residents are away, perhaps their neighbors would consider doing the same to the yard next door.

Bruins Ain't Misbehaving

Black bears, seem to be keeping out of trouble on Vancouver Island.

Complaints about nuisance bears are down considerably this summer, wildlife control officer Dan Lay says.

The B.C. fish and wildlife branch has only received one complaint about a bear raiding a commercial bee hive — all the rest involved bears ravenging in garbage dumps.

"We get few complaints from the south end of Vancouver Island," he said. "Most come from central and the northern part of the Island."

He said he has found as many as 22 bears living off a dump near Gold River.

Lay said such bears are either destroyed or removed.

"They can become a real nuisance — sometimes by even walking through a town in search of hand-outs from people," he said. "The actions of such bears are unpredictable."

He said the branch tried to discourage bears from dumps by pouring a salty mixture over the garbage, but the experiment failed.

"The mixture gave the bears a stomach ache and made them sick," he said. "But they wouldn't go back to their natural food. They prefer the discomfort to returning to the wild where they belong."

"Some bears become so dependent on garbage that they will even sleep on top of the pile," he added.

He disclosed that many dump bears have been found to be wounded or injured.

"They have been hit by a .22 bullet or injured by cars," he explained "We have to destroy them."

The younger bears are given a chance. They are taken and released in the woods, miles away from the dump.

Lay said the reason bear raids on bee hives are few is because many bee keepers have erected electric fences around their yards and bundled hives together with double wire-meshing.

Bears don't like getting an electric shock on the snout," he said.

But the electric wire won't stop the crafty old bears who have broken into yards and discovered the easy pickings," he said. "I've seen them roll over the electric wire. Nothing will stop them from getting at their beloved honey."

"Once they're addicted to honey they're the same as drunks on skid road trying to get to a bottle," he observed.

Fishboat Sinking A Hoax

Rescue officials today said the report of a fishboat sinking off the entrance of Juan de Fuca Strait Thursday night was likely a hoax.

Searchers, co-ordinated by the United States Coast Guard but involving also the lifeboat out of Bamfield combed the area Friday but failed to come up with any sign of wreckage or debris.

The search was activated after the U.S. Coast Guard received a distress signal at 10:15 p.m. from a boat identified as the Karma II. The caller said the boat was sinking and there were four persons aboard.

A Pacific Rescue Centre spokesman said checks were made through ship registries in both Canada and the United States but there is no fishboat named Karma II.

"We think now the call was a hoax," the spokesman said.

It's Headache For Everyone

Parking at the Potholes provincial park near Sooke has always been a colossal headache for parks' officials, RCMP and visitors alike.

It's no different this year.

But next year there may be a change if the parks branch approves a recommendation by Malahat district park superintendent Don Carruthers.

Carruthers said he has sent in a proposal to hire a commissionaire next summer.

The commissionaire would work full time from June 15 Labor Day, limit the number of cars in the parking lot and stop people from parking in no parking zones.

Such a move has been requested by Sooke RCMP who have found it impossible to control parking in the area.

"We tried warning motorists about the no-parking zones," said Sgt. Jim Troiano. "But that didn't work.

"We tried ticketing them. But that didn't work either.

"So now we are towing out the cars. And by the screams we're getting I think it has had some effect."

Troiano said on a hot day it's not unusual to see as many as 500 cars line Sooke River Road and the small lot at the park Yet the number of permitted parking spaces is no more than about 100.

Carruthers said there is nothing the parks board can do to alleviate the situation. The parking lot can't be increased in size without destroying the park.

"It's a real tough problem," he said.

Juvenile Blamed In Fire

A boy playing with matches is believed responsible for a fire that caused about $40,000 damage to a house at 3056 Washington Friday and sent a Victoria fireman to hospital with minor burns.

The fire, spotted by occupant Elizabeth Sage at 3:45 p.m. started in the basement and quickly spread up the walls.

By the time firemen arrived, the second storey was engulfed and flames were breaking out through the roof.

Firemen fought the blaze for nearly three hours and in the process Fireman Rick Wheeler received slight burns to one hand.

He was taken to Victoria General and treated and released. No one else was injured.
